

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

The want of a comprehensive work on subjects connected with PRACTICAL MEDICINE, including PATHOLOGY and PATHOLOGICAL ANATOMY, is one which has long existed in this country. The Medical Dictionaries heretofore published, and the Systems of Medicine in the hands of the student, may be said, without invidiousness, to fall very far short of presenting the English reader with such a compendious survey of the actual state of BRITISH and FOREIGN MEDICINE as is absolutely required by him. Some of them are too limited and too superficial in their character; others are too voluminous, too intricate in their arrangement, and too indiscriminate in their contents; and all are open to the serious objection of failing to represent the improvements and discoveries by which the scientific labours of the members of the medical profession, in various parts of the world, have been rewarded since the commencement of the present century.

It is the object of the CYCLOPEDIA OF PRACTICAL MEDICINE to supply these deficiencies, and to meet the acknowledged wants of the medical reader. Such ample arrangements have been made for effecting these important objects, as enable the Editors to lay before the public the nature and plan of a publication in which they have endeavoured, by dividing the labour of a work including subjects of great diversity, and all of practical importance; by combining the valuable exertions of several contributors already known to the medical public; by excluding mere technical and verbal explanations, and all superfluous matter; and by avoiding multiplied and injudicious divisions; to furnish a book which will be comprehensive without diffuseness, and contain an account of whatever appertains to practical medicine, unembarrassed by disquisitions on subjects extraneous to it.

In pursuance of this design, every thing connected with what is commonly called the PRACTICE OF PHYSIC will be fully and clearly explained. The subject of PATHOLOGY will occupy particular attention, and ample information will be given with relation to PATHOLOGICAL ANATOMY.

Although the excellent works already published on the subjects of MATERIA MEDICA and MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE can be so readily and advantageously consulted, as to make the details of those branches of science uncalled for in the Cyclopædia, it belongs to the proposed plan to comprise such notices of the application and use of medicinal substances as may be conveyed in a general account of each class into which they have been divided, as of TONICS, NARCOTICS, &c.; and to impart, under a few heads, as TOXICOLOGY, SUSPENDED ANIMATION, &c. such information connected with Medical Jurisprudence as is more strictly practical in its character.

It is almost unnecessary to say that a work of this description will form a LIBRARY OF PRACTICAL MEDICINE, and constitute a most desirable book of reference for the GENERAL PRACTITIONER, whose numerous avocations, and whose want of access to books, afford him little time and opportunity for the perusal of many original works, and who is often unable to obtain the precise information which he requires at the exact time when he is in greatest need of it.

The STUDENT OF MEDICINE, who is attending lectures, will also, by means of this work, be enabled, whatever order the lecturer may follow, to refer, without difficulty, to each subject treated of in the lectures of his teacher; and it is presumed that Lecturers on Medicine will see the advantage of recommending to their pupils a work of highly respectable character, the composition of original writers, and which, it is hoped, will neither disappoint the advanced student by its brevity and incompleteness, nor perplex those commencing their studies by an artificial arrangement.

But, whilst the Editors have felt it to be their duty to prepare a safe and useful book of reference and text-book, it would be doing injustice to those by whose co-operation they have been honoured, not to avow that they have also been ambitious to render the work acceptable and interesting to readers who have leisure and inclination to study what may be termed the PHILOSOPHY OF MEDICINE: whatever is truly philosophical in medicine being also useful, although the application of the science to the art requires much reflection and sound judgment.—For the assistance of those who desire to pursue a regular course of medical reading, ample directions will be given when the work is completed; and for those who may be anxious to prosecute any particular subject to a greater extent than the limits of the Cyclopædia permit, a list will be given, in an Appendix, of the best works relating to each.

The means of accomplishing an undertaking of the importance of which the Editors are fully sensible, will, doubtless, be appreciated after an inspection of the list of contributors who have already promised their co-operation. It is, of course, desirable that a work of this kind should be characterised by unity of design, but, at the same time, as each author will, generally speaking, contribute his knowledge and his opinions on the subjects which have occupied his chief attention, the superiority of the whole performance to any thing which the mere labour of compilation could accomplish will be unquestionable. To each important article the name of the author will be appended.

The acknowledged want of such a publication, already alluded to, and the extensive encouragement which Dictionaries of much greater extent have met with in FRANCE and GERMANY, although some of them are very unequal as regards the value of different parts, and encumbered with much that is absolutely useless, afford sufficient reason to hope for the success of a work in which what is valuable will, as much as possible, be separated from what is merely calculated to distract the attention, and to frustrate the inquiry, of those who study the science of medicine with a view of regulating and improving its practice.

In order to insure this success, it is the desire, and will be the endeavour of the Editors to make the CYCLOPÆDIA OF PRACTICAL MEDICINE not only obviously useful to those for whom it is more immediately intended, but so creditable to BRITISH MEDICAL SCIENCE as to deserve and to obtain the patronage of all classes of the Medical Profession.

CONDITIONS.

I. The Work will be published in Parts, and printed on superfine Paper, in a small Type, with double Columns, and in the largest Royal Octavo Size.

II. The first Part will be published on the 1st of January, 1832; and the Work will be continued on the first Day of every Month, until the whole is completed. Each Part (price 5s.) will contain as much Matter as is found in an equal Number of Pages of the large Quarto Encyclopædias.

III. The Arrangements made by the Publishers are of such a Kind as to enable them to engage for the regular Appearance of the Work, in London, Edinburgh, and Dublin, on the First Day of every Month.

I.

MEMORIAL of the STUART DYNASTY, including the Constitutional and Ecclesiastical History of England, from the decease of Elizabeth to the abdication of James II. By ROBERT VAUGHAN, Author of 'The Life and Opinions of Wycliffe.' 2 vols. 8vo. 24s. boards.

'Of Mr. Vaughan's talents and acquirements as a writer, we have already spoken favourably in our notice of his elaborate Work, "The Life and Opinions of Wycliffe." In the present volumes we discover the same industry and research; the same prudence in doubtful or differently represented points; the same unyielding integrity; and the same elevated tone of patriotic and moral feeling, while, as a literary composition, we think the Work before us is better executed.'—New Monthly Magazine.

II.

By the same Author, in 2 vols. 8vo. 11. 1s. The Second Edition, improved, of

THE LIFE and OPINIONS of JOHN DE WYCLIFFE, D.D. Illustrated principally from his unpublished Manuscripts, with a Preliminary View of the Papal System, and of the State of the Protestant Doctrine in Europe to the Commencement of the Fourteenth Century. With a finely-engraved Portrait, by E. Finden, from the original Picture by Sir Antonio More, now an Heir-loom to the Rectory of Wycliffe, Richmondshire.

'There seems to be no repository of ancient literature in the empire which has escaped the industry of Mr. Vaughan. . . . His diligence has enabled him to ascertain the date of many of Wycliffe's performances with an approach to precision which had never before been attained, and thus to trace out, with greater success than any former writer, the progress and development of the Reformer's convictions.'—Preface to Professor Le Bas's Life of Wycliffe.

NATURAL HISTORY of ENTHUSIASM, in Ten Sections. 8vo. 8s.

'A very able disquisition.'—Blackwood's Mag.
'For protection, we refer our readers to the two very able sections on "Enthusiasm of Prophetic Interpretation," and on "Enthusiastic Abuses of a particular Providence," in a recent publication on the Natural History of Enthusiasm.'—Edinburgh Review, No. C. p. 293.

The ninth edition, corrected, of FOSTER'S ESSAYS on DECISION of CHARACTER, &c. 8vo. 10s. 6d. boards.

'We take our leave of this work with sincere reluctance.' . . .

'It has fared with us as with a traveller who passes through an enchanting country, where he meets with so many beautiful views, and so many striking objects which he is loth to quit, that he loiters till the shades of the evening insensibly fall upon him.'

'The Author places the idea which he wishes to present in such a flood of light, that it is not merely visible itself, but it seems to illumine all around it. He paints metaphysics, and has the happy art of arraying, what in other hands would appear cold and comfortless abstractions, in the warmest colours of fancy. Without the least affectation of frivolous ornaments, without quitting his argument in pursuit of imagery, his imagination becomes the perfect handmaid of his reason, ready at every moment to spread her canvass and present her pencil.'—Robert Hall, See Reviews.

The second edition, much improved, and enlarged by an increase of more than one-fourth new matter, of

Dr. J. PYE SMITH'S SCRIPTURE TESTIMONY to the MESSIAH: an inquiry with a view to a satisfactory determination of the Doctrine taught in the Holy Scriptures concerning the Person of Christ. 3 vols. 8vo. 11. 16s.

In the course of circulating the former edition, the Publishers have had occasion to observe the prevalence of a supposition, that this work is adapted only for the use of scholars and professional divines; but they believe that they may with confidence affirm the contrary. Though the great subject is treated by a very close investigation of both evidences and objections, yet the whole process is conducted so as to be intelligible and interesting to all serious Christians, and many collateral topics of the highest importance in Theology and Religion are incidentally discussed.

'The late learned Bishop of Oxford (Dr. Lloyd) stated, that he considered it to be the ablest treatise extant on the subject.'—See Christian Remembrancer, Oct. 1829.

'Unquestionably the most elaborate defence and proof of the Deity of Jesus Christ extant in our own language.'—Horne's Introduction to the Study of the Bible.

Dr. Smith's Scripture Testimony is also included in the List of Works recommended to the Students in Divinity by the Bishops of London and Oxford, Professor Burton, &c. &c.

By the same Author,

FOUR DISCOURSES on the SACRIFICE, PRIESTHOOD, ATONEMENT, and REDEMPTION of CHRIST. 8vo. 8s.

'To those students who have the leisure and means requisite for further investigation, the critical and bibliographical notices contained in the supplementary matter will be a valuable directory. But to the majority of readers, the volume will present a sufficient and satisfactory exposition of the subject.'—Eclectic Review.

AN IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENT,

BEING

AN EXCELLENT SUBSTITUTE FOR THE ORDINARY QUILL PEN.

BEILBY AND KNOTT, of BIRMINGHAM, and of BRIDE COURT, NEW BRIDGE STREET, LONDON, offer the Public a STEEL PEN, which they denominate DOUBLY ELASTIC.

The increased elasticity of this Pen gives it the spring and facility for writing of the ordinary Quill Pen, in a higher degree than has been effected in any other way ; it is also less liable to injury than the former kind of STEEL PENS ;—with care it may be kept in use for several months.

BEILBY AND KNOTT'S DOUBLY ELASTIC PENS are sold on Cards containing Six Pens and a Handle, at Fifteen Pence ; or on Cards with Twelve and a Handle, at Two Shillings each Card.

In order to suit the various hand-writing for which Pens are required, the following kinds are prepared :—

DOUBLY ELASTIC PENS for Gentlemen who write a hand of ordinary strength ;	} B. & K.
the Pens are each marked thus	G.
Ditto, ditto, REFINED, suitable for Gentlemen who write a fine hand. This	} B. & K.
Pen is also adapted for Ladies, and is distinguished by	R.
Ditto, ditto, for BOLD WRITING, suitable for Ledger Posting and Engrossing ;	} B. & K.
they are marked	B.

BEILBY AND KNOTT

have also to announce

A DOUBLY ELASTIC SLIP STEEL PEN, which may be used with an ordinary Pen-holder, or in the barrel of a Quill ;—in the latter form they are peculiarly suitable for Counting Houses, and for Public and other Offices.

BEILBY AND KNOTT'S DOUBLY ELASTIC SLIP PENS may be had of the same prepared degrees, distinguished by the letters G. R. & B. on Cards, with six or twelve Pens on each, at the Price of the above ;—on Cards, without a handle, they are sold at One Shilling and Nine Pence per Dozen.

If the bottom letter at the end of each kind be affixed to the order, the description will be understood ; but it is requested that BEILBY and KNOTT'S PENS may be expressly inquired for. They are to be had by application to any of the Booksellers and Stationers in the United Kingdom ; of whom may also be had,

BEILBY AND KNOTT'S

IMPROVED INDELIBLE MARKING INK,

FOR WRITING ON LINEN, COTTON, AND SILK,

with a Pen.

This INK is so prepared as to resist all attempts to discharge it, and it will not, when applied according to the directions, injure the most delicate substance. The Colour is now rendered of a deep black, and it is peculiar to this preparation, that the linen may, if necessary, be washed immediately after undergoing the process.—It is made up in Square Cases, which, from their neat and portable form, are peculiarly suitable for the Work-boxes and Work-tables of Ladies.

* * Cases may be had at 1s. 6d.,—2s. 6d.,—or 3s. 6d.

THE LITERARY GAZETTE.

NEW-YEAR'S ADDRESS.

THERE are many customs more honoured in the breach than in the observance; yet in one where a grateful feeling must be experienced, we would rather bear the imputation of an oft-told tale than incur the suspicion of coldness or neglect. With its many, very many friends, the Literary Gazette, as a public journal, hopes to continue its intercourse in the same manner as heretofore,—receiving from them the same testimonies of esteem, and requiting them by the same assiduity in supplying the information sought by the intelligent of all classes, and the same undeviating simplicity and honesty in placing every subject before the understanding of its readers. We know that none can peruse these sheets, collected from so many valuable sources, without much improvement; and we are free to declare of ourselves, that, making common allowances for errors in judgment or difference of opinion, a syllable never appeared in our page to mislead the sense or distort the truth.

After fifteen years of success, such as never attended any periodical of a similar nature, we might spare ourselves any professions on these heads; but the noise of impudence and quackery is so loud in the press, that a calm elevation of voice, only once a year, may be excused in those who are never egotistic or combative at any other time.

In periods of excitement, especially, the press, always powerful, assumes an almost despotic influence—sorry are we to observe that it often abuses it. In this country at this moment it is so grossly abused, that even men who hold the just tenet, that its freedom ought to be as unrestricted as the freedom of speech or thought, are too frequently compelled to question whether its existence be a benefit to society or a curse. And it twines itself into so many folds—proceeds upon so many hidden motives—proclaims its false pretences so boldly, that it is indeed difficult to distinguish through its medium the right from the wrong, the true from the false. As one of its members, we cannot help feeling a portion of the common obloquy, though anxiously endeavouring, throughout our whole career, not to deserve it. For none can more regret than we do, to see the noblest engine which man can employ so exceedingly debased—to see that which ought to spread knowledge and virtue and benevolence over the world, made the organ of slander and depravity and malignity. Were the individual oracles whence these pernicious principles are diffused, held up to the scorn and infamy they richly merit; were they but dragged from their darkness and rendered visible in their own naked insignificance and worthlessness; we can fancy how astonished the public would be at its folly in having listened to such guides. Persons for whom the English tongue has but one impressive term, blackguards; boys pert from school, men never met in society, and without the responsibility of reputation, ignorant and envious libellers, the justly disappointed, the scurrilous, and the self-interested, take too prominent a part in our periodical literature, and to those who are in the secret of their existence furnish an abundant wonder that they should produce the slightest effect upon the mind of the country. Their entire system would provoke a severe denunciation, were it not contemptible as well as injurious: look, for example, to the majority of the literary periodicals of the day. In some, politics alone direct the judgment; in others, the tone is never to encourage, ever to depreciate. The poor reptile, big in fancied importance, grips the fruit of genius and toil for his prey, and by besliming it with his own impurities makes it offensive to the taste, and destroys that which might fairly have grown into beauty and excellence. The buzz of the insect tribe, the sting of the malicious, and the venom which displays itself, while its perpetrators shrink from chastisement under their anonymous occupation in slanderous personalities, are truly to be lamented in our national literature, and particularly from their prevalence in publications of a description to influence opinion in every class of the community.

But we feel that, instead of saying a few words for ourselves, as is usual in these addresses, we have been betrayed into a mingled censure and apology for the press generally. We confess that our wish is strong for an improvement, not only in ourselves, but in our contemporaries; more exertion and less egotism would well become the best,—an utter avoidance of the personal and slanderous would rescue all from the dislike (to use a tender word) in which we are too much involved, through the abuses to which we refer. If even the meanest writers would consider how very small a talent is requisite for the indulgence of pique, and the safe-saying of things offensive to the unoffending, whose worst crime has been an endeavour to produce what was worthy of applause—we do think that kindlier, more generous, and more manly criticism would distinguish our periodical literature, and that the cultivation and encouragement of our national school, rather than its reproach and depression, would be the result.

Instead of being filled with our own vanities; instead of pestering the public with our own squabbles; would it not be infinitely more graceful and useful to redouble our diligence, in order to meet the demands of more enlightened times and a widely enlarged circle of readers, deeply desirous to reap instruction and refinement from our labours? We are persuaded that it is so; and for ourselves, we shall promise zeal without abatement, and a continuance of that impartiality and independence which has exposed the Literary Gazette to attacks from all sides,—attacks we have not deemed it necessary to answer, except by our conduct and the character of our publication. Be it ours still to cherish the literature of England, and make known its merits to every quarter of the globe;—never be it ours to hurt one good feeling by the miserable ambition of being smart and clever. Above all, amid the most unwearied and anxious efforts to collect early and correct intelligence on every subject embraced by our plan; let us remember, that the private and social intercourse of life is sacred, and that he who can forget the gentleman, can never be a fit instructor of the public.

London: published every Saturday morning, by W. A. SCRIPPS, Wellington-street, Strand.

PARLIAMENTARY, LITERARY, AND DOMESTIC JOURNAL.

THE ATLAS, WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

OCCUPYING SIXTEEN PAGES, DIVIDED INTO FORTY-EIGHT COLUMNS,

Is chiefly recommended to attention by the Arrangement of its Subjects and the Comprehensiveness of its Plan. It embraces:—

The best Leading Articles of all contemporary Journals.

Foreign News, classified with great care, and written in an historical spirit.

Domestic News, subdivided into heads of separate interest, and prepared with a scrupulous regard to purity of matter and diction.

Original Essays and Commentaries on the Events of the Day.

Theatrical and Dramatic Criticisms.

Reviews of all New Works, in a tone of fearless independence, and vigorous research after truth.

Original Criticisms on all Works of Art and Artists.

Notices of Music and Musicians abroad and at home, embracing a body of valuable and scientific criticism.

Army, Navy, Commercial, Colonial, Ecclesiastical, Shipping, and Sporting Intelligence.

The great extent of the ATLAS, which is the largest Paper in the kingdom, enables it to concentrate in its pages the most essential features of all other political and literary Journals. On this account it aims at the reputation of being the most faithful and copious record of the Parliamentary History of the times; at the same time that it dedicates considerable space to all literary and scientific subjects.

The importance of the great question that now almost exclusively occupies the public mind, justifies the Editor of the ATLAS in bespeaking attention to a series of papers on Constitutional Government, the first of which appeared in the ATLAS on the 1st of January, 1832. The intrinsic value of these papers is enhanced by the circumstance of their authorship, as they are from the pen of WILLIAM HAZLITT, and are now, for the first time, to be submitted to the public. In them the author enters at large upon the philosophy of government, and defines political, personal, and moral rights, with a truth and eloquence of which it would be difficult to cite a higher example in our language. These posthumous productions may be said to contain

THE CONFESSION OF FAITH OF WILLIAM HAZLITT.

At the present moment this publication will be of more than ordinary interest. It will appear at the era of the approaching triumph and confirmation of the principles for which Hazlitt suffered persecution during his life, and died in neglect. It may be received as the most remarkable work of a man who is now admitted by his opponents to have been a profound thinker and a luminous writer.

. The Article which appeared in the ATLAS on the Law of Population, in reply to the EDINBURGH REVIEW, is republished in the form of a Pamphlet, and may be had at Ridgway's, Piccadilly.

DRAWING-ROOM SCRAP BOOK; WITH POETICAL ILLUSTRATIONS,
By L. E. L.

' Gifts are the beads of memory's rosary,
Whereon she reckons kind remembrances
Of friends and old affections.'

' We had imagined that annual ingenuity was exhausted, and that nothing new could be devised to vary the beaten track; but here is not only a novel, but very delightful present for all seasons,—a most pleasant ornament for my lady's table, no matter in what room, be it boudoir or drawing-room, and an elegant offering to the fine arts and belles lettres.'—Literary Gazette.

' We have been favoured with the inspection of "Fisher's Drawing-room Scrap Book," one of the most elegant presents we have seen in this age of annuals. It is a quarto, and composed of a selection of thirty-six highly interesting engravings of some of the most romantic, beautiful, and sublime scenery, and works of art and nature, in all parts of the world; including four or five portraits of the Royal Family, and other distinguished persons.'—Globe.

A TREATISE ON POISONS in Relation to MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE, PHYSIOLOGY, and the PRACTICE of PHYSIC. By R. CHRISTISON, M.D., Professor of Medical Jurisprudence and Police in the University of Edinburgh.

'To the medical jurist, from the novelty, accuracy, and practical bearing of the facts so copiously collected, it is indispensable. In short, it is beyond comparison the most valuable practical treatise on Toxicology extant.'—London Medical and Physical Journal, No. 44.

'This is a standard publication; one of the most valuable and necessary which he can place in his library.'—Johnson's Medico-Chirurgical Review, No. 24.

'From this analysis our readers will be able to form an imperfect idea of the excellence, both as to matter and manner, of this classical work.'—Edinburgh Medical Journal, No. 102.

'The work of which we here present the public with a full translation, is one of the greatest additions that has been made to the stores of medical, and especially of medico-legal literature; and we have no doubt that it will receive in Germany the same approbation with which it has been welcomed from all quarters in Britain. While the author has trode in the steps of Orfila, he has turned his attention in the most pointed manner to the phenomena produced by the various poisons in the living and dead body; and the scientific reader will soon be convinced that in these respects he has far overstepped his predecessor.'—From the announcement of the German Translation in Buchner's Repertorium.

'Dr. Christison's great work on Poisons, by far the best on Medical Jurisprudence in our language.'—Blackwood's Magazine.

Adam Black, Edinburgh; and Longman, Rees, Orme, Brown and Green, London.

THE

EXAMINER NEWSPAPER

RARELY lays claim to public attention in advertising columns. The recent improvements in its size and form may excuse its present Address.

The Politics of the EXAMINER, now crowned with success, rest upon principles adopted in inauspicious times, and steadily maintained through all dangers, and against the clamour of interest and prejudice. We have reaped our reward in the approbation of the most enlightened minds, the respect of able antagonists, and the advancement of the grand cause of Parliamentary Reform, which, in and out of season, we have pertinaciously advocated. Our experience has added to our confidence in truth and justice, and it has brought with it more indulgence for opponents. Their errors we combat; but to personal characters our hostility does not extend. Few men are invariably consistent either in good or evil, and our treatment of actions and opinions is not determined by the general character of the individual. Restrained by this opinion, we are neither partisans nor 'good haters.' Our guiding rule is the recommendation of Locke—'To bring to our studies and to our inquiries after knowledge a mind covetous of truth; that seeks after nothing else, and after that impartially, and embraces it, how poor, how contemptible, how unfashionable soever it may seem.'

Objects to which the EXAMINER will apply the same zeal it has devoted to Parliamentary Reform are, Church Reform, Negro Emancipation, the improvement and extension of Education, the establishment of the Ballot, the better distribution of Taxes, Law Reform, and indeed everything that tends to the improvement of the morals and condition of the people.

The increased size of the Paper enables us to keep up regularly the Literary Department; and it is our pride to assert, that the political opinions of Authors could never be inferred from our treatment of their works. The EXAMINER does not boast of the number or earliness of its Reviews, for they are carefully digested—we read before we write. The same anxiety to be just prevails in our notices of the Theatres and Fine Arts.

The Miscellaneous part of the enlarged EXAMINER has been much improved in quantity and variety, even under the temporary pressure of the protracted Debates in Parliament, and it will be yet more improved, now that such disproportionate demand upon our space has ceased. In the Miscellany and Reports, scrupulous regard is had to delicacy; and it is everywhere endeavoured to convey instruction with amusement. The father of a family may lay our Paper on his breakfast-table, without fear that the just delicacy of his wife or daughters will be shocked with coarse details, or their tastes offended by vulgarities. To the mere patron of the prize-ring, and the gobe mouche of the police-office, our columns offer no gratification.

The advantages of the EXAMINER to Advertisers may be inferred from the course of its circulation, which is amongst the educated classes, the intelligent, the speculative, and the enterprising.

In accordance with the custom of our contemporaries, we could fill pages with testimonials of the character of the EXAMINER; but we prefer confining ourselves to such as are clearly free from all partialities, and therefore cite those only of distinguished political antagonists.

'NORTH.—The Examiner has, for some years past, been a very able paper, and frequently shows fight even with the Standard. They are both good swordsmen, and sometimes bleed with mutual, but not mortal, wounds.

"Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just; " and therefore the Examiner contends at odds. But he is cunning of fence, strong and nimble-wristed, and without fear. He is savage as he sometimes seems, nay truculent—I verily believe an honest and generous man.'—Blackwood's Magazine, April, 1830.

"Go read the Examiner. You will find no shilly-shallying in his straight-forward and vigorous columns. If he had believed the Bill to be aristocratical, he would have torn it into shreds and patches. But he sees in it—not an end—but a beginning; and his eyes are piercers. Till now, he never hesitated to scatter his scorn over the Whigs;—even now he is but barely civil, nor will his courtesies continue one moment longer, after they begin to show a returning anxiety for their "Order." By an entire abandonment of the interests of their own class,—that is, in the light in which they have considered them all their lives long, up to the period of this blessed Bill—can they hope to possess the favour of that formidable section, of which his talents,—and we scruple not to add, in our rooted antipathy to his principles, his political integrity—for though pernicious, he is honest—have made him,—as far as the press is at work for revolution.'—The Leader—From the Same, June, 1831.

'Mr. Baring Wall quoted a passage from the Examiner Newspaper, and another from the Westminster Review, to show the opinions of the radical reformers of the present day. He disclaimed any wish, however, to mark those publications out for prosecution. They were both conducted with great ability, and he took them in himself, and derived from them much valuable information.'—Report of Debates, House of Commons, March 2d.

'Lord Wharnccliffe would read to their Lordships the opinions expressed upon the subject of the Ministerial Reform, immediately after its promulgation, in a newspaper, the Examiner, which advocates its particular views with great ability, and also, he doubted not, with great sincerity.'—Report of Debates, House of Lords, March 28th.

'The Examiner is now the cleverest and shrewdest radical print of its class, out of doubt.'—Quarterly Review, April, 1831.

Mr. Holloway; of a Clergyman, and Mr. Trotter, a celebrated Mathematician and Mechanic; and other recent Purchases, on Sale at 28, Paternoster Row, London.

IRON FOUNDRY, MILL-BROOK, SOUTHAMPTON.—Messrs. NATHANIEL OGLE, WILLIAM ALLTOFT SUMMERS, and COMPANY, having purchased the above-mentioned premises, beg to call the attention of Coach Proprietors and General Carriers, as it is their intention to immediately construct VEHICLES to be propelled by their PATENT STEAM APPARATUS, for the transport of passengers and goods of every denomination on turnpike roads, at any required speed within the limits of propriety for the former, and for the latter in accordance with the rate required for mercantile purposes. As their orders for Vehicles of both denominations are already numerous, applications for their terms and conditions should be made as soon as possible in writing, stating the purposes for which the vehicle is wanted, the weight it is to carry, the distance it has to run, and the speed required.

To the Proprietors of Steam Boats.

The Patent Boilers can be applied to the machinery now on board vessels, but Messrs. Ogle, Summers, and Co. decline in new vessels to apply their boiler to machinery made at any other factory. The advantages of their boiler are as follow:—Perfect Safety—the diminution of the weight to one-seventh of the boilers in present use—the diminution of the space now occupied to one seventh—no smoke, excepting when the fire is first lighted—the chimney reduced to a tube to carry off the nitrogen—no precipitation of salt or other substances—the saving of a very considerable portion of the heat now wasted—the facility of getting up steam in one-fourth of the time now necessary. In addition to the above advantages, the primary cost will be less than at present—the durability longer—and the facility of reparation much greater and requiring less time. Should the machinery be also constructed by them, the space, weight, and expense would be less, and the power more efficient. Every other denomination of Engineering will be executed, from the most complex to the most simple. Castings in iron and brass of any dimensions and weight. Agricultural Implements of all kinds cast, forged, and fitted up, on terms as low as can be charged for superior metal and workmanship.—All letters must be post paid.

Early in February, in two Volumes,

THE DOMESTIC MANNERS of the AMERICANS. By FRANCES TROLLOPE. With several Plates. Whittaker, Treacher, and Co., Ave-Maria Lane.

THE MOST APPROVED MEDICAL GUIDE FOR FAMILIES.

In one thick volume, 8vo., double columns, price 14s. cloth bds., the Second Edition, enlarged, corrected, and improved, of a

D ICTIONARY of MEDICINE for POPULAR USE; containing an Account of Diseases and their Treatment, with Directions for administering Medicines; the Regulation of Diet and Regimen; and the Management of the Diseases of Women and Children. By ALEXANDER MACAULAY, M.D., Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, and Physician-Accoucheur to the New Town Dispensary.

The arrangement of the present work being strictly alphabetical, affords the utmost facility of reference, an advantage not possessed by any work of a similar description. In its compilation the author has made it his constant endeavour to select such language as may be perfectly intelligible to the non-medical reader; and when a disease is recognized by more than one popular name, a reference is made under each name to that part of the work in which the disease is treated.

Diet and Regimen have received that share of attention which their importance demands, and the circumstances requiring the use or rejection of any article of food have been carefully pointed out. The advantages and disadvantages of wine, spirits, tea, coffee, tobacco, and other articles of luxury, have also been fairly stated; and the pernicious nature of many of the most celebrated quack medicines is exhibited in an Appendix at the end of the work.

The following selection is made from the numerous testimonials in favour of the work:

‘Calculated to accomplish all that could be wished in a popular system of medicine.’—Edinburgh Medical and Surgical Journal, No. 96.

‘We have seen nothing of the kind better adapted for consultation.’—Literary Gazette.

‘We know not a safer manual of medicine in our language.’—Scots Times.

‘Decidedly the most useful book of the kind that has yet been offered to the public.’—Calcutta Mercury.

‘Dr. Macaulay's Dictionary may be safely recommended as a most useful, comprehensive, and popular work, which may be safely and advantageously consulted in all cases where health is affected.’—Edin. Courant.

‘The Medical Dictionary of Dr. Macaulay is undoubtedly the most rational book of the kind we have yet met with, and cannot fail to be eminently useful.’—Dumfries Courier.

CHARLES LAMB'S TALES OF SHAKSPEARE.

This day is published, a New and Elegant Edition, with Twenty-two Superb Cuts, from Designs by Harvey, and finely printed by Whittingham, in one vol. 12mo. Price 7s. 6d. handsomely bound,

THE TALES of SHAKSPEARE.
Designed for the Use of Young Persons. The Fifth Edition. By CHARLES LAMB.

. These tales are meant to be submitted to the young reader as an introduction to the study of Shakspeare, for which purpose his words are used whenever it seemed possible to bring them in; and in whatever has been added to give them the regular form of a connected story, diligent care has been taken to select such words as might least interrupt the effect of the beautiful English tongue in which he wrote; therefore words introduced into our language since his time have been as far as possible avoided.

TRAITS and STORIES of the IRISH PEASANTRY. Second Edition, carefully revised.

'SHEPHERD.—What sort o' vols. are the Traits and Stories of the Irish Peasantry, published by Curry and Co. in Dublin?'

'NORTH.—Admirable! truly, intensely Irish. Never were that wild, imaginative people better described; and amongst all the fun, frolic, and folly, there is no want of poetry, pathos, and passion.'—Blackwood's Magazine.

For testimonials equally unqualified the Publishers would refer to the Monthly, New Monthly, and Fraser's Magazines; the London, Edinburgh, and Dublin Literary Gazettes, the Athenæum, Spectator, and a great proportion of the respectable Press of Great Britain.

Dublin: printed for William Curry, Jun. and Co.; and Simpkin and Marshall, London.

A CLERGYMAN of the Established Church, who resides in a most pleasant and healthy part of the Vicinity of LONDON, receives into his house SIX YOUNG GENTLEMEN, as ParLOUR-boarders. IMPERIAL ROYAL ILLUMINATED PLAYING CARDS.

S. and J. FULLER most respectfully solicit the patronage of the Nobility, the Gentry, and the Public, to their new invented and much admired Playing Cards. To reject the barbarous and unmeaning portraiture which have hitherto constituted the Courts of our Playing Cards, and to lay before the Public their old and favourite amusement in a form instructive, elegant, and suited to the age, are the motives of the Inventor.

The Courts of these Cards are the Portraits of the four great contending Powers who lived in the fifteenth century, with their Consorts and their Ministers, and are illustrative of the History of that Period; they are elegant in their Costume, and from Pictures of those celebrated masters, Titian, Holbein, and others, who lived at the time, and the Aces correspond with the Court Cards by being illustrated with the orders and the regalia of the respective Courts they are made to represent.

Made and Sold by S. and J. FULLER, Playing Card Makers, 34, Rathbone-place, London.

Playing Cards with various Coloured Backs.

PROUTS CONTINENTAL ANNUAL.

Price 14s. handsomely bound in morocco,

THE CONTINENTAL ANNUAL FOR 1832, illustrated in the first style of the Art from Drawings by SAMUEL PROUT, Esq., and uniform in size with his LANDSCAPE ANNUAL of 1830 and 1831. The literary Department under the Superintendence of Mr. WILLIAM KENNEDY, embraces a Series of highly interesting Narratives, which, while they gratify the Reader's Imagination, at the same time illustrate the Picturesque Representations of the celebrated Artist.

A few Copies have been printed on large royal 8vo. with India Proofs, price 30s. elegantly bound in morocco.

*A limited number of the early Proofs may be had for illustrating Continental Works, and for Collectors of fine Engravings, &c. Price on India before the writing, 31s. 6d. India after the writing, 25s. Plain proofs, 18s. in a portfolio.

XIV.

In full gilt binding, elegantly embossed, price 12s.

FRIENDSHIP'S OFFERING FOR 1832.

The present Volume of this old-established and favourite Annual contains some of the most exquisite Embellishments that have ever appeared from the burins of our first Engravers, executed from celebrated Paintings by Sir THOMAS LAWRENCE, STOTHARD RICHTER, WOOD, PURSER, WESTALL, and other eminent Artists; while its carefully selected Literature sustains that high character of superior excellence for which this Annual has ever been distinguished.

"FRIENDSHIP'S OFFERING is the best of all the Annuals as to Name—the handsomest as to Binding—and the highest in literary lore and graphic embellishment."—Edinburgh Observer.

"The beautifully conceived lines on the presentation plate of this elegant volume render it a fit and appropriate present for every circumstance and situation in life; it is indeed an Offering which Friendship, Love, or Esteem may with the highest gratification, either present or receive, blending in itself all the exquisite beauties which the most refined art and literature of our country can supply. It is a gem fit for every drawing-room table and library in the kingdom."—Scotsman.

"This is the most exquisitely beautiful of the Annual Volumes for 1832. Rich, varied, and sparkling, alike in literature and graphic gems, FRIENDSHIP'S OFFERING is indeed well worthy of its kindly name and kindly purposes."

A few Sets of Proofs on India before the Letter, 31s. 6d. India after the Letter, 21s. French Proofs, 15s. Each size in a Portfolio.

XV.

A LITERARY PRESENT FOR THE LADIES.

Elegantly bound in morocco, uniquely embossed and gilt, price 12s.

THE COMIC OFFERING; or LADY'S MELANGE OF LITERARY MIRTH, FOR 1832; Edited by Miss L. H. SHERIDAN, and embellished with seventy original and most humorous Designs by various Comic Artists, with a Variety of facetious Contributions by the principal Female and other eminent writers of the day.

*A few Copies may be had of the COMIC OFFERING for 1831, price 12s. bound as above.

"The Comic Offering is a Lady's Book, and well does it merit that designation. Calculated for the boudoir in its purity of morals and refinement of taste, it is also a suitable ornament for the studio of the artist. Miss Sheridan has filled up a niche in our annual literature that was decidedly unoccupied—filled it with honour—and her efforts will, we are confident, not be overlooked by the 'gentle dames' for whose amusement they are so admirably calculated. The illustrations are numerous and beautiful, and the volume in every way calculated to brighten the pleasures of the Summer Bower, as well as of the Winter Fireside."—Courier.

"Those who are calculating on the means of furnishing their friends with plentiful banquet of amusement, must not be without this very attractive Annual. It is just such a collection as would keep half a score of faces cut out for laughing, in continual exercise of their propensity; so irresistibly droll are the pictorial designs—so admirably illustrative the literary descriptions both prose and verse."—Court Journal.

"A very clever and amusing companion, full of embellishments from the binding to the last page, and many of them very fanciful and ludicrous; the more so as being chiefly the production of a Female, who has displayed an exuberance of drollery, though limited to that delicacy which one of her sex, addressing herself to the rest, was bound to observe.—Literary Gazette.

"That which L. E. L. is in the world of sentiment, Miss Sheridan is in the world of fun—the absolute empress, unrivalled and unparalleled! The engraved drolleries of her work are exquisite, the literature is of the very first order. . . . This is certainly the most humorous and really droll of all the Comic Annuals."—World of Fashion.

PURSER'S SPLENDID VIEW OF EDINBURGH.

Just published, on a scale of 15 by 22 inches, price 10s. 6d.

A VIEW of EDINBURGH, from the TOP of ARTHUR'S SEAT. Beautifully engraved by R. G. REEVE, from the original

Drawing taken last Summer by WILLIAM PURSER, Esq.

"This noble View of Edinburgh is the Thirty-seventh Plate of the Publishers' Series of the Principal Towns in Scotland, and being the Capital, we may truly state, that it justly maintains its claim to be put at the head of them all. It is executed in a grand style of art, and we may compliment it as being indeed the Modern Athens, for it contains the most recent features of the Scottish Metropolis.—Mr. Purser has evinced a talent not inferior to Daniel in his judicious treatment of the whole."—Literary Gaz.

"This is the most comprehensive View that we have seen of the Modern Athens, for, without being a panorama, it shows the Old and New Town, including the surrounding country, the Firth, and the distant mountains of Fifehire,—forming altogether a beautiful picture of that romantic scene; and, when framed, will be an ornament that no man of taste need object to have hung up in his house."—Spectator.

RESEARCHES IN GREECE and the LEVANT: together with a Journal of a Visit to the Apocalyptic Churches, in 1826, and of a Tour in the Morea in 1828. By the Rev. JOHN HARTLEY, M.A., late Missionary in the Mediterranean. In Crown 8vo. price 6s. cloth.

CONVERSATIONS on RELIGIOUS PREPARATION for PESTILENCE, between the members of a family exposed to the great Plague of A.D. 1665. To which is prefixed an Account of a Family shut up in London during that awful visitation. Republished, with Notes and Observations, by JOHN SCOTT, M.A., Vicar of North Ferriby, and Minister of St. Mary's, Hull, &c. 12mo. price 3s. 6d. boards.

A Third Volume of the CONTINUATION of MILNER'S CHURCH HISTORY: containing the Sequel of the SWISS REFORMATION; including the latter years of Zuingli and Ecolampadius, and the entire History of Farel, CALVIN, and the Reformation of Geneva: with copious Notices of the Correspondence and other Writings of the several Reformers here mentioned. By the Rev. JOHN SCOTT, M.A., Vicar of North Ferriby, and Minister of St. Mary's, Hull.

A third edition, in octavo, price 12s. boards, Volume II. of

THE CONTINUATION of MILNER'S CHURCH HISTORY, comprising the sequel of the Lutheran Reformation, and the earlier period of the Reformation in Switzerland. By the Rev. JOHN SCOTT, M.A., Vicar of North Ferriby, and Minister of St. Mary's, Hull, &c.

A CHART of ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY, from the Christian Era to the present day. On the plan of the Stream of Time, but divided and measured by a scale of population, showing, with all attainable correctness, the relative proportions in each age—of Christianity, both apostolic and corrupted, Romanism, Mahomedanism, and Paganism; each Religion having a distinct and separate colour. On One large Sheet of drawing paper. Price 7s. coloured. Mounted on Rollers and varnished, price 14s.

There has lately been published a most useful Chart of Ecclesiastical History, on one large sheet, coloured. It is constructed somewhat upon the plan of the Stream of Time, with the difference, that the names and events inserted in it are for the most part connected with the interests of the Church of Christ; It indeed professes to comprise every fact of importance connected with Church History. We strongly recommend to our readers this ingenious and valuable synopsis of sacred history, both for their own libraries and for the instruction and entertainment of the younger members of their families. — Christian Observer, August, 1828.

VI.
In one vol. 8vo. price 10s. 6d. boards,
The MUSIC of the CHURCH considered in its various branches; congregational and choral: an historical and practical treatise, for the general reader. By JOHN ANTES LA TROBE, M.A., Curate of St. Peter's, Hereford.

VII.
A third edition, revised and enlarged, 12mo, Price 9s. boards,
The CHRISTIAN MINISTRY; with an inquiry into the Causes of want of Success; and with an especial reference to the Ministry of the Established Church. By the Rev. CHARLES BRIDGES, M.A., Vicar of Old Newton, Suffolk.

VIII.
The BOOK of the PROPHET ISAIAH: translated from the Hebrew; with Critical and Explanatory Notes, and Practical Remarks: to which is prefixed a Preliminary Dissertation on the Nature and Use of Prophecy. By the Rev. ALFRED JENOUR, Curate of Seaton and Harringworth, Northamptonshire. In two vols. 8vo. Price 24s. bds.

We feel much pleasure in announcing this Publication as deserving to rank high among works of its class. We think it deserving the attentive perusal of every one, and well fitted to be the corrective of the prevailing error of the day. — Dublin Christian Examiner, October.

IX.
ESSAYS on the Evidences, Doctrines, and Practical Operation of CHRISTIANITY. By JOSEPH JOHN GURNEY. Fourth edition, 12mo. price 6s. 6d.

A work, which is both luminous and comprehensive. We hail it as an example of unprejudiced discussion upon topics which are too apt to divide even good men, but on which agreement would be more attainable; if the love of disputation and the spirit of party were withdrawn. We hail it, not only for the information it contains, but for the spirit which it breathes. — Christian Observer, Sept. 1828.

Mr. J. J. Gurney, if he had been a clergyman instead of a Quaker, would have deserved a bishopric for his book on the 'Evidences of Christianity.' — Quarterly Review, Jan. 1831.

X.
Second edition, revised and corrected, 8vo. price 10s. 6d. boards,

MODERN JUDAISM; or, a Brief Account of the Opinions, Traditions, Rites, and Ceremonies of the Jews in Modern Times. By JOHN ALLEN.

I.

A HISTORICAL ATLAS. By EDWARD QUIN, Esq., M.A. of Magdalen Hall, Oxford, and Barrister at Law, of the Honourable Society of Lincoln's-inn. Being a Series of Maps of the world as known at different periods; constructed upon an uniform scale, and coloured according to the political changes of each period: Accompanied by a narrative of the leading events exhibited in the Maps; forming together a general view of Universal History. Imperial Quarto, price 8l. 10s. half-bound.

CRITICAL NOTICES.

New Monthly Magazine, March.

'We have seldom had the pleasure of reviewing a more ingenious, elegant, and at the same time philosophical and useful work. It is well worthy of public attention as a specimen of art, independently of its merits as an original and eminently useful auxiliary to the study of the most important branches of human knowledge.'

Christian Observer, January.

'Mr. Seeley has published a highly-useful series of twenty-one Maps, with Historical Illustrations by Mr. Quin. They are all on the same scale, and successively point out, from the Creation to the year 1828, the progress of Geographical Discovery, the rise and decay of Nations and Empires, and their Political Changes; so that, by merely glancing the eye on any Map, we discover the actual State of the World at its Date; and by comparison with any other, the alterations which have occurred; every place being in the same relative spot in the successive Plates, and the tints and colouring being significant, and connected with the accompanying Text, which contains a well-condensed Syllabus of Universal History. We know of no publication which forms a more valuable and interesting Companion for the Historical and Geographical Student, or for the instruction of Young Persons.'

Eclectic Review, December, 1830.

'The plan of this work is, as far as we are aware, as novel as it is ingenious. It is admirably adapted to facilitate the study of history to young persons. No memoria technica can be equal to lessons presented in a form which can hardly fail to impress even the imagination;—for these Maps have almost the interest of a picture, and the changes they represent resemble the shifting of a dramatic scene. Upon the whole, the work strongly recommends itself to both teachers and pupils. It is got up with great neatness—will be found very useful and convenient for the purpose of reference, and forms an admirable basis of a course of historical lectures or private study.'

Literary Gazette, October 9.

'The ingenious and beautiful work before us, is decidedly the best-constructed railway for the rapid and easy communication of extensive and accurate historical knowledge that we have met with, even in this age of improved mental as well as material machinery.'

'The Maps are twenty-one in number; and nothing can be more interesting and amusing than to turn them over, one after the other, and observe the gradual advance of civilization; from the Rembrandtish effects of the first, in which Eden is the only bright spot, amidst a mass of deep shadow, to the Rubenslike diffusion of light, and of gay colours, by which the world in its present state is represented. The descriptions contain a condensed, but perfectly intelligible, and, as far as our inspection allows us to judge, correct narrative of all the great contemporaneous events of history. Whoever reads them attentively, assisting his comprehension, and insuring his remembrance, by an examination of the accompanying Maps, will acquire a knowledge of general history possessed by few; and will be admirably qualified to prosecute, with advantage, more minute inquiries into the history of any country, or epoch, which may have peculiar claims on his curiosity.'

II.

AIDS TO DEVELOPEMENT, or Mental and Moral Instruction Exemplified; in Conversations between a Mother and her Children. Two vols. 12mo. Price 12s. boards.

'The author of the work before us has evidently applied a very sagacious and cultivated mind, with patient investigation, to the subjects here treated of; and the public have here the results of such long-continued and close application, laid before them in a plain and interesting manner,—a manner which is likely to be of singular utility to children and young persons; if read by themselves, as well as to parents.'—Evangelical Magazine, September, 1829.

'For this reason, as well as for the excellence of its design and general execution, we cordially recommend this work to those who think for themselves. The religious conversations are arranged with great skill, and as mere pieces of divinity, many of them are highly interesting.'—Eclectic Review, August.

THE SPECTATOR NEWSPAPER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

THE SPECTATOR is a Weekly Sheet of 24 folio pages, of News, Political Discussion, Literature, and General Information.

It combines the character of a Reporter of all Events with that of a Reflector upon all measures.

It not only collects, but it analyzes all the Topics of the Day.

When great affairs come under discussion, it sets to work its very extensive means to put together in the most interesting form all the Information that is to be had. For instance, in the case of Reform, it compiled with much labour, and at considerable cost, its Anatomy of the House of Commons; when new Taxes were to be proposed, the Analysis of the existing Taxation; at the General Elections, Tabular Returns, showing beforehand how the Divisions would fall, and in what ratio the Numbers and Property of the Reformers exceeded those of the other party; on the rejection of the Bill by the Lords, the Anatomy of the Peerage, with its various lists of Places, Pensions, Offices, &c. &c. &c.

The SPECTATOR is edited with a view to Family circulation. There is food for every palate. There is News for the Old Lady, Literature and Fine Arts for the Young One; the Father of the Family is presented with every subject that relates to his interests, national or individual, discussed or reported; while the pursuits, tastes, and pleasures of his Sons (if they be rational), are as sedulously catered for.

This comes, first, of the great size of the Paper; next of its plan; and next of its principle of condensation.

There is no class to which the SPECTATOR can come wrong: it is as well adapted for the Farmer as the Fine Gentleman, for the Mechanic as the Publicist, the Tradesman as the Magistrate or Clergyman.

The SPECTATOR is not merely a Weekly Paper, it is also a Sunday Instructor: while it embraces all that has happened during six days, it is more original and more various in fresh matter than the Daily Papers of any one day taken together.

The SPECTATOR is not a Party Paper; its Politics are National. It has striven earnestly for Reform, because Reform has become a National Cause; but even on this exciting question its impartiality is proved, for the sinister biases of the Reformers are as carefully looked to as those of the Anti-Reformers.—See the Anatomies of both Houses.

The SPECTATOR is higher-priced than some other Papers, because it costs the Proprietors more, and there is more for the reader's money. No expense is spared upon it; and the efforts that are made to insure as near an approach to a perfect Paper as possible, are unceasing.

All that the Proprietors ask (and perhaps their services in the Public Cause entitle them to claim it), is that it may be TRIED for a few weeks, by such persons as desire a copious Journal of the World's Proceedings for a Week, put into their hands every Sunday Morning.

Neatly printed in Twelve Cabinet Volumes, and embellished with Twenty-four beautiful Vignettes. Price 3s. in extra boards. Of the Prose, which forms Six Volumes, the two latter are Epistolary, and the last two of the Poetry are Translations.

These twelve volumes appear to be entirely novel in their contents, &c. not to republish anything that is to be found in the octavo or Sharpe's edition of Elegant Extracts; the selection is made with much judgment, and the whole is what the title purports—highly moral, instructive and entertaining.—Literary Gazette.

5. THE ARABIAN NIGHTS, in Three neat Pocket Volumes, with beautiful Vignettes. Price 9s. boards.

London: Charles Tilt, 86, Fleet Street.

1st vol. folio, containing 25 coloured Tables, 5s. half-bound in morocco,

ATLAS, HISTORIQUE et CHRONOLOGIQUE, des LITTÉRATURES, Anciennes et Modernes, des SCIENCES et des BEAUX ARTS. Par A. J. de MANCZ, Professor of History in the Academy of Paris, Librarian and Professor in the School of Fine Arts, &c. &c.

This Atlas is a vast repository of names, facts, dates, &c. &c. up to the present times, the knowledge of which is necessary in the study of Literary History, Chronology, Science, and the Fine Arts, both ancient and modern, executed on the plan of the celebrated Atlas of Leasse, to which it forms an essential companion. The author has compiled, in the form of tables, extensive and valuable stores of information, which, without these, one must have sacrificed a long life to collect. Our task of selection would be difficult, from the rich superabundance of materials which present themselves in every page. As a work of reference, we can foresee that it will find its way into every good library in the kingdom.

TO DETECT FRAUD.

PENCILS having Steel Points and White Metal for the body of the case substituted for Silver, are frauds on the Public.

To avoid these impositions, see that the pencil has the name 'S. Mordan and Co., Makers and Patentees,' on the body of the case, and that the case is all silver, or all gold.

To ensure the genuine Cumberland lead, and of a proper size to fit the pencil ('first observe,' whether you have been supplied with the genuine patent pencil case, which attention to the above marks will prove), see that each box has a yellow belt with the word 'warranted' on it, and a red sealing-wax impression bearing the initials S. M. and Co.

The public pay as much for the spurious steel pointed pencil cases as for the genuine silver and gold cases.

Shopkeepers in provincial towns would do well to observe the above marks, to prevent their being imposed upon, as daily complaints have been made by many persons at the Manufactory, 22, Castle-street, Finsbury, London, in consequence of the above impositions.

It is obvious why the spurious articles are pressed upon the shopkeeper's attention, as they yield a greater profit to the persons supplying them; this profit arises from the deterioration of the article, which is, of course, injurious to the retailers; and the public are also much inconvenienced in not being supplied with the genuine patent article.

NEW AND CHEAP EDITION OF HEDERIC'S LEXICON.

In One Vol. royal 8vo. containing 800 pages, 15s. half cloth, GRÆCUM LEXICON MANUALE; primum a B. HEDERICO institutum; mox assiduo Labore Sam. Patricii auctum myriade amplius Verborum; deinde innumeris Vitiis repurgatum, plurimisque novis significatibus verborum locupletatum, cura J. A. ERNESTI; atque iterum recensitum et quamplurimum in utraque parte auctum, a T. MORELL, S.T.P.

This work is beautifully printed in royal 8vo. from stereotype plates, after having been most carefully revised and corrected throughout by Mr. CRAIG and Mr. DUNCAN, of Edinburgh, who have inserted in the body of the work all the words which hitherto occupied the Appendix, corrected the Quotations from Authors, and added many new Examples from Apollonius Rhodius, Æschylus, Pindar, &c.

In announcing this new edition, the Publishers beg to state, they have so materially reduced the price as to render it the cheapest Lexicon published, and less than half the cost of any former edition.

GROVES'S GREEK AND ENGLISH LEXICON, comprising all the Words in the Writings of the most popular Greek Authors, in the Septuagint and New Testament, designed for the use of Schools, and the Undergraduate Course of a Collegiate Education, with an English and Greek Vocabulary. WORKS OF THE REV. E. BICKERSTETH

Second Edition, in 12mo. Price 9s. 6d. boards.

THE CHRISTIAN STUDENT.
 Designed to assist Christians in general in acquiring Religious Knowledge. With Lists of Book adapted to the various classes of society.

'The sound judgment and scriptural piety which characterize all Mr. Bickersteth's highly useful and popular publications, appear (on) conspicuously in the present volume. We truly it will be widely diffused and seriously weighed. It abounds in valuable remarks and apposite citations, all devoted to the glory of God, and the spiritual and eternal welfare of mankind.'—Christian Observer, September, 1828.

'To the really Christian student, Mr. Bickersteth's little work will be an invaluable present. Its character, as distinguished from all other works of the kind, and its applicability to every class of those who search the sacred oracles, will appear from a slight sketch of its contents. There are few students who will not receive most valuable suggestions, and find hints and plans proposed in a spirit of most unaffected piety, that must be useful to them.'—Dublin Christian Examiner, Oct. 1829.

Fourth Edition. 12mo. Price 5s. boards.

THE CHRISTIAN HEARER: a Treatise designed to show the Importance of hearing the Word, and to assist Christians to hear with Profit.

'The celebrity of Mr. Bickersteth's former works will prepare a numerous circle for entertaining favourably the present volume, which they will find to be in no respect inferior to the author's other productions. We have read every page with pleasure.'—Evangelical Magazine, March, 1826.

'This volume is designed to inculcate the general importance of hearing the word, and to give directions for hearing it aright. Like all the author's publications, it is plain, popular, and useful.'—Eclectic Review, May, 1826.

Eleventh Edition. 12mo. Price 5s. boards.

A TREATISE ON PRAYER; designed to promote the Spirit of Devotion. With a few Forms.

Fourteenth Edition. 12mo. Price 6s. boards.

A SCRIPTURE HELP; designed to assist in Reading the Bible profitably. With Maps and Engravings.

Eighth Edition. 12mo. Price 5s. boards.

A TREATISE on the LORD'S SUPPER, in Two Parts; designed as a Guide and Companion to the Holy Communion.

Fourth Edition. 18mo. Price 2s. in sheep.

foreign literature,—have been adventurously explored. On these, however, no greater faith has been placed than they strictly deserve; although, it is but fair to state, that they have frequently elucidated doubtful points, and clearly revealed circumstances and points of character, that have been dishonestly withheld, or wilfully misrepresented, by partial biographers. In many cases, reference has been made, with material advantage, to the existing relatives of departed worthies; and, in some, an inspection of important family papers has been obtained.

STRICT IMPARTIALITY forms a very material feature of the Work. Not only has there been no truckling to party feeling; but that lamentable transmission of error, from generation to generation,—arising from the ready faith reposed in the statements of distinguished authors,—has, by patient investigation and fearless honesty, in numerous cases, been checked. Laurels, originally awarded by private friendship, bigotted admiration, or political partisanship, are, in the present Work, torn from the brows of the undeserving, and transferred to those of such meritorious individuals as have been visited with obloquy, either through ignorance of their merits, personal pique, public clamour, or party bitterness. Many persons of great abilities have met with no literary advocates, although much admired by their talented cotemporaries; while others, of doubtful claims, have had their “nothings monstered” by adulatory biographers, although treated with apathetic indifference by those who were most competent to judge of their qualities:—an attempt has been made to remedy such evils in these Volumes; the judgment pronounced on each individual, being, it is sincerely hoped, commensurate with his merits, however it may differ from his standard reputation.

THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY MEMOIRS will be contained in Volume I. which will include the following Classes:—ROYAL FAMILY,—PRETENDERS AND THEIR ADHERENTS,—CHURCHMEN,—DISSENTERS,—and STATESMEN. It will be embellished with about One Hundred and Fifty Portraits on wood, in addition to a medallion Frontispiece, of George the First, finely engraved on steel.

EACH CLASS, IN EACH VOLUME, WILL BE COMPLETE, and comprise Lives of all its eminent characters, during the whole of the Four Reigns. The First Volume will consequently include, besides those of the Pretenders and their Adherents, Memoirs of the Royal Family, from GEORGE THE FIRST to the PRINCESS VICTORIA,—of Prelates and other celebrated Divines of the Established Church, from BURNET to HEBER and BLOMFIELD,—of Dissenters, from WATTS and WESLEY, to HALL and JAY,—and of Statesmen, from WALPOLE, BOLINGBROKE and their cotemporaries, to CANNING, GREY, LANSDOWNE, and PEEL.

THE ARMY, THE NAVY, AND THE BAR,—from MARLBOROUGH to WELLINGTON;—from LORD ORFORD and HOSIER, to NELSON, COCHRANE, and CODRINGTON;—from SOMERS to BROUGHAM, inclusive,—will form the contents of Volume II., which will appear in March.

The other Volumes are in a state of considerable forwardness, and will be published at intervals of Three Months each.

MESSRS. VIZETELLY, BRANSTON & CO.

RESPECTFULLY ANNOUNCE A NEW AND IMPORTANT BIOGRAPHICAL WORK, ENTITLED

THE GEORGIAN ERA;

COMPRISING

Memoirs of the most eminent Persons

WHO HAVE FLOURISHED IN GREAT BRITAIN, FROM THE ACCESSION OF GEORGE THE FIRST TO THE DEMISE OF GEORGE THE FOURTH:

IN FOUR VOLUMES, CROWN OCTAVO: HALF-A-GUINEA EACH.

The First Volume will be published in the course of January, 1832.

THERE is no subject more generally amusing, or more powerfully instructive than BIOGRAPHY:—it not only illustrates history, and the progress of art, science, and general improvement; but strikingly exemplifies the consequences of human conduct, under its various modifications; and combines the sterling value of Truth with the fascinations of Romance. A high degree of interest is attached to the Lives of eminent Persons who have flourished even at remote periods, or in foreign climes; but this interest becomes more intense, as the characters approximate to our own times, especially when they are natives of our own country.

Under this impression, the present Work has been undertaken. Contrasted with the AUGUSTAN or ELIZABETHAN, that which may be appropriately termed The GEORGIAN ERA, claims a decided superiority; being not only remarkable for the number of its ILLUSTRIOUS CHARACTERS, and its fertility in GREAT EVENTS, but possessing an immediate and personal influence on the existing community of Great Britain. It is marked by the important circumstance of a new reigning family having been called to the throne;—by the struggles of the Stuarts, and the intrigues of their adherents:—by political conflicts and polemical controversies of unusual obstinacy and duration;—by the prowess of the British arms; the establishment of a mighty empire in the east; the revolt of the American colonies; the overthrow of Napoleon; the great advancement of general knowledge; the amazing progress of scientific discovery; and the rapid improvement of all the arts of life.

The Publishers are impressed with a perfect conviction of the ample measure of justice which the present state of society demands. Such books only are remunerative, as offer to the purchaser a large quantity of production at a moderate expense; and profit must be sought in extensiveness of sale, rather than in costliness of price. But not only must the public be propitiated by quantity,—it is equally scrupulous as to quality. In these respects, the Work, to which attention is now solicited, it is confidently anticipated, will be found to have more than rivalled every it was written—for the instruction of the younger branches of the medical profession, but as equally useful to the young men of all professions, and as a work which may be perused with advantage even by those who have discovered the last and the most precious application of all our knowledge.”—Quarterly Review.

“ Now this is precisely the good office which, in our estimation, Dr A. has actually rendered to the disciples of that science of which he is himself so distinguished an ornament. In the very moderate compass of one octavo volume, he has placed within the reach of the medical student, as much sound metaphysic lore as any human being need give a rush to possess, unless he aspires to very high distinction in that peculiar line of investigation. He has divested his researches of all the frivolous trumpery in which the philosophers of former days were often in the habit of disguising their ambitious poverty. He has shown that, in this, as in other sciences, the grand object is to establish the universality of facts, and that science is successful and triumphant in proportion as she approximates to the accomplishment of this object. And, lastly, what is above all praise, he has exhibited philosophy as the handmaid of religion ; and has made it manifest that all the rays of knowledge naturally converge towards that one point in which is situated the throne of eternal and heavenly truth. All this he has done, with a degree of mastery which shows the amplitude of his resources ; and, at the same time, with that simplicity and modesty which are among the most engaging attributes of every superior mind. He professes not to offer any thing which has a claim to novelty or originality. His avowed object is merely to direct the inquiries of the younger part of his profession “ on a subject of great and general interest,” and of peculiar importance to the medical inquirer, namely, the philosophy of mind ; and, without formally assuming the character of a moral or religious lecturer, he has made his work auxiliary to the most sacred and majestic of all sciences. He has made it clear that sound metaphysical philosophy is not a knowledge which puffeth up : that on the contrary, its legitimate tendency is to chastise the arrogance of human wisdom, and to conduct us to that wisdom which is from above, and which is pure, and peaceable, and rich in all the fruits which can strengthen up the soul into eternal life.—But our limits admonish us that we must break off our converse with this candid, sagacious, and benevolent inquirer. We cannot, however, take leave of his work without expressing our reverence for the motives which prompted him to undertake it, and our admiration for the powers which have so nobly redeemed from loss and waste the fragments of time spared him from the distractions of a most extensive practice. We cordially wish our exhortations could reach those professional aspirants for whom it was compiled : for we should esteem it a proud distinction if our voice could persuade them to make this volume the companion of their studies ; and more especially, to take with them to the lecture, the hospital, and the dissecting-room, the sentiments, nay, if possible, the very words, of his final section, which exhibits a “ view of the qualities and acquirements which constitute a well regulated mind.”—British Critic.

"Dr ABERCROMBIE is already known to the public as a gentleman of the first eminence in his profession. The work before us proves him to possess an independent, vigorous, and practical mind, thoroughly conversant with the subjects it discusses, that enters ex animo into the spirit of inductive philosophy, and withal is deeply imbued with Christian piety. It is a volume calculated to render essential service to intellectual, medical, and theological science, and we have risen from the perusal of it with an earnest wish that it may find its way into the hands of every thinking man in the empire, be he a believer or an infidel. It abounds with interesting statement and powerful reasoning; and we confidently recommend it to our readers as a publication of no ordinary value—one of the few, compared with the numbers at present issuing from the press, which will long outlive the year of its appearance, and will be the more prized in proportion as its contents are known."—Dublin Christian Examiner.

"Dr ABERCROMBIE's interesting work is divided into the five following parts. 1. The Nature and Extent of our Knowledge of Mind. 2. The Origin of our Knowledge of Facts, relating both to Matter and Mind. This includes Sensation and Perception—Consciousness and Reflection—and Testimony. 3. The Intellectual operations, in the following order: Memory—Abstraction—Imagination—Reason or Judgment. Under this last are examined, the use of Reason in the investigation of Truth, including a concise system of Logic; and the use of Reason in correcting the impressions of the mind in regard to external things, containing a collection of many interesting facts and remarks on Dreaming—Somnambulism—Insanity—and Spectral Illusions. 4. Application of the rules of Philosophical investigation to medical science. And lastly, A view of the Qualities and Acquirements which constitute a well regulated mind. Of course we cannot enter upon any minute examination of these. They comprehend a system of Intellectual Philosophy. The whole is executed with great ability, and in a manner corresponding to the latest improvements of the science. We entertain no doubt of its becoming a popular book. And we can assure our fair readers, if any such have honoured us with perusal, that, under such a master, even they may now study metaphysics without danger of incurring what has been esteemed "the odious epithet" of bas-bleu. The whole is well digested and easily apprehended, requiring, in general, no dangerous knittings of the brow."—Presbyterian Review.

"Among Christian physicians, we are happy to class the author of the volume before us; who, after the publication of various important works in medicine, which have been received with much applause by the physicians of the Continent as well as of this country, has turned his attention to metaphysical subjects, and to inquiries into the intellectual powers, principally as bearing upon medical investigations; and more particularly intended for the benefit of the younger branches of the medical profession, for whose best interests he discovers the most commendable solicitude. He does not, like too many metaphysical writers, spend much of his work on disputed topics, or in supporting any particular theory of morals ; but stating what appears to him to be legitimate deductions from acknowledged facts, he has succeeded in giving a perspicuous summary of what Dr Chalmers, in his lectures, calls the orthodox system of moral philosophy, or that which is admitted by Mr Stewart, and the best writers of his school, as contrasted with the paradoxical views to be found in the writings of Hartley, Hume, Priestly, and their followers. This work supplies, in metaphysical and moral science, what the progress and accumulation of discovery had rendered a desideratum in most of the departments of knowledge."—Christian Instructor.

"BOOKS THAT YOU MAY CARRY TO THE FIRE, AND HOLD READILY IN YOUR HAND, ARE THE MOST USEFUL AFTER ALL. A MAN WILL OFTEN LOOK AT THEM, AND BE TEMPTED TO GO ON, WHEN HE WOULD HAVE BEEN FRIGHTENED AT BOOKS OF A LARGER SIZE, AND OF A MORE ERUDITE APPEARANCE."—DR. JOHNSON.

"Mr. MURRAY's Library.... A very excellent, and always entertaining Miscellany."—Edinburgh Review, No. 103.

"Mr. MURRAY's Family Library.... A title which, from the valuable and entertaining matter the collection contains, as well as from the careful style of its execution, it well deserves. No family, indeed, in which there are children to be brought up, ought to be without this Library, as it furnishes the readiest resources for that education which ought to accompany or succeed that of the boarding-school or the academy, and is infinitely more conducive than either to the cultivation of the intellect."—Monthly Review, Feb. 1821.

"La collection que fait paraître M. FRANCIS THE FIRST,

AN HISTORICAL DRAMA.

By FRANCES ANN KEMBLE. 8vo.

'It was written, we have been informed by persons who long ago perused the work in manuscript, several years before Miss Kemble appeared upon the stage, and at a time when she little anticipated the probability that she herself might be called upon to impersonate the conceptions of her own imagination. We believe that we are quite safe when we state that the drama, in its present form, was written when the authoress was not more than seventeen. In the skill and intricacy with which the more dramatic part of the plot is managed, she may fairly compete with the most ingenious playwrights of modern times; nor are the masculine strength, and sustained vigour of the language, breaking out occasionally into gleams of very sweet poetry, unworthy of the bold conception and powerful execution of the general design. Throughout there is that spirit and animation, without which neither forcible delineation of character nor cleverness of plot will excite or keep possession of the reader's mind. The tragedy is alive from the beginning to the end.'—Quarterly Review.

A COPIOUS GRAMMAR of the GREEK LANGUAGE.

By AUGUSTUS MATTHIÆ.

Translated from the German by EDWARD V. BLOMFIELD, M.A., late Fellow of Emanuel College, Cambridge.

FIFTH EDITION, thoroughly revised and greatly enlarged from the last Edition of the original, by JOHN KENRICK, M.A. In 2 vols. 8vo. 30s.

* * * This Work, which has been so widely circulated, and so highly approved in former Editions, has been entirely remodelled by the Author. Errors have been corrected and deficiencies supplied; so that in its present state it comprises every improvement in Greek Grammar which has been made since the publication of the First Edition.

Also,

VIEW OF THE MOTIONS OF THE HEAVENLY BODIES.

With a popular INTRODUCTION.

By MRS. SOMERVILLE. 8vo. 30s.

* Taken altogether, the production does honour to the age in which we live—but as the exclusive performance of a female, it must be regarded as a prodigy of intelligence and mental industry. It is a subject worthy of national congratulation, that a lady of extraordinary talents, and of sufficient ambition to trespass beyond the restraints imposed upon her sex, should enlist in the ranks of the missionaries of useful knowledge.'—Monthly Review, Jan., 1833.

LONDON, MARCH, 1832.

UNIFORM WITH THE WAVERLEY NOVELS.

This day is published, at only 6s. per Volume, neatly bound, a complete and uniform Edition of

THE FOUR SERIES OF THE ROMANCE OF HISTORY.

ENGLAND. By HENRY NEELE.

From the Norman Conquest to the Reformation. 3 vols. 18s.

FRANCE. By LEITCH RITCHIE.

From the Time of Charlemagne to the Reign of Louis XIV. 3 vols. 18s.

ITALY. By CHARLES MACFARLANE.

From the Lombard Epoch to the Seventeenth Century. 3 vols. 18s.

SPAIN. By M. TRUEBA.

From the Time of Roderick to the Seventeenth Century. 3 vols. 18s.

These Works illustrate the Romantic Annals of every Age between the Periods above mentioned, and comprise also a short History of each Country.

'The plan of the work is novel, and of a very interesting description. It is the realization of that which has been often said, and often felt,—that the annals with which the history of every country are thickly strewn, are in themselves far more romantic than the happiest inventions of the most ingenious novellists and poets.... They are valuable illustrations of manners, and striking commentaries on the history of the country.'—Times.

'The plan of this work is excellent.'—Literary Gazette.

New Supplies are now Ready of

THE GEOGRAPHICAL ANNUAL, 1832.

CONTAINING 100 STEEL ENGRAVINGS, BY STARLING.

'Of all the Annuals, this is unquestionably the most useful.'—New Monthly Magazine.

'This beautiful and most useful volume is a perfect picture of elegance.'—Literary Gazette.

'The utility of this valuable volume almost eclipses its beauty, in our estimation. It is an ornament for the boudoir or the drawing-room, while it is absolutely necessary for the study.'—Atlas.

'It far surpasses anything of the kind which we have seen.'—Monthly Review.

'An excellent little work, engraved with a clearness and correctness which is quite surprising. Travellers have a system of Geography and a complete Atlas, which they may carry in their pocket.'—Spectator.

'It is the most perfect gem which has ever been published.'—Bristol Journal.

Price, plain, 18s. bound; finely coloured, 21s.; in morocco, 3s. extra.

the First Volume of

THE GEORGIAN ERA. This volume comprises Memoirs of the most Eminent Persons who have flourished in Great Britain, from the Accession of George I. to the demise of George IV., arranged in the following classes: Royal Family—Pretenders and their Adherents—Statesmen—Churchmen and Dissenters; embellished with a beautiful Medallion Frontispiece on steel, and nearly One Hundred and Fifty Portraits on wood.

Volume II., comprising Naval and Military Commanders—Judges and Barristers—Physicians and Surgeons—will appear in April; and the two remaining Volumes at intervals of three months each.

'A production of infinite variety and entertainment.'—Lit. Gazette.

'Impartiality and fairness seem to be the Editor's characteristics. The volume is very closely as well as handsomely printed, and contains, though not in appearance large, an enormous quantity of matter.'—Spectator.

'The idea is certainly excellent, and the work is got up with great taste. The whole volume abounds in anecdote. It will be a delightful work for a country fire-side.'—Athenæum.

'The entire work will be found indispensable to every well-furnished library of English literature.'—Atlas.

THIRD EDITION.

Published this day, price 8s.

THE PROSPECTS OF BRITAIN.
By JAMES DOUGLAS, Esq. of Cavers.

'The pamphlet to which we now refer, contains a rapid sketch of the religious, the moral, the intellectual, and the political state of England. With the boldness of a Christian patriot, and with an enthusiasm which high principles alone can sustain, the author points out the corruptions which degrade our public institutions; he states and explains the means by which the national interests may be revived, and he unfolds the prospects which may still be cherished if these means shall be blessed with success.'—Brewster's Journal of Science for Jan. 1832.

This day is published, price 8s. in boards,
AN OUTLINE OF SEMATOLOGY; or Essay towards establishing a New Theory of Grammar, Logic, and Rhetoric.

. In this Work the Author proposes to explain Grammar, Logic, and Rhetoric, by the Science of Signs; to expose the vicious peculiarity of the Aristotelian Syllogism, which has lately found a new Champion in Dr. Whately; and to supply, on the subject of language, in its relation to the thinking process, what has been left imperfect by Locke, Dugald Stewart, Horne Tooke, &c.

Notices of this Work, in the highest degree favourable, will be found in the Atlas of March 13th, Literary Gazette of July 16th, the Monthly Review, the New Monthly Magazine for April, &c. &c.

London: printed for John Richardson, Royal Exchange.

PICKERING'S ALDINE EDITION
 OF THE
BRITISH POETS,
 VOL. XVIII., PRICE FIVE SHILLINGS, CONTAINING THE POEMS OF MILTON, Vol. II., WITH NOTES.

BY THE REV. JOHN MITFORD.

THIS is a very well arranged and well printed work. The editor and the bookseller have united in rendering the text worthy of public approbation. If they proceed in this spirit with the eminent poets of the land, we shall have a body of song such as no nation can equal, and printed with an elegance and accuracy of which we see too few examples.'—Athenæum.

'The Life of Milton, which occupies half of the first volume, is written by the Rev. John Mitford, who has spared no pains in the collection and collation of facts, and whose writings bear evidence of having looked more closely into the controversial works of Milton, and generally the theological and political discussions of his time, than any other biographer.'—Examiner.

The following have already appeared, and may be purchased separately :—

THE LATEST WORK ON SPAIN.

Two Volumes Octavo. Price 26s.

SPAIN in 1830. By HENRY D. INGLIS.

This work, the latest publication respecting the Peninsula, at present so full of political interest, contains, besides an interesting personal narrative, a view of social life, called by the Monthly Review 'the most correct and most ample yet published in any language;' a view of the state of parties, designated by the Athenæum, 'highly interesting and very impartially written;' curious and unknown details respecting convents and monastic life, and a variety of information, designated by the New Monthly Magazine, 'sound, original, valuable, and curious.'

Whittaker, Treacher, and Co. Ave Maria Lane.

In one thick volume 8vo., price 18s. Second Edition, enlarged, corrected, and improved,

A TREATISE ON POISONS in Relation to Medical Jurisprudence, Physiology, and the Practice of Physic. By R. CHRISTISON, M.D., Professor of Medical Jurisprudence and Police in the University of Edinburgh.

'To the medical jurist, from the novelty and practical bearing of the facts so copiously collected, it is indispensable. In short, it is beyond comparison the most valuable practical treatise on toxicology extant.'—London Medical and Physical Journal, No. 44.

'This is a standard publication; one of the most valuable and necessary which he can place in his library.'—Johnson's Medico-Chirurgical Review, No. 24.

'The work of which we here present the public with a full translation, is one of the greatest additions that has been made to the stores of medical, and especially of medico-legal literature; and we have no doubt that it will receive in Germany the same approbation with which it has been welcomed from all quarters in Britain. While the author has trod in the steps of Orfila, he has turned his attention in the most pointed manner to the phenomena produced by the various poisons in the living and dead body; and the scientific reader will soon be convinced that in these respects he has far overstepped his predecessor.'—From the announcement of the German Translation in Buchner's Repertorium.

'Dr. Christison's great work on Poisons, by far the best on Medical Jurisprudence in our language.'—Blackwood's Magazine.

Adam Black, Edinburgh; and Longman and Co., London.

able auxiliary; and as a book of reference, we are not acquainted with any modern compilation, that can be compared with it.'—Metropolitan Magazine.

'This work, by an arrangement equally simple and ingenious, gives, as it were, a local habitation in the memory to the names that we find scattered through the page of history,—there being no period, however remote, of which we may not acquire a correct idea by this truly beautiful work.'—Albion.

Continued success for upwards of two years has emboldened the Proprietor of

to make fresh exertions, and invest a larger capital, in rendering his Journal the most complete of the Monthly Publications of the kingdom. He has obtained the assistance of the first writers of the day in every department of Literature; among whom are individuals high in political office and competent to write, with the best possible information on the movements of parties, the external and domestic policy of the country, and the measures of the late and present Administrations. The Publisher proudly appeals to the contents of his volumes for the truth of this assertion. The Magazine will be found every way worthy of the perusal of every true lover of his country—of every man who feels interested for the preservation and welfare of THE CHURCH, THE KING, and THE CONSTITUTION.

With regard to literary merit, also, the Publisher courts examination. Reviews of all new works have been undertaken in the most fearless spirit of independence. This characteristic of his Magazine has raised him many enemies among dishonest critics, literary adventurers, and booksellers who make an impure livelihood by dealing out trash and garbage to the Public. Of all such, and in spite of their puny hostility, always has been, and will always continue, the avowed and mortal enemy. The Journal is not connected with any large publishing house, and the Public have therefore a guarantee that its opinions will neither be sold for lucre nor biased by self-interest. Amid the numerous assaults of its enemies—assaults which it only laughs at—this Magazine has made a successful stand for sound, honest, and wholesome criticism; and while the patronage of the Public increases, the zeal of the Publisher and the improvement of his pages shall increase in a corresponding degree.

In each Number will be found one or more Papers on Divinity and points of Doctrinal Controversy. Politics, Tales, Dramatic and Senatorial Strictures, Criticisms, Poetry, and Humorous and Satirical Compositions, make up the remainder of each Number. In addition to these are given full-length Sketches of the most prominent of our Literary Characters, with short Biographical and Descriptive Notices.

The following Portraits have already appeared:—

William Jerdan, Esq., Editor of the 'Literary Gazette.'
Thomas Campbell, Esq., late Editor of the 'New Monthly.'
John Gibson Lockhart, Esq., Editor of the 'Quarterly Review.'
Samuel Rogers, Esq., Author of 'Pleasures of Memory.'
Thomas Moore, Esq., Author of 'Lalla Rookh.'
Sir Walter Scott, Author of 'Waverley.'
John Galt, Esq., Author of a 'Life of Byron.'
Dr. Maginn, Co-Editor of the 'Standard.'
T. Crofton Croker, Esq., Author of the 'Irish Fairy Legends.'
Hon. Mrs. Norton, Author of the 'Undying One.'
Miss Mitford, Author of 'Our Village.'
Prof. Wilson, Editor of 'Blackwood's Magazine.'

Don Telesforo de Trueba y Cosio, Author of 'The Exquisite.'
Earl of Munster, Author of 'A Journey from India to England.'
Lord John Russell, Author of 'Memoirs of the Affairs of Europe.'
Right Hon. John Wilson Croker, Editor of 'Boswell's Johnson.'
Tydus-pooch-pooch, Translator of the 'Poetry of the Sandwich Islands.'
Washington Irving, Esq., Author of the 'Sketch Book.'
Lord Brougham and Vaux, Editor of 'The Times.'
Robert Montgomery, Esq., Author of 'Satan.'
James Hogg, Esq., Author of the 'Chaldee MSS.'

Of some of the Numbers, second, and of others third, editions have been required; and the work, from the commencement, either in Numbers, or bound in cloth and lettered, may now be had of the publisher, 215, Regent Street, London; Grant and Bolton, Dublin; John Anderson, Edinburgh; M'Phun, Glasgow; Grapel, Liverpool; Madden, Bristol; Collings, Bath; Savage, Cork; Stevenson, Cambridge; Talboys, Oxford; Galignani, Paris; Jackson, New York; or, by order, of any Bookseller, Post-Office Keeper, or Newsmen in England, Ireland, and Scotland; by whom, also, Subscribers' names are received, and the Numbers supplied monthly.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

THE MEMBER; an Auto-biography. Dedicated to WILLIAM HOLMES, Esq., M.P. By the Author of 'The Ayrshire Legatees.'

'We have here another specimen of Mr. Galt's dry humour and shrewd observation, in the doings and remarks of a Scots nabob during several sessions of Parliament, in which he was "The Member" for the borough of Frailtown.'—Literary Gazette, Jan. 28.

'We rejoice to see the pen of Mr. Galt dipped once more in the lively ink of imaginary biography. Who surpasses him in communicating to an ideal story the attraction of real and positive truth? We wish Mr. Galt would do nothing but write imaginary auto-biographies.'—Athenæum, Jan. 28.

PROSPECTUS
AN UNIFORM EDITION
OF
THE TALES AND NOVELS
OF
MARIA EDGEWORTH.

ILLUSTRATED WITH SUPERB ENGRAVINGS.

To be published in Monthly Volumes, of the Size and Price of the Waverley Novels.

A New Edition of the TALES and NOVELS of MISS EDGEWORTH being required, the Publishers have determined, in conformity with the present prevailing taste, to embellish it with Plates, illustrative of the Characters and the Stories, and to present them to the Public in Monthly Volumes.

The Series will consist of Castle Rackrent, Irish Bulls, The Moral Tales, Popular Tales, Tales of Fashionable Life, The Modern Griselda, Belinda, Leonora, Patronage, Harrington, and Ormond. It is not intended to include in it any of those excellent writings of Miss Edgeworth which are of a more juvenile character than the Moral Tales, a smaller size being deemed more appropriate. Of these a fitter opportunity for speaking will occur hereafter: at present we shall only say, that there are few persons who have not, in their earliest years, experienced the greatest pleasure, and imbibed the highest moral truths, from the perusal of the "Early Lessons," "The Parent's Assistant," &c.—"Rosamond and Frank," "The Little Dog Trusty," and "The Cherry Orchard," will not be easily forgotten by them; and in their after years they will delight to renew, and will profit by renewing, their early acquaintance, by a perusal of works from the same pen, but adapted to maturer age.

With respect to her works of higher pretensions, it may be justly said, that her TALES and NOVELS form a class by themselves. They are for the most part Irish; but without any of those savage features so painfully characteristic of the novels which, for the last few years, have turned on the circumstances of Ireland, or that admixture of foreign manners which is so striking in the works of Lady Morgan. They contain highly-finished pictures of fashionable and domestic life, and yet have few points of similarity, if any, to the novels of Hook, Bulwer, Lord Mulgrave, on one side, or Miss Ferier, Miss Austin, or Mrs. Brunton, on the other. Though they cannot be said, strictly, to be Historical, yet they will be found to resemble no contemporary works in the department of Romance so much as the earlier novels of the Author of Waverley. Sir Walter Scott, indeed, with his characteristic frankness, has acknowledged that his original idea, when he commenced his career as a novelist, was to be to Scotland what Miss Edgeworth was to Ireland—to pourtray peculiarities of manners belonging rather to the generation passing away than to that which now exists; and to give life to the national scenery, and permanence to the national characteristics of his countrymen. Waverley, Guy Mannering, Rob Roy—the novels to which Sir Walter Scott originally intended to have confined himself, bear, in their most striking features, a considerable likeness to Castle Rackrent, Ennui, Ormond, &c.; and the works of Miss Edgeworth will not suffer by a comparison which, to almost any other series, could not fail to be fatal; while they may also justly claim the merit of priority.

In depicting the strange varieties of Irish Character, whether grave or gay, she is confessedly without an equal; and when she puts her foot upon a soil foreign to her own, she does not tread it as a stranger. The same felicity which inspires her in the unequalled characters of Sir Phelim, King Corny, &c. presides over the pictures which, in "Patronage" and other works, she draws from the higher classes of English society. Her comic and playful satire ranks her high in the dominions of humour, while it is combined with a sterling common sense, and a power of picturesque description which seldom falls to the lot of the wit or the satirist. Her story-telling powers are admirable: who but herself could infuse so much grace and shrewdness into so small a compass as we find them in the Moral and Popular Tales, in "To-morrow," "Murad the Unlucky," and fifty others? It is, however, unnecessary now to eulogize the works of Miss Edgeworth: they have taken an enduring position in the literature of the country, and the Publishers of this Series give it to the world in a well-grounded confidence of its successful reception.

The Work will be very handsomely printed in eighteen Monthly Volumes, of the size of the Waverley Novels, and at 5s. each; but the Embellishments will be of the very first order, consisting of a Frontispiece and Vignette Title to each volume. They will be executed (on steel) by the most eminent Engravers, from Paintings wholly by HARVEY, who unquestionably is, and will ere long be universally acknowledged to be, in the first class of British Artists.

To delineate with accuracy the peculiar scenery of Ireland, and give to native character all its humour and truth, this talented artist has traversed many of the districts of Ireland, and is thus enabled to introduce into his fine drawing living characters, and much of the wild and beautiful landscape of the country.

The whole of the Works have undergone a careful Revision and Correction by the Author herself.

The first Volume, comprising "Castle Rackrent" and "Irish Bulls," will be published in April.

. Looking merely at its literary merits, this is a delightful book: considered merely with a view to its object, it is a very important one. Miss Edgeworth, in her "Harry and Lucy," makes use of fiction as the mere vehicle of instruction. This is no new undertaking, but it is the most successful we have ever met with. Nothing is so common as attempts of this kind, except in the failure of them, the young reader generally greedily devouring the invention, and leaving the instruction, if not untouched, at least untasted. Miss E. has managed the book before us with so much skill as to render this separation impossible: the business of the characters is the communication or the acquirement of knowledge, and one cannot follow them without becoming entangled in their pursuits. For evidence of its higher merits we therefore expect every body, young and old, to read this work, convinced as we are that there are few who will not profit in some particulars by it; and that every one who peruses it will do justice to the utility of its design, and the ingenuity with which it is executed.—London Magazine.

These tales are meant to be submitted to the young reader as an introduction to the study of Shakspeare, for which purpose his words are used whenever it seemed possible to bring them in; and in whatever has been added to give them the regular form of a connected story, diligent care has been taken to select such words as might least interrupt the effect of the beautiful English tongue in which he wrote; therefore words introduced into our language since his time have been as far as possible avoided.

BOUCHER'S GLOSSARY OF ARCHAIC AND PROVINCIAL WORDS.

PROPOSALS FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION;

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE DICTIONARIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE, PARTICULARLY THOSE OF

DR. JOHNSON AND DR. WEBSTER,

CONTAINING

1. A Large Collection of Words, occurring in early English Authors of reputation, not to be found in the Dictionaries of DR. JOHNSON and DR. WEBSTER, with Authorities and Illustrations;—
2. Additional Illustrations of some Words, which are found in those Dictionaries;—
3. A Large Collection of Words still used in many Parts of England, though not admitted into the Dictionaries,—relics of the old Language of the English Nation, with ample Illustrations;—
4. An Introductory Essay on the Origin and History of the English Language.

By the late REV. JONATHAN BOUCHER, A.M. and F.S.A.
Vicar of Epsom, in the County of Surrey.

TO BE EDITED BY THE REV. JOSEPH HUNTER, F.S.A.

THE name of MR. BOUCHER has been long known to the students in the English Language, as that of one, who devoted many years of his mature life to the particular study of it, and who pursued that study under very favorable circumstances.

He was a native of that part of England, where exist more remains of the language anciently spoken by all classes of persons, than in parts where a refinement, or a supposed refinement, has extended itself. He was a good classical scholar; and had an extensive acquaintance with the languages spoken by ruder nations, whence springs so much of our own. His knowledge of the congenerous languages of modern times was considerable. He had great industry, a mind singularly acute and penetrating, and a certain eager desire of knowledge, arising out of a love of the subject, which enabled him to overcome many difficulties, insuperable to a mind of a different cast.

MR. BOUCHER had also the advantages of a rich library, and of a large correspondence or personal intercourse with the men of his time, who were devoted to literary research; and especially with those, whose inquiries were directed towards subjects similar to his own. By these means he obtained innumerable hints and observations, often of great value; and from some of them, who resided in remote parts of the kingdom, he procured very large and valuable contributions to that portion of his work, which respected PROVINCIALISMS.

MR. BOUCHER's labors were not conducted on a desultory plan, but were directed towards a fixed and specific object. The Dictionary of DR. JOHNSON was then the only English Dictionary, which professed to exhibit the wealth of the English tongue. MR. BOUCHER saw the value of that Dictionary, as 'a Dictionary of the Language, as spoken and written by the 'best speakers, and best modern writers.' But he saw too that it wanted MANY words, which were as fairly entitled to the appellation of English as any of those, to which DR. JOHNSON had done such ample justice; and these words it was his object to collect and illustrate.

MR. BOUCHER took a wider range of illustration than the plan of DR. JOHNSON admitted. In a Prospectus, which he himself issued, he says that 'no inconsiderable part of his work relates to diet, dress, buildings, employments, sports, and amusements, municipal regulations, legal terms, religious ceremonies, names both of persons and places, popular customs; and in every department of them, one of my leading aims has been to show that the 'knowledge of words is neither the least compendious, nor the least sure way of coming to the knowledge of things. I have likewise ventured occasionally to introduce literary remarks and criticisms, illustrations of obscure and difficult passages in ancient English and Scottish Historians and Poets, and not a few on the Scriptures themselves.' All this is for the most part the result of original reading and thinking, and makes MR. BOUCHER's labors very valuable to the general, as well as to the philological antiquary, and indeed singularly attractive to readers of every class.

When MR. BOUCHER's Work was advancing to maturity, he issued Proposals for printing by Subscription in 2 vols. 4to. LINGUÆ ANGLICANÆ VETERIS THESAURUS, or A Glossary of the Ancient English Language. In a

* The full title of MR. BOUCHER's Work, as given in the Proposals, is this:—

"LINGUÆ ANGLICANÆ VETERIS THESAURUS, or A Glossary of the Ancient English Language, Comprising

"1. PROVINCIALISMS, or such old Words, as still exist in the various Dialects of the Provinces;—

"2. ARCHAISMS, or old Words, which being lost even to the Provinces, are now to be found only in old English and Scottish Writers.

"Intended to be a Supplement to DR. JOHNSON's Dictionary; and in Conjunction with that Work, to exhibit a Complete View of the Whole ENGLISH LANGUAGE."

very short time the names of nearly 800 persons were given; so high was the opinion then entertained of the value of MR. BOUCHER's researches. The Proposals were issued in 1802; and the first Part, consisting of six letters, would probably have appeared in 1804, 'had not,' as says one of his friends, 'death, which regards not the labors of the learned, deprived 'philologists of the gratification that was preparing for them.' A Specimen of the Work was printed in 1807, under the care of SIR FREDERICK MORTON EDEN, a friend of MR. BOUCHER, and a contributor to his stores: this consists only of the letter A. The value of this tract has long been known to all, who are curiously inquiring into the history and structure of our language, or into the manners and customs of the English Nation; and they concur in the opinion expressed by MR. TODD, in the Preface to his edition of DR. JOHNSON's Dictionary, that it abundantly, as well as most learnedly shows, how much remains to be done, in order to have a perfect view of the English Language.

A large portion of the Work was fairly transcribed for the press. The unfinished MS., together with a mass of correspondence, and of collections for that part of the alphabet which remained, have been ever since in the possession of the Author's family; and there was no probability that the Work would be completed and published when the Proprietors of the English Edition of DR. WEBSTER's Dictionary entered into a negotiation for the purchase of it, designing that it should appear in the same form as that Dictionary, and to serve as a Supplement to it, and also, as was the intention of the Author, as a Supplement to the Dictionary of DR. JOHNSON. This negotiation has been satisfactorily concluded, and they now announce the intention of publishing the Work in Parts, the first of which, it is proposed, shall appear on the first day of April, 1832.

With the view not only of completing the plan of MR. BOUCHER from the materials which he had collected, and in a great part arranged for publication, but also of giving to it the additional value of embodying the results of the labors of many investigators of ancient English philology since his time, the assistance has been engaged of the REV. JOSEPH HUNTER of Bath, a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, and Author of the "History of Hallamshire," the "Hallamshire Glossary," the "History of South-Yorkshire," and the "Correspondence of Ralph Thoresby," &c., a gentleman of well-known erudition, accuracy, and taste, who has long been engaged in similar pursuits, and has made large collections for the illustration of our ancient Language, which, together with communications from other sources, will be incorporated in the Work.

E. H. BARKER.

CONDITIONS

CONDITIONS OF PUBLICATION.

1. This Glossary will be printed in 4to. in a Style uniform with Dr. WEBSTER's Dictionary, to which it forms so valuable a Supplement.
2. It is expected that the Work will be completed in Eight Parts, of 15 Sheets each, but it shall not extend beyond Nine Parts.
3. The First Part will be published on the 1st of April, 1832; and the following Parts will be published at intervals of Two Months, till the Work is completed.
4. The Glossary will be published by Subscription, price 7s. for each Part to Subscribers, and 9s. to Non-Subscribers.
5. The Subscription will remain open until the Publication of the Fourth Part; and those Gentlemen who send in their names by that time, will have the opportunity offered to them of taking Dr. WEBSTER's Dictionary also on the Subscription-price.
6. A List of the Names of Subscribers will be printed with the Preface to the Work.
7. The Glossary will be printed at the Office of Mr. Richard Taylor, Red Lion Court, Fleet Street, of whose personal superintendence it will have the advantage; and Subscribers are requested to send their Names either direct, (by Letters post-paid,) or through their Booksellers to the Publishers,

DR. WEBSTER'S

DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE,

INTENDED TO EXHIBIT

1. The Origin and the Affinities of every English Word, as far as they have been ascertained, with its Primary Signification, as now generally established;—
2. The Orthography, and the Pronunciation of Words, as sanctioned by reputable Usage, and where this Usage is divided, as determinable by a reference to the Principle of Analogy;—
3. Accurate and Discriminating Definitions of Technical and Scientific Terms, with numerous Authorities and Illustrations. To which are prefixed, an Introductory Dissertation on the Origin, History, and Connection of the Languages of Western Asia and of Europe, and a Concise Grammar of the English Language.

It is not a mere improvement on JOHNSON'S Dictionary, but an original work, the labor of 40 years, and contains 12,000 words more than any other similar work. In respect to Etymologies and Affinities, it supplies the grand desideratum in English Lexicography.

OPINIONS.

'From a careful examination of the volumes now before the public, we do not hesitate to declare our conviction that a more important or a more interesting accession than this Library to our national literature has not taken place in modern times. No serious or well-arranged plan has been proposed, before this time, for placing the treasures of the classic writers in the hands of readers who were unacquainted with the original language in which they wrote. How easily such a plan could be accomplished—how admirably it could be executed—with what a well-founded assurance it might be undertaken, of producing good of every kind—solid instruction with the most ennobling delight—the volumes before us are at once the example and the proof. We might praise the elegance and accuracy of the work; but a feature of greater importance than is connected with external merits demands our warmest approbation,—we mean the exclusion of every thing offensive to virgin innocence. Thus, for the first time in the course of ages, all the intellectual splendors of Greece and Rome are opened to the modest contemplation of the gentler sex; and a lady can acknowledge an acquaintance with the treasures of ancient poetry without the smallest compromise of her delicacy.'—Monthly Review.

'We know of no periodical more richly deserving of patronage than the Family Classical Library; and we should esteem it a disgrace to any establishment for the education of either sex, in the library of which, this beautiful edition of the most approved translations of the ancients was not to be found.'—The Bee.

THEOPHRASTUS, with 50 Engravings.

'A better stage-coach companion, or one for a weary fireside on a wet day, we could not recommend to those who delight in studying the vast varieties of human character.'—Athenæum.

'Every one ought to read the 'Hints on the Individual Varieties of Human Nature,' which are the admirable additions of the present editor. We would gladly make extracts from this volume, did we not hope that some weight would be attached to our earnest recommendation of the work itself. The Classical Library, so edited and conducted, will find a place in every family of which the head is anxious for the well-being of its members.'—Atlas.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES.

Menage says, if all the books in the world were in the fire, there is not one which he would so eagerly snatch from the flames as Plutarch. That author never tires him; he reads him often, and always finds new beauties.

'Nearly every day furnishes us with occasion to lament that we were not born a quarter of a century later. ... On seeing this cheap and portable edition of Plutarch's Lives, it occurred to us how much anxiety it had cost us to become possessed of the abominable edition in six octavo volumes: guineas—several guineas—were to be accumulated, with privation from ordinary amusements and ordinary purchases and allowances: and here the young urchin—the heir of all our other knowledge to boot—comes in for a glorious Plutarch in exchange for a few shillings. ... Of all the writers of antiquity, Plutarch is the most modern: we are not only chiefly acquainted with him in youth, when gravity is so imposing, but he was, of all antique authors, the one who approached nearest to modern ideas of authorship. ... Montaigne confessed himself indebted to his father's readings of Plutarch for much of his character: in truth, these Lives have influenced most materially the more active portion of the lives of great men for many centuries. ... Let all persons, therefore, avail themselves of this opportunity of getting a good Plutarch—the famous old classical biographer—cheap.'—Spectator.

'Sealed as this work has been by the approbation of ages, it is superfluous to expatiate on claims of which the world are cognisant; but we may remark that as a mere treasury of graceful anecdote and sparkling repartee, it will amply reward the lightest description of reader for his pains in perusal. The records of modern wit and mirth have nothing more pungent than may be collected from these essays on genius and character.'—United Kingdom.

'Who, that reads at all, has not read Plutarch? and who, that has read him, does not return to him again and again with renewed delight? Plutarch is the idol of the school-boy, the pocket-companion of the lonely shepherd on the hill-side, and the friend and monitor of the warrior and statesman; and it is difficult to say which of these very dissimilar classes of readers profits most largely by his perusal.'—Western Luminary.

HORACE.

DIVINES

OF THE

CHURCH OF ENGLAND;

WITH

A LIFE OF EACH AUTHOR, A SUMMARY OF EACH SERMON, NOTES, &c.

BY THE REV. T. S. HUGHES, B.D.

OF EMMANUEL COLLEGE; EXAMINING CHAPLAIN TO THE BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH, AND LATE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE IN THE UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE.

Completed in Twenty-two Monthly Volumes, price 7s. 6d. extra bds., handsomely printed, and hot-pressed.

Each Work is preceded by a Biographical Memoir of its Author, comprising an account of the times in which he lived.

An Argument, or concise Summary of Contents, is prefixed to every Sermon, or Disquisition; so that not only direct access may be had to any portion required for perusal, but the Summary may be considered as a Skeleton calculated to assist the young Divine in Composition.

Notes are occasionally added; and to each Author is given an Index of those Scriptural Passages which have been commented on.

The Twenty-two Volumes contain the following Authors; which may be purchased separately:

SHERLOCK'S WORKS complete, in 5 vols.	HALL'S CONTEMPLATIONS, 3 Vols.
Dr. BARROW'S WORKS complete; including several ADDITIONAL SERMONS, from an unpublished MS. at Cambridge: 7 Vols.	DISCOURSES of Dr. W. S. POWELL and the Rev. J. FAWCETT, complete in one Vol.
The most POPULAR WORKS of JER. TAYLOR, 5 Vols.	OGDEN'S DISCOURSES, complete in one Vol.

OPINIONS.

'Each discourse is preceded by a neat summary, which, whilst it presents a specimen of a skeleton sermon, eminently calculated to assist the young divine in composition, enables the reader to perceive at a glance, as it were, the scope and design of the discourse, and to understand the subject treated of in the sermon much better than if he read it without having previously perused the analysis. We strongly recommend it to the religious world.'—Liverpool Albion.

'We know not whether this work be more important to the public generally, or to our young Divines, as models of Scriptural argumentation and composition.'—Lincoln Herald.

SHERLOCK.

'SHERLOCK was one of those Champions who could challenge like Goliath, and conquer like David. No better service could be rendered to the Christian world, than the republication of his admirable writings.'—Gentleman's Magazine.

BARROW.

It was the advice of Lord Chatham to his illustrious Son, to study the works of BARROW deeply and frequently; and it was the remark of the celebrated Bishop Warburton, that in reading BARROW he was obliged to think.

'The discourses of BARROW abound with beautiful ratiocination and eloquence. The Sermon on the Personification of the Holy Spirit is a specimen of the finest ornamental logic; and sure we are, that, as the school of WESLEY has introduced a frothy, whining declamation into modern sermons, so no archetypes can be better than SHERLOCK and BARROW adapted to modern taste. In truth, we are shocked to see how very declamatory and superficial, even insipid, has become pulpit oratory, not from incapacity in the authors, but (for the sake of popularity) from their imitation of trash which degrades men of education.'—Gentleman's Magazine.

JEREMY TAYLOR.

'We're we to choose the Theologian whose works we would be ready to present to the world as a favorite specimen of our pulpit oratory, and had it been our cue to establish a strong impression in our favor at the first onset, we would not have hesitated one moment about fixing on the illustrious JEREMY TAYLOR. How little is known, to ordinary readers, of the magnificent treasures which are in the pages of that man's writings! How little the world, that hangs on the accents of some pulping sonneteer of modern celebrity, dreams of the beautiful and balmy poetry, the melting tenderness of heart, the sweet melody of words, that constitute so much of the works of Taylor.'—Monthly Review.

'This is a noble and spirited undertaking. The volume before us, the fifteenth of the series, contains not only the richest treasures of theological wisdom, but also that 'well of English undefiled' of which every one should drink abundantly who wishes to know his own language in all its strength and purity. Among the great Divines of the English Church, Jeremy Taylor stands conspicuous. Inferior to none in learning, piety, and soundness of doctrine, he excels them all in a glowing eloquence, invigorated by power of thought, and embellished by the flowers of poetical fancy.'—Western Times.

POWELL.

'It would be impossible to produce a more eminent instance of the happy alliance of taste and genius with learning and good sense, than in the Sermons of Dr. Powell.'—Professor Mainwaring.

ABRIDGMENTS.

In one vol. Small 8vo. 4s. 6d. bound in cloth, with a Portrait of the Author,
PALEY'S MORAL AND POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY,
 ABRIDGED BY A MASTER OF ARTS OF CAMBRIDGE.

In one vol. Small 8vo. 3s. 6d. bound in cloth,
PALEY'S EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY,

BY THE SAME.

'All the arguments of the great philosopher are faithfully preserved, and nothing omitted for which Paley's work is worth perusing. To a considerable extent the language of the original is adhered to, and in some instances the progress of the argument materially assisted. Every interpolation of this or any other kind is distinguished by marks which will at once inform the reader of their source; and whenever the editor suspects that he has not correctly expressed the meaning of his author by the substituted language, he adds in a note the words of the original.'—Monthly Review.

'We only regret that we were born a generation too soon. This work, with its portrait and very excellent biographical sketch, will be welcome to many a freshman, either in or out of the Universities.'—Athenæum.

'This condensation of Locke (a very delicate and difficult task) is executed with great skill.'—Maidstone Gazette.

'Locke was the Father of Mental Philosophy; but it must be admitted that his work is now very much more diffuse than is necessary for the spirit of the times; and nearly all the principles which he had then to demonstrate are now universally admitted as axioms: this renders the work of condensing his essay pre-eminently useful—and we think the labor has been well bestowed.'—Western Times.

SHAKSPEARE,
WITH THE 160 ENGRAVINGS OF BOYDELL,
FOR £3. 15s. WHICH ORIGINALLY COST £95. AND LARGE PAPER £190.

A NEW AND IMPROVED EDITION OF THE PLAYS OF

SHAKSPEARE,

WITH 160 ILLUSTRATIONS; A NEW LIFE, AND FULL GLOSSARIAL NOTES.

EDITED BY A. J. VALPY, M.A., LATE FELLOW OF PEMB. COLL., OXFORD.

IN FIFTEEN MONTHLY VOLUMES, 5s. EACH,

UNIFORMLY WITH THE NEW EDITIONS OF BYRON AND SCOTT.

'Shakspeare was born evidently with an universal genius. His eyes glanced at all the varied aspects of life, and his fancy portrayed with equal talents the king on the throne, and the clown who crackles his chestnuts at the Christmas fire. The only one to whom I can at all compare him, is the wonderful Arabian Dervise, who dived into the body of each, and in that way became familiar with the thoughts and secrets of their hearts.'

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

NUMEROUS and varied as are the forms in which the Dramatic Works of SHAKSPEARE have appeared, it will be readily acknowledged that an improved edition, printed in the same form as the most popular productions of the present day, is still a desideratum.

In addition to the many advantages offered in this edition, it will be embellished with ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY ILLUSTRATIONS, equal to the style of Chalk Engraving, designed from the Plates in BOYDELL'S SHAKSPEARE, which was originally published at £95. and large paper £190; THE WHOLE OF WHICH will now be published at £3. 15s., and in a more convenient size.

GLOSSARIAL NOTES on all obsolete words will be placed at the bottom of the page; and a short HISTORICAL SKETCH prefixed to each Play. An Index to the most admired passages, on all subjects, will be given at the end, forming a complete reference to the BEAUTIES OF SHAKSPEARE.

This arrangement will render the present edition equal to any yet published; while the style of the Letter-press and the Illustrations, the convenience and portability of the form adopted, and the moderate terms on which it may be purchased, will merit the approbation of every admirer of Shakspeare.

The plan of POPE will be adopted throughout the work, who marked in his Edition all the passages with inverted commas that were considered the most striking and brilliant; so that the young reader would at once have his taste directed to, and his attention fixed on, the greatest beauties of the Author.

The publication will commence on the 1st of May, and will be delivered in 15 volumes at 5s. each, bound in cloth, with the Magazines.

Volume I. will contain the Tempest, Two Gentlemen of Verona, Twelfth Night, and a beautiful line engraving of the Author on steel.

Each Volume will contain on an average Ten Plates.

 THE PLATES may be had separately at 4s. per Number, or in Octavo, to illustrate other editions of Shakspeare, at 5s. 6d. per No.

OF

LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE FINE ARTS.

EDITED BY

THOMAS CAMPBELL, ESQ.

AUTHOR OF "THE PLEASURES OF HOPE,"

ASSISTED BY THE LEADING LITERARY CHARACTERS OF THE DAY.

The Number for March contains a great variety of Original Articles on subjects of striking interest, among which are—The Irish Church and her Tithes—A Good Story of a Glasgow Tailor, by the Ettrick Shepherd—Irish Sketches, No. 3: Malahide Castle, by Lady Morgan—Lines (Impromptu) by T. Campbell, Esq.: A Benediction on Children—Present State of Trade in the Metropolis—Is the Epidemic Cholera in London?—The Simpkin Papers: Perceval and the Tory Saints, Irving Correspondence, &c.—Oswald the Blighted, a Tale of Ayrshire—Bank of England: Commerce, Currency, and Finance—The New Tory Guide: Ultra Popinjay to his uncle Barnabas—Dialogues of the Deck, No. II.: the March-o'-Mind, or Intellect Afloat; by the Author of "Tales of the Tar"—Old English Music—Clavering's Auto-Biography, containing Opinions, Characters, &c. of his Contemporaries—Executions in England—The Past Year—The General Fast: an Ode to the Right Honourable the Ultra-Tory Saints—Letter on the Cholera, by a Physician—With Reviews of Gilfillan's Scottish Songs—Norman Abbey—Eugene Aram—Legends and Stories of Ireland—Catherine of Cleves, and Hernani, and other New Publications; Original Articles, by distinguished Writers, on the Drama, the Fine Arts, Music, &c.; and a great variety of Miscellaneous Information.

The preceding Numbers of this established Journal contain admired Poems by Thomas Campbell, Esq.; James Montgomery, Esq. of Sheffield; Allan Cunningham, Esq.; with valuable Contributions by the Author of "Newton Forster," by Lady Morgan, by the Author of "The Naval Sketch Book," the Author of "The Kuzzilbash," "Spain in 1830," &c. &c.

Published by James Cochrane & Co., 11, Waterloo Place, Pall Mall; and sold by Bell and Bradfute, Edinburgh; Smith and Son, Glasgow; Wakeman, Dublin; and by all Booksellers in the United Kingdom.

Vols. I. and II., containing the first eight Numbers, may be had handsomely bound in canvass, price 14s. each.

"A union of very clever men may produce a work that people must buy; and such men are likely enough to join under the banners of a name that adds lustre to periodical literature. The ground on which Mr. Campbell has started is independence: his intentions are good, his public views liberal, his spirit energetic and manly."—Spectator.

"The literary articles of 'the Metropolitan' are of a permanent and useful character. The general contents of magazines will bear no comparison with the contributions in this periodical by Campbell and Montgomery; and the poems of 'Poland' and the 'View of St. Leonard's,' (since published separately,) as much transcend the usual love-sick ditties and sentimental stanzas in those publications, as light does darkness. 'The Metropolitan' is an honor to the periodical literature of our country. Its criticism, too, we should add, is impartial and just."—Wolverhampton Chronicle.

"Starting, as it did, under the guidance of the eminently gifted 'Bard of Hope,' whose writings, political as well as poetical, have shed a halo round the literature of his country; and at once avowing, with a boldness and nerve which cannot be sufficiently commended, that, in all circumstances, the new Magazine would act upon principles of stern independence, there was little to fear as to its future success. The Metropolitan has been exceedingly felicitous in the choice and arrangement of its subjects—exhibiting an admirable combination of the grave and the gay—a very judicious admixture of the dulce et utile—the strength, and nerve, and freshness of ripened manhood. Literature, Science, the Fine Arts, Commerce, and Trade, each find a place in its pages, and are each discussed with no common ability, and in a spirit which must command attention, and ensure the approbation of all classes of the reading and thinking portion of the community.”—Glasgow Courier.

On the 15th of March will be published, to be completed in Twelve Volumes, one every other Month, printed uniformly with the Waverley Novels,

THE name of the far-famed Ettrick Shepherd is a guarantee for the pre-eminent claims of these volumes to the attention and patronage of the public.

The writings, genius, and character of Mr. Hogg are now co-extensive with the national feeling; and many of his works having appeared in detached or fugitive forms, the Publishers have prevailed on him to collect the whole in a consecutive and uniform Series, and to introduce various Originals, neither inconsiderable in extent nor less valuable and interesting than others which have already appeared.

It must be unnecessary to enlarge on the nature and pretensions of the works in question. They consist of effective Stories drawn from the exhaustless mines of real character in districts as remarkable for their originality as for their spirit of romance: and to the whole will be prefixed an ORIGINAL AUTO-BIOGRAPHY of the Author, detailing, with his characteristic energies, the union of literary occupation with the laborious duties of agricultural and pastoral life.

The Twelve Volumes will consist rather of a Selection from the Author's most approved Writings, interspersed with many Original Tales, than of an assemblage of all he has written; and he has been induced to make it, not as an ostentatious display, but as an Inheritance to his Children, and a Legacy to his Country.

* * * From the above Work (lately completed in Sixteen Parts, Price 2s. 6d. each) having fallen into the hands of different Proprietors, the Publisher is enabled to offer it at the present reduced price, being little more than half the original cost; and from the immense care and talent employed, it is confidently hoped that a more beautiful work on Natural History was never offered to the Public, and certainly never before at so extremely moderate a price.

Critical Notices of the Work.

"This is a work which does credit to all the parties engaged in its production. The printing is an elegant specimen of typography; the scientific descriptions are free from ambiguity, and highly interesting; and the graphic representations of the animals, and vignette embellishments, engraved on wood by Messrs. Branston and Wright, from drawings by Mr. Harvey, for spirited action, faithfulness of character, as well in the general figure as in the various surfaces, good taste, and freedom of execution, have never been surpassed."—EXAMINER.

"This beautiful work we have frequently noticed as its parts appeared, and we need only say that it is altogether, in design and in execution, as interesting a publication as could well be imagined. The wood engravings are the perfection of art: the animals scientifically correct, yet spirited, and the tail-pieces admirable.—In short, these volumes are an honour to the Zoological Society, and to all those who have been concerned in producing them in their handsome form."—LITERARY GAZETTE.

"Whoever has visited the Gardens, will, if he can afford it, do well to purchase these elegant volumes."—ECCLECTIC REVIEW.

"There is a delightful work entitled 'The Gardens and Menagerie of the Zoological Society delineated.' This book is published 'with the sanction of the Council, under the superintendence of the Secretary, and Vice-Secretary of the Society.' It is filled with exquisite engravings on wood, by Messrs. Branston and Wright, from highly finished drawings executed by Mr. Harvey, with the living originals in the gardens before him.

"Persons of taste, not having the fear of the Zoological Society before their eyes, mercilessly covet the rich embellishments of 'The Gardens and Menagerie' for their ornamental albums. Indeed, this work, which is in two handsome octavo volumes, with above two hundred and twenty delicious engravings, and which may be had for four-and-twenty shillings, by merely ordering it of any bookseller in the kingdom, is irresistible; and,—read it, readers, and tremble—many a copy has already fallen under the scissors of scrap-book makers.

"Place these volumes before a fair 'collector of prints,'—with flashing eyes she 'Spreads the glittering forx wide,' and, in a moment, the 'Esquimaux dogs' and 'Macaws,' and other desirable creatures, are fluttered away from the 'superintendence of the society's secretary and vice-secretary,' and find themselves—without 'the sanction of the council'—within the lady's covers.

"The masterly engravings, with Whittingham's fine printing of this work, which is so enticing, and which is afforded at so low a price, obviously cost several thousand pounds."—HONE'S YEAR BOOK.

"These beautiful volumes, we are told, were executed under the especial sanction of the Zoological Council,—the letter-press is, in fact, from the pen of the Vice-Secretary, and the publication may, therefore, be regarded as the 'Transactions' of the Society. Of course every Fellow has possessed himself of a copy; and if the favour of the public should prove at all in proportion to the patronage of the Gardens, the work must become eminently successful. And seldom has there been a book more worthy of reward than the present, which has been undertaken and prosecuted with a spirit highly praiseworthy in these peculiar times. The engravings of the animals are faithfully characteristic of the originals. You have no teasing doubts whether the animal before you goes about in a shaggy dreadnought, or a sleek mohair gambroon—in a plain suit of plush, or fustian—or a court-dress of velvet. There is no mistaking the Coatia. You need not wonder, as in some old plates, which is the buffalo, and which the bear,—or exclaim with Ferring, 'What a shocking bad beaver!' There they are—in their habits as they live—shaggy, woolly, downy, bristly, or plummy.

"The Birds, which form the second volume now published, are—(without any Puffin)—a beautiful and interesting series. The two volumes together, may be looked upon as the travelling caravans of the Society, for exhibiting their menagerie all over the country—and Mr. Bennet shows up the specimens with great science and a correct diction—so much so, indeed, that you resolve, like Puff, 'not to be too sure that he is a beef-eater.' For our own parts, having a really high opinion of the merits of the collection, we cheerfully take our stand outside, and have great pleasure in being able to blow an honest trumpet, and advise the public to pay their money and 'walk in! walk in!'—ATHENÆUM.

PREPARING FOR PUBLICATION.

ENTIRE WORKS
OF THE
REV. CHARLES SIMEON, M.A.

Senior Fellow of King's College, Cambridge.

THE Work will contain all that has been published by him under the different titles of HELPS TO COMPOSITION, HORÆ HOMILETICÆ, and the APPENDIX to the HORÆ; comprehending about Two Thousand Five Hundred and Sixty Discourses: amongst which are, his Course of Sermons on the Excellency of the Liturgy; another Course entitled, An Appeal to Men of Wisdom and Candour; his Courses of Sermons on the Law,—on the Gospel,—on the Offices of the Holy Spirit; and a considerable number of other Sermons, (some of them preached before the University of Cambridge,) never before published.

The Discourses are now digested into one continued Series, forming a Commentary upon the Holy Scriptures, from Genesis to Revelations, with this advantage, that it is peculiarly adapted to be read in Families.

Every Reference, throughout the whole, has been collated with the Bible, in order to obtain perfect accuracy: and copious INDEXES will be given, applicable to every part of the Work, prepared by the Rev. THOMAS HARTWELL HORNE.

THE WHOLE WILL BE PUBLISHED UNDER THE TITLE OF, having been written very much with the same view as THE HOMILIES of the Church of England were, and precisely in accordance with the doctrines there promulgated.

HORÆ HOMILETICÆ;

An improved Edition of CLAUDE'S ESSAY ON THE COMPOSITION OF A SERMON, will be annexed.

[Turn over.]

THE WHOLE WILL BE STEREOTYPED.

The Work will consist of Twenty-one Volumes, Octavo.

To Subscribers it will be delivered in four portions; three of Five Volumes, and one of six, at Ten Shillings per volume.

It is expected that the first Five Volumes will be ready for delivery early in May, and that the whole will be completed in sixteen months.

A few copies will be printed on Royal paper, at Eighteen Guineas the set.

Subscribers' Names will be received by the Publishers, or through the medium of any Bookseller in Town or Country.

A list of Subscribers will be printed in the last volume.

THE FOUR SERMONS ON

THE OFFICES OF THE HOLY SPIRIT,

Preached before the University of Cambridge, in the month of November, 1831, are just published, price 2s. 6d.

A FEW COPIES OF

THE APPENDIX TO THE HORÆ,

In Six Volumes, remain unsold, at Three Guineas in boards. And those Persons who wish to complete their sets, are requested to make early application.

A Series of Short Articles, to appear occasionally in Numbers designed for General Circulation.

THE several Numbers of the small publication, of which the first is here offered to the readers notice, having been compiled and edited free of expense, any profits arising from the sale will be appropriated in furtherance of the important object undertaken by the Society, namely, the Diffusion, extensively and by various means, of such information as may conduce to a real and substantial amelioration of our Criminal Laws.

It is an admitted fact that the Penal Code of Great Britain is, at the present moment, by far the most sanguinary of any in Europe, and a reproach to her civilization in the eyes of surrounding countries. Is this reproach ever to be wiped away? — —“Proud of her pre-eminence in Christian intelligence—is this a situation for England to stand in with respect to Criminal Legislation? First of the nations in knowledge, commerce, and mechanic arts—is she to be, contentedly the last in the science of Criminal Jurisprudence?”*

An effort—united and extensive,† must be made to remove this national disgrace, towards which the Society now announced will contribute its humble share of labour.

In aid of a work which so strongly commends itself to every well-wisher of his country, Donations and Subscriptions will be received by the Committee, through their Treasurer, and the Bankers (Page 2.)

PUNISHMENT OF DEATH.

No. 1.

April 1831.—The following memorable speech was delivered in the House of Commons, in 1777. The alterations since made in the law, have, upon the whole, done mischief rather than good, inasmuch as they have led the public to believe that our criminal code has been made conformable with the civilization of the present day, although nothing can be a greater delusion. The Courier of 17th March, 1831, states that the number of persons sentenced to death in England and Wales, during the last seven years, is 8,781. The number executed, 407.

SPEECH OF THE RIGHT HON. SIR W. MEREDITH, BART. &c.

Execution—affecting case of a young woman under nineteen, for a theft committed under circumstances of the most appalling distress.

I AGREE with my honourable friend (Mr. Combe) that no greater crime can be committed than the wilful setting fire to merchant ships, which may endanger not only lives and properties, but public safety. I should think this crime, above all others, fit to be punished with death, if I could suppose the infliction of death at all useful in the prevention of crimes.

But in subjects of this nature, we are to consider, not what the individual is, nor what he may have done; we are to consider only what is right for public example, and private safety.

Whether hanging ever did, or can, answer any good purpose, I doubt: but the cruel exhibition of every execution day, is a proof that hanging carries no terror with it. And I am confident that every new sanguinary law operates as an encouragement to commit capital offences; for it is not the mode, but the certainty of punishment, that creates terror. What men know they must endure, they fear; what they think they can escape, they despise. The multiplicity of our hanging laws has produced two things; frequency of condemnation, and frequent pardons. As hope is the first and greatest spring of action, if it were so, that out of twenty convicts, one only was to be pardoned, the thief would say, "Why may not I be that one?" But since, as our laws are actually administered, not one in twenty is executed, the thief acts on the chance of twenty to one in his favour, he acts on a fair and reasonable presumption of indemnity: and I verily believe, that the confident hope of indemnity is the cause of nineteen in twenty robberies that are committed.

But if we look to the executions themselves, what example do they give? The thief dies either hardened, or penitent. We are not to consider such reflections as occur to reasonable and good men, but such impressions as are made on the thoughtless, the desperate, and the wicked. These men look on the hardened villain with envy and admiration. All that admiration and contempt of death with which heroes and martyrs inspire good men in a good cause, the abandoned villain feels in seeing a desperado like himself meet death with intrepidity.* The penitent thief, on the other hand, often makes the sober villain think in this way; himself oppressed with poverty and want, he sees a man die with that penitence which promises pardon for his sins here, and happiness hereafter; straight he thinks, that by robbery, forgery, or murder, he can relieve all his wants; and if he be brought to justice, the punishment will be short and trifling, and the reward eternal.

Even in crimes which are seldom or never pardoned, death is no prevention. Housebreakers, forgers, and coiners, are sure to be hanged: yet housebreaking, forgery, and coining, are the very crimes which are oftenest committed. Strange it is, that in the case of blood, of which we ought to be most tender, we should still go on, against reason and against experience, to make unavailing slaughter of our fellow-creatures. A recent event has proved that policy will do what

* May 21, 1831. In printing a second edition, we insert, in confirmation of this sentiment of Sir William Meredith, the following anecdote of a criminal named Campbell, executed only a few days ago, at Glasgow, for Housebreaking.

On receiving sentence of death on a previous trial, the criminal thus addressed the Court—"I have your good will, my Lord: death is sweeter than confinement: cowards die many times—I will die but once." (See Glasgow Chronicle of May 18, 1831.)

blood cannot do.—I mean the late regulation of the coinage. Thirty years together men were continually hanged for coining; still it went on: but on the new regulation of the gold coin, it ceased. This event proves these two things: the efficacy of police, and the inefficacy of hanging. But, is it not very extraordinary, that since the regulation of the gold coin, an act has passed, making it treason to coin silver? But has it stopped the coining of silver? On the contrary, do you not hear of it more than ever? It seems as if the law and the crime bore the same date. I do not know what the honourable member thinks who brought in the bill; but perhaps some feelings may come across his mind, when he sees how many lives he is taking away to no purpose. Had it been fairly stated, and specifically pointed out, what the mischief in coining silver in the utmost extent is, that hanging bill might not have been so readily adopted; under the name of treason it found an easy passage. I, indeed, have always understood treason to be nothing less than some act or conspiracy against the life or honour of the King, and the safety of the State; but what the King or State can suffer by my taking now and then a bad sixpence, or a bad shilling, I cannot imagine.

By this nickname of treason, however, there lies at this moment in Newgate, under sentence to be burnt alive, a girl just turned of fourteen; at her master's bidding, she hid some white-washed farthings behind her stays, on which the jury found her guilty, as an accomplice with her master in the treason. The master was hanged last Wednesday; and the faggots all lay ready—no reprieve came till just as the cart was setting out, and the girl would have been burnt alive* on the same day, had it not been for the humane but casual interference of Lord Weymouth. ———! Sir, are we taught to execrate the fires of Smithfield, and are we lighting them now to burn a poor harmless child for hiding a white-washed farthing! And yet this barbarous sentence, which ought to make men shudder at the thought of shedding blood for such trivial causes, is brought as a reason for more hanging and burning. It was recommended to me not many days ago, to bring in a bill to make it treason to coin copper, as well as gold and silver. Yet, in the formation of these sanguinary laws, humanity, religion, and policy, are thrown out of the question. This one wise argument is always sufficient; if you hang for one fault, why not for another? If for stealing a sheep, why not for a cow or a horse? If for a shilling, why not for a handkerchief that is worth eighteen pence? and so on. We therefore ought to oppose the increase of these new laws; the more, because every fresh one begets twenty others.

When a member of parliament brings in a new hanging law, he begins with mentioning some injury that may be done to private property, for which a man is not yet liable to be hanged; and then proposes the gallows as the specific and infallible means of cure and prevention. But the bill, in progress of time, makes crimes capital, that scarce deserve whipping. For instance, the shoplifting act was to prevent bankers, and silversmiths' and other shops, where there are commonly goods of great value, from being robbed; but it goes so far as to make it death to lift any thing off a counter with intent to steal.

Under this act, one Mary Jones was executed, whose case I shall just mention; it was at the time when press-warrants were issued, on the alarm about Falkland Islands. The woman's husband was pressed, their goods seized for some debt of his, and she, with two small children, turned into the streets a-begging. 'Tis a circumstance not to be forgotten, that she was very young (under nineteen) and most remarkably handsome. She went to a linen-draper's shop, took some coarse linen off the counter, and slipped it under her cloak; the shopman saw her, and she laid it down: for this she was hanged. Her defence was (I have the trial in my pocket) "that she had lived in credit and wanted for nothing, till a press-gang came and stole her husband from her; but since then, she had no bed to lie on; nothing to give her children to eat; and they were almost naked; and perhaps she might have done something wrong, for she hardly knew what she did." The parish officers testified the Execution of a young woman, for a theft committed under circumstances of the most appalling distress.

† The law, with regard to the offence of privately stealing in a shop, has since undergone several alterations, and Mr. Peel having repealed the former statutes by the 7th and 8th Geo. IV, and introduced no new enactment to supply their place, the offence of "Shoplifting" appears to be no longer known to the laws of England as a distinct species of larceny.

* At the present time (1832) this girl, instead of being burned—would be hanged,—that being the only alteration which the law in that respect has undergone.

truth of this story. But it seems there had been a good deal of shoplifting about Ludgate: an example was thought necessary; and this woman was hanged for the comfort and satisfaction of some shopkeepers in Ludgate-street. When brought to receive sentence, she behaved in such a frantic manner, as proved her mind to be in a distracted and desponding state; and the child was sucking at her breast when she set out for Tyburn [gallows.]

Let us reflect a little on this woman's fate. The poet says, "An honest man's the noblest work of God." He might have said, with equal truth, that a beautiful woman's the noblest work of God.

But for what cause was God's creation robbed of this its noblest work? It was for no injury, but for a mere attempt to clothe two naked children by unlawful means. Compare this with what the State did, and what the law did. The State bereaved the woman of her husband, and the children of a father, who was all their support; the law deprived the woman of her life, and the children of their remaining parent, exposing them to every danger, insult, and merciless treatment that destitute and helpless orphans suffer. Take all the circumstances together, I do not believe that a fouler murder was ever committed against law; than the murder of this woman BY LAW. Some who hear me are perhaps blaming the judges, the jury, the hangman; but neither judge, jury, nor hangman, is to blame; they are ministerial agents; the true hangman is the member of parliament; he who frames the bloody law, is answerable for the blood that is shed under it.

But there is a further consideration still: Dying as these unhappy wretches often do, who knows what their future lot may be!—Perhaps, my honorable friend who moves this bill, has not yet considered himself in the light of an executioner; no man has more humanity, no man a stronger sense of religion than himself; and I verily believe that at this moment, he wishes as little success to his hanging law as I do. His nature must recoil at making himself the cause, not only of shedding the blood, but perhaps destroying the soul of his fellow-creatures!

But the wretches who die are not the only sufferers; there are more and greater objects of compassion still: I mean the surviving relations and friends. Who knows how many innocent children we may be dooming to ignominy and wretchedness! Who knows how many widows' hearts we may break with grief!

—how many grey hairs of parents we may bring with sorrow to the grave!

The Mosaic law ordained, that for a sheep or an ox, four and five fold should be restored: and for robbing a house, double; that is, one fold for reparation, the rest for example; and the forfeiture was greater, as the property was more exposed. If the thief came by night, it was lawful to kill him; but if he came by day, he was only to make restitution; and if he had nothing, he was to be sold for his theft. This is all that God required in felonies, nor can I find in history any sample of such laws as ours, except a code that was framed at Athens by Draco. He made every offence capital, upon this modern way of reasoning; "That petty crimes deserved death, and he knew nothing worse for the 'greatest.'" His laws, it is said, were written, not with ink, but with blood; but they were of short duration, being all repealed by Solon, except one, for murder.

An attempt was made some years ago by my honourable friend, Sir Charles Bunbury, to repeal some of the most absurd and cruel of our capital laws. The bill passed this house, but was rejected by the lords, for this reason; "It was an innovation, they said, and subversion of law." *The very reverse is truth. These hanging laws are themselves innovations. No less than three and thirty of them passed during the last reign. I believe I myself was the first person who checked the progress of them. When the great Alfred came to the throne, he found the kingdom over-run with robbers; but the silly expedient of hanging never came into his head: he instituted a police, which was, to make every township answerable for the felonies committed in it. Thus property became the guardian of property; and all robbery was so effectually stopped, that (the historians tell us) in a very short time a man might travel through the kingdom unarmed, with his purse in his hand.

Treason, murder, rape, and burning a dwelling-house, were all the crimes that were liable to be punished with death by our good old common law.† And such was the tenderness, such the reluctance to shed blood, that if recompence could possibly be made, life was not to be touched. Treason being

* No less than 187 different offences were made punishable with DEATH by statutes framed between the years 1660 and 1819.

† Burning a barn filled with corn, was also capital by the common law.

against the King, the remission of the crime was in the crown. In case of murder itself, if compensation could be made, the next of kin might discharge the prosecution, which, if once discharged, could not be revived. If a ravisher could make the injured woman satisfaction, the law had no power over him; she might marry the man under the gallows, if she pleased, and take him from the jaws of death to the lips of matrimony. But so fatally are we deviated from the benignity of our ancient laws, that there is now under sentence of death an unfortunate clergyman, who made satisfaction for the injury he attempted: the satisfaction was accepted; and yet the acceptance of the satisfaction, and the prosecution, bear the same date.

There does not occur to my thoughts a proposition more abhorrent from nature, and from reason, than that in a matter of property, when restitution is made, blood should still be required. But, in regard to our whole system of criminal law, and much more to our habits of thinking and reasoning upon it, there is a sentence of the great Roman orator, which I wish those who hear me to remark. Exhorting the senate to put a stop to executions, he says, "Nolite, Quirites, hanc sævitiam diutius pati; quæ non modò tot cives atrocissimè sustulit, sed humanitatem ipsam ademit consuetudine incommodorum."*

Having said so much on the general principles of our criminal laws, I have only a short word or two to add, on the two propositions now before us; one, as moved by the honourable gentleman (Mr. Combe)—to hang persons that wilfully set fire to ships; the other moved as an amendment by my honourable friend (Sir Charles Bunbury),—to compel such offenders to work seven years on the Thames.

The question arises from the alarming events of the late fires at Portsmouth and Bristol; for which the incendiary is put to death. But, will an act of parliament prevent such men as John the Painter from coming into the world, or control them when they are in it? You might as well bring in a bill to prevent the appearance, or regulate the motions, of a comet. John the Painter was so far from fearing death, that he courted it; was so far from concealing his act, that he told full as much as was true, to his own conviction. When once a villain turns enthusiast, he is above all law. Punishment is his reward, and death his glory. But, though this law will be useless against villains, it is dangerous, and may be fatal to many innocent persons. There is not an honest industrious carpenter or sailor, who may not be endangered in the course of his daily labour; they are constantly using fire and combustible matter, about shipping, and tarring, pitching, and caulking: accidents are continually happening; and who knows how many of these accidents may be attributed to design? The act, indeed, says, the firing must be done wilfully and maliciously; but judges and juries do not always distinguish right between the fact and the intention. It is the province of a jury only to try the fact by the intention; but they are too apt to judge of the intention by the fact. Justices of the peace, however, are not famed for accurate and nice distinctions; and all the horrors of an ignominious death would be too much to threaten every honest shipwright with, for what may happen in the necessary work of his calling.

But, as I think punishment necessary for so heinous an offence, and, as the end of all punishment is example; of the two modes of punishment, I shall prefer that which is most profitable in point of example. Allowing, then, the punishment of death its utmost force, it is only SHORT and MOMENTARY; that of labour PERMANENT; and so much more example is gained in him who is reserved for labour, than in him who is put to death, as there are hours in the life of the one, beyond the short moment of the other's death.

* Sir William Meredith, quoting Cicero's speech from memory, gave the substance of this fine passage, but the language of his illustrious author preserves still greater force and beauty. "Hanc tollite ex civitate, Judices!—hanc pati nolite diutius in hac republica versari: quæ non modò id habet in se mali, quòd tot cives atrocissimè sustulit, verum etiam hominibus lenissimè ademit misericordiam consuetudine incommodorum." "Away with this [familiarized butchery] from the State!—Allow it not, O Judges! to prevail any longer in the Commonwealth! It has not only the disastrous effect of cutting off so many of your fellow-citizens in a most atrocious manner, but it hath even rooted out from men of the mildest disposition the sentiment of MERCY—by the familiar practice of SLAUGHTER!"

ADDRESS.—The Christian Reader will naturally be anxious to perform his part, in carrying into effect the admirable principles, so well expounded in the above Speech of Sir Wm. Meredith, half a century ago. He will be desirous to acquit his own conscience of even a passive acquiescence in the sanguinary and merciless system which that enlightened legislator so ably exposed—he will wish, not only to keep his own hands pure from the iniquity of human extermination, but as far as in him lies, to cleanse the land of the stain of blood. For the latter purpose there are two means, neither of them troublesome or expensive; in both of which the assistance and agency of the softer sex—feeling as they do for the misery of the widows and orphans which the system creates—will be of inestimable value.

The first of these is to procure a few of the TRACTS containing information on the “PUNISHMENT OF DEATH,” which may be had of all Booksellers in country towns, and to lend or distribute them to be read among his townsmen and neighbours.

The second is to procure PETITIONS on the subject to both Houses of Parliament, from the town or neighbourhood where he resides—for which Petitions the following instructions are submitted:

Instructions for drawing up Petitions.	{	The Petitions may be upon either parchment or paper.
		Two Petitions should be signed, one to each House of Parliament.
Instructions for signing.	{	The Petition may be written in a common hand.
		Petitions from large towns would have additional respectability, were the profession (if any), and residence, inserted after the signature.
Instructions for transmitting to London.	{	When it appears desirable to forward the Petition direct to a Member of Parliament , or Peer , it may, in such case, be sent postage-free; but it is necessary to fold it like a newspaper, with the ends open , and to mark the envelope, “Petition to Parliament.” Any letter on the subject to the Peer or Member, must not be inclosed, but sent separately, and should earnestly intreat their support whenever the question comes before Parliament.

Contents of the four succeeding Numbers, which may be had of the same Booksellers.

- No. 2. SPEECHES of EARL GREY and LORD GRENVILLE, in the House of Lords, April 2, 1813, in the debate upon Sir Samuel Romilly's Bill for abolishing the Punishment of Death, for privately stealing to the amount of five shillings from a shop; together with a list of the Peers, who divided on that occasion.—(Notwithstanding the support rendered by the convincing arguments of Lords Grey and Holland, and especially of Lord Grenville as reported in this publication, the Bill was lost.) Price 2s. 6d. per dozen.
- No. 3. PUBLIC MEETING at Exeter Hall, Strand, 30 May, 1831. Substance of the Speeches of Dr. Lushington and J. Sydney-Taylor, A.M. in discussing the Resolution relative to the Punishment of Death. Price 3s. 6d. per dozen.
- No. 4. A COMPARATIVE VIEW of the Punishments annexed to Crime in the UNITED STATES of America, and in ENGLAND. By J. Sydney Taylor, A.M. Barrister-at-Law. (Printed in double columns, the one [America] in red ink, the other [England] in black ink.) Price 5s. 6d. per dozen.
- No. 5. THE LONDON JURORS' PETITION, presented to the House of Lords, Sept. 6, 1831, by His Royal Highness the Duke of SUSSEX, together with Extracts from the Observations made on that occasion by the Morning Herald, Morning Chronicle, Standard, and Courier. Price 3s. 6d. per dozen.

The five Numbers are also published in one cover, second edition, price 1s. 6d.

"Hazlitt was wont to say—and there were few better judges—that historical painting, was nothing more than portrait painting, and this opinion he adduced as an apology, not only for living artists, but in justification of the public taste. Whatever may be the merits of the question, there is no doubt that portrait painting is the more valuable department of art. It gives, as it were, the companionship of the dead to the living; perpetuates the features—even the looks—almost the soul—that we were wont to gaze on and love, and enables us to carry away with us, into distant countries, the images of those we leave behind us. Friendship and affection consecrate this art, and the public, as well as individuals, have an interest in the pursuit, for it multiplies the persons of public men. The features of the King are familiar to all, though seen only by few; and every man in the kingdom has formed a distinct and correct notion of the appearance of the Duke of Wellington and Lord Brougham. They have been enabled to do this from the multiplication of their portraits, by means of engravings, for engraving gives a kind of ubiquity to art, and is to painting what printing is to thought. To gratify a laudable and proper taste, various publications have been recently started, but, certainly, none with better claims to support than the 'National Portrait Gallery;' for out of its crowd of portraits, there is not one that does not do honour to the arts. Many of them are after paintings by Sir Thomas Lawrence; and it is unnecessary to add, that the style of the work must be of a very superior kind, since the highest personages in the land are eager to lend portraits to be copied. The portraits consist of living characters, or public men who have died within the last century. Those who wish to form, at one view, an acquaintance with the great men, their contemporaries, will hasten to possess so valuable a work as the 'National Portrait Gallery.'"—Liverpool Journal.

QUARTERLY LITERARY ADVERTISER.

LONDON, JULY, 1832.

SPLENDID SERIES OF PORTRAITS AND LANDSCAPES

PUBLISHED MONTHLY IN

THE COURT MAGAZINE

AND

BELLE ASSEMBLÉE.

(Improved Series.)

EDITED BY THE HON. MRS. NORTON.

FROM JULY 1, WHICH COMMENCES THE NEW SERIES.

THIS work, which addresses itself in a peculiar degree to the rank, fashion, and beauty of England, has already attained a high celebrity through its graphic embellishments, which, besides their acknowledged individual excellence, present the advantage of uniting to form a brilliant Collection of Portraits, representing the flower of the English Female Nobility. The success established through this feature of the work, has led to the intention now announced, of carrying the claims of 'The Court Magazine, and Belle Assemblée' yet considerably further, by means of such improvements in the nature and style of its literature, as may place this essential department on an equality,—in grace, spirit, and general attraction,—with the decorative portion of its contents.

In order to give complete effect to this design, the most active exertions have been made, and the most liberal arrangements formed, so as to ensure contributions of a high order of talent; and it is with great satisfaction the Proprietors have to state, that the Hon. Mrs. Norton has consented to undertake the superintendence of the Work. This intimation will be doubtless received as the fullest guarantee in favour of the future tone and character which will mark the literary contents of the work.

It now to be stated, that a further important arrangement has been made to embellish the published portion of 'The Court Magazine and Belle Assemblée,' by producing monthly, as early as the object can be realized, in addition to the Engravings which form the

PORTRAIT GALLERY

OF THE

FEMALE NOBILITY,

A splendid series of Views from Steel Engravings, which will present a

LANDSCAPE GALLERY

OF THE

SEATS OF THE NOBILITY,

From original Drawings, by WILLIAM DANIELL, Esq., Royal Academician, under whose superintendence also the engravings will be produced. Appended to each of these Picturesque Representations will be a descriptive account explaining its history, in regular descent, and embodying every interesting tradition and legendary anecdote that may exist in connexion with it.

The greatest care and diligence will continue to be devoted to the object of furnishing the best illustrations and descriptions of English and Foreign Female Costumes. A Critical History of the Literature of the Month, Music, the Drama, and the Arts, will also be given; and a Register of Events. As many of the features are entirely new, it is intended to give an extra half sheet with each number, which will add nearly 100 pages to the yearly volumes.

It is fully anticipated, that by means of these and the previously announced alterations in the character and management of this Work, it will assume a position superior to that held by any similar publication hitherto presented to the Public.

The whole arranged in alphabetical order, illustrated with Maps, and numerous Engravings on wood. In 1 vol. imperial 8vo. Price 1l. 4s. in cloth boards.

The edition in Five Volumes Quarto, including the Volume of Plates, may be had. Price 10l. 10s.

5. SATURDAY EVENING. By the Author of 'Natural History of Enthusiasm.' 8vo. Price 10s. 6d.

"Saturday Evening" and "Natural History of Enthusiasm,"—two noble productions.—Blackwood's Mag.

6. NATURAL HISTORY of ENTHUSIASM, in Ten Sections. The fifth edition. 8vo. 8s.

7. HISTORY of the SEVEN CHURCHES of ASIA; their Rise, Progress, and Decline; with Notices of the Churches of Tralles, Magnesia, Colosse, Hierapolis, Lyons, and Vienne; designed to show the fulfilment of Scripture Prophecy. By the Rev. T. MILNER, A.M. 1 vol. 8vo. 12s.

8. Dr. J. PYE SMITH'S SCRIPTURE TESTIMONY to the MESSIAH. An Inquiry with a view to a satisfactory determination of the Doctrine taught in the Holy Scriptures concerning the Person of Christ. A new and much improved edition, enlarged by an increase of more than one fourth of new matter. 3 vols. 8vo. 1l. 16s. boards.

Dr. Smith's Scripture Testimony is included in the list of works recommended to the Students in Divinity by the Bishops of London and Oxford, Professor Burton, &c. &c.

9. Dr. J. PYE SMITH on the SACRIFICE, PRIESTHOOD, ATONEMENT, and REDEMPTION of CHRIST. 8vo. 8s.

10. Dr. J. PYE SMITH on the PERSONALITY and DIVINITY of the HOLY SPIRIT. 8vo. 1s. 6d.

11. The LIFE and OPINIONS of JOHN DE WYCLIFFE, D.D. By ROBERT VAUGHAN. With a finely engraved Portrait by E. Finden. The second edition, improved. In 2 vols. 8vo. Price 1l. 1s.

'There seems to be no repository of ancient literature in the empire which has escaped the industry of Mr. Vaughan. To the labours of this gentleman I have great obligations to acknowledge. His diligence has enabled him to ascertain the date of many of Wycliffe's performances with an approach to precision which had never before been attained, and thus to trace out, with greater success than any former writer, the progress and development of the Reformer's convictions.'—Professor Le Bas, in the Preface to his Life of Wycliffe.

12. MEMORIALS of the STUART DYNASTY, including the Constitutional and Ecclesiastical History of England, from the decease of Elizabeth to the abdication of James II. By ROBERT VAUGHAN, Author of 'The Life and Opinions of Wycliffe.'

'We can safely recommend the work as an able one, the result of great industry and of deep conviction.'—Monthly Mag.

13. FOSTER'S ESSAYS on DECISION of CHARACTER, &c. &c. Ninth edition. 8vo. 10s. 6d.

14. CALMUCTARTARY; or a Journey from Sarepta to several Calmuc Hordes of the Astracan Government, in 1823, undertaken on behalf of the Russian Bible Society. By HENRY AUGUSTUS ZWICK and JOHN GOTTFRIED SCHILL, and described by the former. In 1 vol. post 8vo. 7s.

'We have been much pleased with this little volume, which, in a very clear and unpretending style, increases our acquaintance with the hordes that inhabit the vast plains extending northward from the Black Sea and Mount Caucasus, on both sides of the Volga.'—Monthly Review.

JUST COMPLETED.

By the Publication of PART VI., which has been unavoidably delayed on account of the very elaborate nature of the INDEX,

THE

BIBLICAL CABINET ATLAS,

(Uniform with the Geographical Annual.)

Containing

FINELY EXECUTED ENGRAVINGS ON STEEL, by STARLING, of all THE TRIBES AND COUNTRIES mentioned in Sacred History; with Plans of the CITY OF JERUSALEM and THE TEMPLE; and a NEW GENERAL INDEX, exhibiting, at one view, all that is Geographically and Historically interesting in the Holy Scriptures.

OPINIONS OF THIS WORK.

'This beautiful publication is executed in a style of engraving beyond which, we suppose, art cannot go. It is the more acceptable, as charts of the countries mentioned in the Bible have hitherto been either very incorrect, or, if well executed, inaccessible to the public, on account of their enormous prices.'—Monthly Review.

'We are pleased to add our most unequivocal commendation of this very useful publication. In point of execution the maps are nothing inferior, if they are not superior, to their predecessors; and the correctness does infinite credit to the diligence and research of Mr. Starling and his literary associates.'—Christian Remembrancer.

'The present is a very excellent addition, and is a desideratum in families.'—Spectator.

'The Index will afford a large body of information for the general reader, and must be of great value and interest, as well to the historical as the biblical student.'—Carlisle Patriot.

'The biblical student, in a pocket volume, arranged on a plan entirely new, has a most comprehensive, clear, and correct Scripture Atlas, at a trifling cost. The beauty and clearness of its engraving is only equalled by its accuracy and usefulness.'—Coventry Herald.

'The maps are curious and interesting to any student; but to the biblical reader they are invaluable for the information they communicate.'—Tyne Mercury.

Price, plain, 15s. bound; finely coloured, 21s.; in morocco, 3s. extra.

THE GEOGRAPHICAL ANNUAL,
1832.

CONTAINING 100 STEEL ENGRAVINGS BY STARLING.

'Of all the Annals, this is unquestionably the most useful. It is one of the most delightful books that can be given or received at a season of the year when to make a present becomes a sort of duty.'—New Monthly Magazine.

'This beautiful and most useful little volume is a perfect picture of elegance, containing a vast sum of Geographical information. A more instructive present, or a gift better calculated to be long preserved, and often referred to, could not be offered to favoured youth of either sex.'—Literary Gazette.

'The utility of this valuable volume almost eclipses its beauty, in our estimation. Were we limited in our choice to the purchase of one Annual out of the multitude, this should be that one in preference to all the rest. It is an ornament for the boudoir or the drawing-room, while it is absolutely necessary for the study.'—Atlas.

'It is the most perfect gem which has ever been published.'—Bristol Journal.

Price, plain, 18s. bound; finely coloured, 21s.; in morocco, 3s. extra.

UNIFORM WITH THE WAVERLEY NOVELS.

This day is Published, at only 6s. per Volume, neatly bound, a complete and uniform Edition of
THE FOUR SERIES OF

THE ROMANCE OF HISTORY.

1. ENGLAND. By HENRY NEELE. From the Norman Conquest to the Reformation. 3 vols. 18s.
2. FRANCE. By LEITCH RITCHIE. From the time of Charlemagne to the Reign of Louis XIV. 18s.
3. ITALY. By CHARLES MACFARLANE. From the Lombard Epoch to the Seventeenth Century. 3 vols. 18s.
4. SPAIN. By M. TRUEBA. From the Time of Roderic to the Seventeenth Century. 3 vols. 18s.

These Works illustrate the Romantic Annals of every Age between the Periods above mentioned, and comprise also a short History of each Country.

'The plan of this work is novel, and of a very interesting description. It is the realisation of that which has been often said, and often felt,—that the annals with which the history of every country is thickly strewn, are in themselves far more romantic than the happiest inventions of the most ingenious novelists and poets.... They are valuable illustrations of manners, and striking commentaries on the history of the country.'—Times.

'The plan of this work is excellent.'—Literary Gazette.

"To every thing there is a season," says the Preacher, "and a time to every purpose under the heaven; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted." Time was to plant: there never was a people whose forefathers planted more deeply and judiciously in Church and in State—for Literature and for Arms—than ours have done: it is now time to pluck up, not the stately tree itself—long may it flourish, the glory and the shelter of all true Englishmen!—but the thousands of suckers and saplings around it; not to destroy, but to transplant, to graft, to disperse, and to multiply the virtues of the ancient stock. Many a skilful hand is already employed in this good work. We come to help all those who may like our manner of helping. Our recommendation is the name of that venerable Society from the bosom of which we proceed; and our little Magazine will go forth every Saturday morning, like a skilful gardener, to plant in every corner of the land, within sight of every man's door, and within reach of every man's arm, a tree of true knowledge, which, growing out of the fear of God, will, under God's blessing, we doubt not, bring forth, in due season, the fruits of honour and of power to the nation, and of plenty, and peace, and truth, to every honest man and woman in it.

'An old Latin poet, a very fashionable man in his day, said that the most popular book would be that which mixed up the useful with the agreeable. We shall make such a mixture in this Magazine. By the side of the truly useful we shall place that which ought alone to be truly useful, we shall place that which ought alone to be truly agreeable, and we will do our best to make one reflect light upon the other. Whether the information which we convey to our readers be given in the form of an essay or a tale, we shall keep in mind our grand object of combining innocent amusement with sound instruction. We shall not relate ghost-stories, except to explain the delusions from which impressions of the reality of such things have proceeded and will often proceed; we shall tell no Newgate legends of murder and robbery, except sometimes to point out the horrible excesses and dismal end to which a man may come, step by step downwards, from the first dram he drank, the first oath he swore, and the first Lord's Day he profaned. But then, on the other hand, we shall show forth some of the wonderful things of Natural History; we shall recount the origin and progress of some of the greatest of human inventions, such as Navigation, Printing, the Telescope, Steam-engines, and so on; we shall remind our readers of remarkable events in the annals of our own dear country, and of other great kingdoms on the continent; and we shall sometimes, as occasion may serve, indulge ourselves with proving how sweetly the Poets of England used to sing, and how sweetly some of them yet live to sing. One way or another we hope to be popular in this Magazine, which comes out at the end of the week, when most men have a pause from labour. We are not for interfering with the family talk or the friendly walk, much less with religious duties or the study of the Bible—and we trust every one of our readers has one. After all these good things are done and served, there will be plenty of time for perusing these few little pages; and the reader shall never find in any one of them a line which shall be contrary in its tendency to the improvement and happiness of any member of his family.'

The SATURDAY MAGAZINE is handsomely printed in small folio, on good paper, and consists of eight pages, or sixteen columns, illustrated with well-executed Engravings on wood.

It is published, as its name imports, every Saturday, and with the last Number in each Month will be published a Supplementary Number, so as to form a handsome Monthly Part, for the convenience of those persons who have not the opportunity of obtaining the work as a weekly sheet. The Monthly Part, comprising Five or Six Numbers, as it may happen, will be done up in a printed cover, and sold for 6d., so that the total expense for a whole year will be only 6s.

THE COMMITTEE OF GENERAL LITERATURE AND EDUCATION,

In compliance with the recommendation contained in the Report read at the Special General Meeting of the SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE, held on the 21st of May, have made arrangements for the publication of a Series of Works on Education, History, Biography, Natural History, the Elements of the Sciences, &c. particulars of which will speedily be announced.

Books to any amount purchased, exchanged, or valued.

Just published, price 5s. (with 12 Plates, above 100 Wood Engravings, and three sheets and a quarter of Letter-press, similar to that of the Encyclopædia of Gardening), Part II. of an ENCYCLOPÆDIA of COTTAGE, FARM, and VILLA ARCHITECTURE; illustrated by an extensive Series of Lithographic Designs for Dwellings in the Country, from the Labourer's Cottage to the Gentleman's Villa; accompanied by Estimates and Specifications: with Critical Remarks on each Design, and on Landscape Gardening, with reference to its accompaniments. By J.C. LOUDON, F.L.S., &c., Conductor of the Gardener's Magazine, &c.

The main object of this work is to improve the dwellings of the great mass of society; a secondary object is to produce a popular work upon a subject which has been hitherto treated in a manner calculated rather to repel than to invite the general reader; and thus to render Domestic Architecture a fit study for ladies.

The work will be continued in Monthly Parts, at 5s. each; and will extend to 10, forming one handsome 8vo. volume, price 2l. 10s.

The Proprietors sincerely regret that it has not hitherto been in their power to publish this Work more rapidly: they feel assured, however, from the number of Plates now in hand, and nearly finished, that the succeeding Parts will appear regularly. The delay has been chiefly occasioned by their anxiety to produce a series of Plates every way worthy of public patronage; and they refer with confidence to the present Number as a satisfactory evidence of their professions.

CONTARINI FLEMING.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL AUTO-BIOGRAPHY. 4 vols. foolscap 8vo. 24s.

'Contarini Fleming is the product of a travelled mind—a meditative mind—a mind gradually filtering itself of its early impurities of taste and discrepancies of judgment. What a character has the author made of WINTER ! I know nothing like it in the English language in conception, or more elaborately executed ; it is only a pity that we have so little of this fine ideal. To sum up—in this work the author has shown a power, a fertility, a promise which we sanguinely boast will produce very considerable and triumphant results.'—New Monthly Magazine.

IX.

RISE and PROGRESS of the ENGLISH COMMON-WEALTH,

(ANGLO-SAXON PERIOD.)

Containing the Anglo-Saxon Policy, and the Institutions arising out of Laws and Usages which prevailed before the Conquest.

By FRANCIS PALGRAVE, Esq., F.R.S., and F.S.A. 4to. 3l. 3s.

The subjects included in this work are, the Ancient Courts of Justice, and other Tribunals of the Anglo-Saxons and other Teutonic Nations—The Ranks and Orders of Society—Trial by Jury—Ordeal and Battle Trials—The Roman History of Britain—The Settlement of the Anglo-Saxons—The Rise and Progress of the Anglo-Saxon Kingdoms—The Constitution of the Carolingian Empire—The Origin of the Feudal System—The Legislative Assemblies of the Anglo-Saxons.

The second part contains illustrative Essays and Documents—the latter chiefly from manuscript records and deeds hitherto inedited, or from sources not easily accessible to the general reader.

By the same Author,

A NEW HISTORY OF THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

With Illustrations. One Volume. 5s.

These two Works, taken together, afford a complete View of the History and Policy of the Anglo-Saxon Empire. The History, compiled wholly from original sources, contains the principal details preserved by the Chroniclers, concerning the Political Events of England, with the exception of those relating to the more obscure periods, and the annals of the minor States, and those will be found in the 'Summaries of Anglo-Saxon History,' given amongst the 'Proofs and Illustrations' to the larger work. The Maps correct some important errors, which have hitherto been rendered current, respecting the Political Geography of Anglo-Saxon Britain.

PROSPECTS OF ENGLAND.

8vo. 2s. 6d.

50, ALBEMARLE-STREET, JULY, 1832.

FAMILY LIBRARY.

This Day is published, price 5s.
No. XXXII. of the FAMILY LIBRARY, BEING THE SECOND AND CONCLUDING VOLUME OF THE HISTORY OF VENICE.

MR. MURRAY takes this opportunity of announcing that, in accordance with the original plan, the FAMILY LIBRARY will be completed in THIRTY-SIX Volumes.

No. XXXIII., being LETTERS ON NATURAL MAGIC, by SIR DAVID BREWSTER, will be published on the 1st of August next.

No. XXXIV.—The Second and Concluding Volume of THE SCOTTISH WORTHIES, on the 1st of September.

No. XXXV.—The Second and Concluding Volume of the HISTORY OF INSECTS, on the 1st of October.

No. XXXVI. will complete the HISTORY OF INDIA, (originally intended to form Three Volumes,) and will appear on the 1st of November.

It having been found that the continuation of THE HISTORY OF ENGLAND would interfere with this arrangement, that Volume, which is in itself a complete HISTORY OF THE ANGLO-SAXONS, will be so designated in a new Title-page, which will be given to the Purchasers of the Volume on applying for it.

Such has been the demand for the ATHENÆUM since Christmas, that the Proprietors have been compelled to reprint Five Numbers, to enable New Subscribers to complete their Sets, a circumstance, they believe, unprecedented in the history of Periodical Literature. Therefore it is that this early notice is given, that such persons as reside in the country, and intend to become Subscribers from the First Number of the Half-year, may give their orders immediately.

The ATHENÆUM is the Largest Literary Paper. It is published Weekly, and also in Monthly Parts; and may be ordered of all Booksellers and News Agents.

PORTRAITS OF CELEBRATED WINNING HORSES.

S. and J. FULLER most respectfully inform the Noblemen and the Gentlemen of the Turf and the Sporting World, that the following splendid Prints are published by them:—PORTRAITS of the most CELEBRATED WINNING HORSES of the present Day, being a collection of the best Blood and Stock in the Kingdom, and a Work of Reference to form the judgment on. These Prints are from Pictures painted by Mr. HERRING, of Doncaster, at the time the Horses were three years old, and may be had with their Pedigree and their Performances to the time; they compose the two splendid Works, entitled, 'Portraits of the Great St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster,' and the 'Derby Stakes at Epsom,' and are as follow:—Filho da Puta, The Duchess, Ebor, Reveller, Antonio, St. Patrick, Jack Spigot, Theodore, Barefoot, Jerry, Memnon, Tarrare, Matilda, the Colonel, Rowton, Birmingham, Chouster, Mamaluke, Cadland, Frederick, Bessy Bedlam, Dr. Syntax, Priam, and Spaniel. They may be had in their respective works as published, or singly, price 15s. in colours, or plain, price 7s. 6d.

N.B. St. Giles the Winner is in a forward state.

London: published by S. and J. Fuller, at their Sporting Gallery, 34, Rathbone Place; where may be had the greatest variety of Prints on Hunting, Shooting, and the Sports of the Field; likewise a splendid collection of Drawings by various Masters.

TO PARENTS, SCHOOLMASTERS, &c.

THE TRUE SYSTEM.

Just published, the Twelfth Edition, improved and enlarged, of NATURE DISPLAYED in her Mode of TEACHING LANGUAGE, adapted to the French.

'Mr. Dufief has conferred a benefit on mankind.'—Scotsman.

'We repeat, that no one can read these volumes with the attention and zeal they deserve without becoming a Frenchman.'—Atlas.

'The greatest merit of Mr. Dufief's work is—its being so perfectly adapted to English people.'—London Magazine.

'We rejoice to see that his most useful work has arrived at a Twelfth Edition.'—Lit. Gazette.

'Mr. Dufief holds the pencil of Nature, and inscribes his lessons on the mind.'—American Statesman.

Your Committee, advertng to the uncommon merit of the work, and considering its dissemination as calculated to produce just ideas on the subject of School Books, and as furnishing an admirable model for the preparation of many, have encouraged a proposed re-publication in CALCUTTA, by subscribing for Seventy Copies.

COMMITTEE.—Hon. Sir E. H. East, Lord Chief Justice, J. H. Harrington, Esq., Rev. W. Carey, D.D., &c. &c.

HISTORY PHILOSOPHICAL-
LY ILLUSTRATED, from the FALL of the ROMAN EMPIRE to the FRENCH REVOLUTION. By GEORGE MILLER, D.D., M.R.I.A., formerly Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin.

'The general style of these volumes is honourable to the author's scholarship;—it is remarkably distinct, vigorous, and free from superfluous ornament. But in parts, where the subject admitted of the change, it becomes rich and eloquent. The brief sketch of Grattan's oratory, towards the close of the fourth volume, is one of the happiest and most graphic descriptions that we have ever seen of that singularly powerful speaker. On the whole we entirely congratulate the Author and the public on the completion of this performance. What Montesquieu accomplished for the laws of Europe Dr. Miller has for its History.'—Literary Gazette, 24th March, 1832.

Patronized by his late Majesty.

Prices, in neat Mahogany Frames, 60 Guineas per Pair; in Atlas Frames, 50 Guineas per Pair. May be had singly.

The Proprietors, grateful for the extensive Patronage with which the Public have honoured their Globes, beg to observe, that they have, at a very considerable expense, materially corrected the whole of the Plates, and have availed themselves of the Voyages and Travels of COOK, VANCOUVER, DE LA PEROUSE, PARK, CLARKE and LEWIS, HUMBOLDT, FLINDERS, ELPHINSTONE, and the Discoveries of Captains ROSS, PARRY, and FRANKLIN, towards the North Pole, and Major DENHAM in the Interior of Africa, which have enabled them to make many very important Additions and Alterations. The utmost pains have been taken to render their Globes both exact and elegant, and they flatter themselves that they exhibit every improvement to the present time.

PRINTED UNIFORMLY WITH THE WAVERLEY NOVELS,
THE
FIRST COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION
OF THE
WORKS OF LORD BYRON,
WITH
HIS LETTERS AND JOURNALS; AND HIS LIFE.
By THOMAS MOORE, Esq.

To be completed in Fourteen Monthly Volumes, (of which the first seven have already appeared,) each containing two highly-finished Engravings,

By WILLIAM and EDWARD FINDEN.

From Drawings by TURNER, STANFIELD, and other eminent Artists.

Price 5s. each Volume.

The Seventh Volume commences the Poetical Works. They have been carefully edited, arranged in chronological order, illustrated with copious Notes, explanatory of persons and events alluded to in them, and have been augmented by many new Poems, printed now for the first time, accompanied by numerous Extracts from Letters and Journals of Lord Byron, not included in the Life, and never before published. In fact, no pains have been spared to render this the Standard Edition of Lord Byron's Poetry; and that which must always be referred to on account of its accuracy and completeness.

"The Poetical Works of Byron, thus arranged and illustrated from his own Diaries and Letters (to many of which, as yet in MS., the Editor has had access)—and from the information of his surviving friends, who have in general answered every inquiry with prompt kindness, will now present the clearest picture of the history of the man, as they must ever form the noblest monument of his genius."

"We must congratulate the Publisher on the ready zeal with which the family and friendly associates of Lord Byron have come forward on this occasion. The private letters and diaries of the noble poet were not all in Mr. Moore's hands, when he drew up his memorable 'Notices;' and it is obvious that many such materials have, for the first time, been brought forth for the service of the volume now before us, and, we presume, of the others that are to follow it. We must also congratulate him on the industry and good taste which have been applied to the utilization of the precious materials thus placed at his disposal; but of this our readers will draw a fair augury for themselves.

"The light now thrown on the early history of Lord Byron, both as a man and as a poet, is extraordinary. The communications of his friends, hitherto silent, have enabled the editor to fill up blanks and explain allusions, which lend a wholly new interest to those 'occasional pieces' in which the great poet exercised his growing powers; but they have done more than this: they have, from the stores of their private albums, or escrutoires, supplied a whole body of early poetry, superior to anything that had hitherto appeared under the dates to which their composition is referred."—Literary Gazette.

"The present volume abounds with new matter, and that of a most interesting kind, both in verse and prose. The poems are not only arranged according to the date of their composition, but on almost every page we have a running commentary, illustrating the text, explaining the circumstances under which the various poems were composed, and giving us agreeable glimpses of the noble poet and his friends and companions. These notes are, in our estimation, very valuable; they are anecdotal, critical, historical, or biographical, as the occasion demands, and seem to be supplied by one who is well acquainted with polished life and popular literature, and who has the good sense to be brief as well as instructive.

"We have no less than ten poems, not one of which has ever been published before, to select something worthy of the poet from; and there is the less difficulty in this, since they are all, or nearly all, marked by much of the manly vigour of his brightest days.

"The public is largely indebted to the publisher for this edition of a favourite author: not only is it remarkable for external elegance and compact beauty of arrangement, but it contains the only full and accurate account of the man, and the only complete collection of his poems and letters which has or can be published. It is also lavishly embellished."—Athenaeum, June 23.

"The poems of Lord Byron will thus form a species of auto-biography; for the verse of Byron was the outpouring of his spirit, an interpretation of the passion of the moment, or else the reflections induced by the passing of events before him.

"Great care has been taken in the getting up of the work; a sedulous editor has thrown every light on the various contents of the volume that time and death have permitted to be made public; and such, indeed, is the plan of the publisher, and the power within his hands, that it may be said of the present edition with justice, that no one will possess any other who can procure this."—Spectator, June 23, 1832.

"It may justly be said of this publication that not an opportunity has been lost in it. For beauty of embellishment and aptness of annotation, it is unrivalled. The arrangement of the poet's works (upon which we enter in the seventh volume, containing 'Hours of Idleness,' 'English Bards and Scotch Reviewers,' and many short pieces,) according to the dates of performance, is also excellent, as it marks the germs and the development of the author's genius."—Examiner.

"Nothing is wanted to render the whole as complete, in relation to his Lordship's character and the gradual development of his mind, as any means in existence can make it. Many of the pieces, which are now given to the public for the first time, as well as the majority of Lord Byron's poems, having a direct reference to his Lordship's feelings and the events of his life, their collection in this form, accompanied with such a running commentary of facts and criticism, may be said to contain his poetical auto-biography; and in that point of view, apart from the intrinsic interest of the productions themselves, this edition is recommended to general attention by new claims, that no future edition can ever be expected to surpass."—Atlas, July 1, 1832.

"From the specimen afforded by the new volume, it seems to us that, great as the popularity of the preceding volumes has been, it was slight compared with that which awaits the remainder."—Alfred.

I.
VIEW OF THE MOTIONS OF THE HEAVENLY BODIES.

With a popular INTRODUCTION.

By MRS. SOMERVILLE. 8vo. 30s.

'Taken altogether, the production does honour to the age in which we live—but as the exclusive performance of a female, it must be regarded as a prodigy of intelligence and mental industry. It is a subject worthy of national congratulation, that a lady of extraordinary talents, and of sufficient ambition to trespass beyond the restraints imposed upon her sex, should enlist in the ranks of the missionaries of useful knowledge.'—Monthly Review, Jan., 1832.

'In the pursuit of her object, and in the natural and commendable wish to embody her acquired knowledge in an useful and instructive form for others, the Author seems entirely to have lost sight of herself; and, although in perfect consciousness of the possession of powers fully adequate to meet every exigency of her arduous undertaking, it yet never seems to have suggested itself to her mind, that the acquisition of such knowledge, or the possession of such powers, by a person of her sex, is in itself anything extraordinary or remarkable.'

'We have indeed no hesitation in saying, that we consider the Preliminary Dissertation by far the best condensed view of the Newtonian philosophy which has yet appeared. We do not, of course, mean to include the "Système du Monde" of Laplace himself, which embraces a far wider range, both of illustration and detail, and of which Mrs. Somerville's preface may in some sort be regarded as an abstract, but an abstract so vivid and judicious as to have all the merit of originality, and such as could have been produced only by one accustomed to large and general views, as well as perfectly familiar with the particulars of the subject.'—Quarterly Review.

NEW FAMILY RECEIPT-BOOK; A COLLECTION OF
MORE THAN A THOUSAND TRULY VALUABLE RECEIPTS IN VARIOUS BRANCHES OF DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

Handsomely printed in small 8vo., similar to DOMESTIC COOKERY, price 7s. 6d. boards.

A new Edition, corrected, with numerous Additions, and the whole greatly improved.

In preparing a new Edition of the Family Receipt-Book, the Editor has spared no effort to render the work more worthy of the increasing favour of the Public; and in recasting the contents for the press, he ~~has~~ endeavoured to introduce a more methodical arrangement, by which it is hoped that every Receipt will be readily found under its appropriate head. In order to render the present work a more complete domestic repository of useful knowledge, an important addition has been made, in a small but comprehensive collection of Medical Receipts, adapted for those sudden emergencies which so often occur, requiring immediate relief. It is not intended by this short medical compendium to interfere with more elaborate treatises, or to supersede the necessity of consulting professional advice; but it will often happen that an opportunity is irreparably lost from the delay which must necessarily elapse before any professional assistance can be obtained; and it may often happen that circumstances render it inconvenient to secure regular professional attendance. In such cases, it seems to be desirable that every family should be furnished with a few plain directions for administering help, where help, to be effectual, must be immediate; and for treating those common complaints which may safely be trusted to domestic management.

‘This book is a proper and almost indispensable Companion for the “New System of Domestic Cookery;” it contains a larger quantity of truly valuable Receipts than any book of the same kind ever contained. There are few things which the reader can seek for domestic use, on which he will not find some useful information.’—Monthly Review, British Critic, &c.

TO WHICH IS PREFIXED

AN ESSAY ON DOMESTIC ECONOMY AND HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT,

Comprising many plain Receipts and practical Instructions, which will be found particularly useful to the Mistress of a Family.

WRITTEN BY A LADY FOR HER DAUGHTERS.

‘This is really one of the most practically useful books of any which we have seen on the subject. The Lady who has written it has not studied how to form expensive articles for luxurious tables, but to combine elegance with economy; she has given her directions in a plain, sensible manner, that every body can understand, and these are not confined merely to cookery, but are extended to a variety of objects in use in Families; by which means the utility of the book is very much increased indeed.’—British Critic.

‘Of this truly useful book, upwards of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES have been sold. Probably no other work on the subject was ever so well received. Although one of the oldest of its class, the constant attention which has been paid to the improvement of each succeeding Edition, and the numerous additions made to it from time to time, enable this work to retain its pre-eminence, whilst the low price at which it is sold makes it accessible to the means of every one.—The bare fact of the number of copies sold must be a sufficient proof of its excellence to all good housewives, without any recommendation from us; it is, in fact, a book indispensable to every well-regulated kitchen. A new chapter on FRENCH COOKERY seems particularly to merit attention.’—Leeds Mercury.

ADDRESS AND PROSPECTUS.

THE multitude of embellished works which distinguish the present age of publication, have, hitherto, taken no ground by which the Public might be made acquainted with the rich treasures of modern Art, in the department of Sculpture. It is not a little singular that some portion of that increasing zeal which, in this country has, of late years, been devoted to the Fine Arts, should not, yet, have been applied to their illustration in that form, in which they are, perhaps, of all others, the most ancient and universal. It might be supposed that a subject, the proofs of whose universality are gathered from all the geographical discoveries of modern times, and the evidences for whose antiquity carry it back (to say nothing of the eastern tradition which asserts the father of Abraham to have been a Sculptor,) to the days of the early Chaldeans,—could not have failed at all times, and under all circumstances, to command for itself a predominating share of any such attention as might be devoted to the question of Art in general. Its connexion with our earliest traditions of social effort, and our first notices of intellectual achievement, (and the inference which that uninterrupted connexion furnishes, that it has its origin in principles deeply planted in the natural mind,) would seem to secure for its matured productions much of that interest which is spreading itself, generally, over the field of taste. Wherever a relic of civilization has been explored, or a new form of what is called barbarism discovered,—alike amid the ruins of past magnificence, and the rude beginnings of social structure,—in the old world and in the new,—wherever an altar has been raised, or a worship or superstition embodied,—everywhere are found the traces of this (probably, with the exception of music,) oldest and most obvious of the imitative arts.

To these facts of the universality and antiquity of Sculpture, in its ruder efforts, may be added the further fact that it is, likewise, that one, of all the arts, which has reached the highest point of excellence, and bequeathed the most perfect specimens, in those countries where mind, in all its forms and productions, has, hitherto, attained its fullest development. Neither has it been suffered to languish, in the hands of its modern professors; nor have our own age and country been unproductive in those specimens which may take their place beside the best efforts of its most glowing days,—or in those names which are irrevocably and immortally identified with its history. In the whole range of Art, there is, perhaps, no one department, in which we have produced works whose excellence may more undoubtedly put itself in competition with the excellence of all other ages and lands, than that of Sculpture. Yet true it is, in the face of all these propositions, that it has failed to keep pace, in the public attention, with its sister arts; and that its treasures, and even the knowledge of them, are (comparatively speaking,) limited to the few.

The efforts of tasteful individuals, and of societies like that of the Dilettanti, have been principally directed to the illustration of ancient Sculpture; and to the reproduction, in every form, of those specimens of former ages, over which time has thrown a consecration, but from a large proportion of which it has, undoubtedly, taken a grace,—to all eyes but those of an antiquary. To ancient Art, and to those who have devoted themselves to its publication, it is not to be questioned that modern Art stands richly indebted. But it is right that the latter should have credit for the use which it has made of the funds thus placed at its disposal; and greatly to be regretted that, in an age of diffused taste and spreading intelligence, the resources of wealth and talent should have been lavished, almost exclusively, (as regards this department,) on the past and the imperfect,—while the public are left in comparative ignorance of those pure and beautiful specimens in which our own immediate age is so abundant, and to which our own country has so largely contributed.

It is with a view to supply this absent link, in the chain of illustrated Art, that the present work has been undertaken; and,—at the same time that it is designed to induce a more popular attention to, and knowledge of, the treasures of modern Sculpture,—it is intended to be executed in such a manner as will render it, at once, a valuable and graceful addition to the libraries of the artist, the student, and the connoisseur.

It results, as a consequence, from two of the propositions which have been stated,—viz., the high perfection to which the genius of Sculpture had formerly attained, in its most splendid achievements; and the neglect which it has subsequently suffered in the general mind of this country, in the persons of its modern professors, and their works,—that an exclusive standard of excellence has been, long, established, in the idea of the multitude, referring back to a few illustrious models;—limiting, like all prescriptions, the genius of succeeding artists, and paralysing the efforts of modern Art. In an age when awakened intellect and universal enquiry are destroying the theories and prejudices of schools and systems, and rooting out the whole family of prescriptions and exclusions, it is contemplated that works like the present are calculated (among their other benefits,) to bring the public intelligence to bear upon this error; and, by placing before it the rich, extensive, and varied range of the productions of later art, to induce the affluent amateur to pay back the debt thus incurred, in a more general encouragement of its disciples,—thus aiding the full and unrestricted development of its capabilities and their energies and talents.

The march of modern intelligence, which has taken patronage out of the hands of the few, and conferred it upon the public at large, has rendered it improbable that, in the field of taste, the race shall, in our days, be won by others than the swift, or the battle by any but the strong. Yet it is, notwithstanding, too true, that the “race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong”; and that, for want of those happy accidents which, it is hoped, the present work may help to supply, neglected genius is too frequently left to labour by its own unfed and untrimmed light,—with no encouragement but its own unaided impulses, and no reward but its own unestimated productions. To bring unfriended talent into the light of day forms one part of the plan of this work; and—whilst the facilities which have every-where been offered to the proprietors will enable them to exhibit, in the most attractive manner, the works of acknowledged genius,—they will seek, likewise, the work-room of the solitary artist, and the gallery of the private amateur, for whatever, may be deserving of a place by their side.

It is in the hope of thus benefitting both the public and the art, by making them mutually better acquainted with each other, that the proprietors invite artists to bring their works, and amateurs their possessions, under their notice.

Should the present work meet with such encouragement as shall offer to its proprietors a fair prospect of being enabled to carry it to a successful conclusion,—it is the intention of the Editor to publish (as a pendant to it,) Biographies of the different Sculptors whose works it may embody, accompanied by Portraits, engraved in the first style of excellence. For this purpose, he is collecting a body of very interesting materials; and his present design is to publish a number every half-year, (two numbers to form a yearly volume,) and each number containing six Lives, with Portraits. The two works will be wholly independent, one of the other,—and each of them entire in itself. But, the Biographies will be printed on Imperial Quarto paper, and, in all respects, uniform with the present work,—for the sake of those who may consider them as giving additional interest to the illustrated specimens, and greater completeness to the general subject.

CONDITIONS OF PUBLICATION.

- 1.—The work will appear in numbers,—the first of which will be published on the 15th of July next, (bearing, however, the date of the 1st of August,) and the second on the first of September following. The number and variety of the arrangements necessary to the establishment of a work embodying talent of so many kinds, have rendered this longer interval unavoidable, in the first instance; but the proprietors hope that the completion of their arrangements will enable them to publish, subsequently, on the 1st of every month.
- 2.—Each number will contain three subjects,—two of which will, as a general rule, (liable, of course, to occasional interruption), be selected from the works of native artists, and the third from foreign schools. And,—while each number will be in itself complete, and may be had separately,—the work is intended, when finished, to present a synoptical view of the achievements of the modern chisel, in their entire reach,—using the word modern as distinguishing from the ancient classical school, and the school of the middle ages.
- 3.—The plates will be executed in the highest style of chalk engraving, (under the immediate superintendence of Mr. CORBOULD), after drawings made by that gentleman and other artists, from the Sculptures themselves, or unexceptionable casts, wherever they lie within reach,—and by the best foreign draughtsmen, whenever the copies must, of necessity, be procured from abroad.
- 4.—The size of the work will be Imperial Quarto; and the plates will be printed on India paper, alone.
- 5.—Each subject will be accompanied by descriptive letter-press, in prose, (containing what may be called the history of the original work, and any well-authenticated anecdotes of interest connected with it,) and by a poetical illustration,—both from the pen of the Editor.
- 6.—Twelve of the monthly numbers will form a Volume,—for which a handsome title-page has been printed.
- 7.—With the sixth number will be given an Introductory Essay, from the pen of the Editor, on the subject of Sculpture, as applicable to the work,—to bind up with Vol. I.
- 8.—The numbers will be sewed in a richly-embellished cover,—for which a drawing has been made by Mr. CORBOULD, and has been engraved, in the first style of excellence.

And, finally,—while the proprietors pledge themselves that nothing shall be omitted which can add beauty or interest to a work which, they venture to think, is one of great interest and novelty in itself,—they are compelled to add that a considerable sale, only, can remunerate them for the heavy expences incident to a work of such high art; or enable them to continue it upon the scale on which, alone, they should be satisfied to lay it before the Public. High art can only be fitly illustrated by high art; and,—from the combination of it engaged in the present undertaking, and the more limited class of purchasers to which it addresses itself,—the proprietors have no hesitation in offering it as the finest amongst the embellished works which the present age of rich embellishment has produced.

Price of the Number,—India Paper,—Imperial Quarto,—6s. 6d.

A few proofs before the letters will be taken off, at 12s.;—for which, however, early application should be made, as their number will be limited to 50.

The following are a few of the Subjects which are in preparation, for the early Numbers of the Work.

"This is a valuable, or rather invaluable work. It brings the clear and simple classification of Cuvier very fairly before the English reader, and it presents to the continental one the results of observations which have of late been so largely made by our countrymen in those parts of the world to which the learned of other countries have neither so frequent nor so free access; and much of which, in its original form, is widely scattered through as many volumes, chiefly upon other subjects, as would fill a large library.

"The Editors have been indefatigable. They have collected an astonishing number of new facts, and those they have put together in a manner so judicious, and clothed them in language so perspicuous, and so appropriate to the subjects, that, apart altogether from the nature of the work, as a perfect encyclopedia of the science of those classes of animals of which it gives the history, it is an exceedingly amusing book, and would have a just claim to popularity upon that ground alone, without reference to its higher qualities. This work, therefore, in the best sense of the term, deserves to be popular, as it is calculated to entice those to read, who need to be enticed even into the acquisition of knowledge, and to reward them for the labour, which is hardly felt to be such. The characteristics of the writings of the Baron Cuvier are well known to the scientific world; clearness, conciseness, and a dignified simplicity, equally free from affected technicality of expression, and from that haunting disposition to make speculations revolve round a favourite theory, which have so much detracted from the merit, or at least the general usefulness, of many authors, otherwise by no means deficient in valuable qualifications,—are the just praise of the 'Règne Animal,' and are here well sustained by the able translators.

"It will be borne in mind, that Cuvier was the first that assigned man a proper place in the scale of animals—look him out of the society of the ape and the bat, to which he had been condemned by Linnaeus, whose arrangement of animals being wholly by the teeth, necessarily grouped together those which had few other qualities in common. On man, Cuvier is remarkably brief; but ample amends are made in the Supplement, by the editors and translators, where the more valuable parts of Campen, Blumenbach, Soemmering, Abernethy, and other eminent physiologists, are given, accompanied by remarks, condensed, but judicious, by Mr. Griffith and his coadjutors.

"We have not room for many observations that suggest themselves in favour of this valuable work. Nothing can be more clear, more simple, or more modest, than the observations and conclusions throughout. Besides all that recommends them in the printed matter, these volumes abound with plates, from drawings by Landseer and others, and all executed with a spirit that well illustrates the valuable matter in the text."—The Athenaeum.

The CLASS of BIRDS,

Complete in Nine Parts, forming 3 vols. price, in extra cloth boards, demy 8vo. 5l. 8s.; royal 8vo. 8l. 2s.; ditto coloured, 10l. 16s.; demy 4to. India proofs, 10l. 16s.

"If, as no one can deny, the study of the animated productions of nature be the most delightful that can occupy the attention of man, it is equally true that of that wide and varied kingdom, the chosen province, the very paradise, is the Birds. The gracefulness of their forms, the exquisite delicacy of their covering, the inimitable brilliancy of their colours, the light and life-giving transparency of the element in which they live, the singular variety of their habits, the delightful melody of their song, and the most singular fact that, with organs apparently more unfitted for articulation than many of the quadrupeds, they are the only animals that can imitate man in the wonders of voice, and rival him in the intricacy of music;—these, and a thousand other qualities, with the bare enumeration of which we could fill a number of our journal, render the birds the chosen favourite of every elegant mind.

"Even the fleetest of quadrupeds is heavy and lumbering in comparison. We boast of the greyhound, which lies panting and breathless upon the earth if it courses round a moderately sized field, or the race-horse that is exhausted with a three-mile heat; but what are these to the little swift, that can awaken from the eaves of an English cottage in the morning, and nestle in a date-tree on the borders of the great desert of Sahara before the sun be down? That little twitterer is the very "Puck" of creation:—it cannot, indeed, "put a girdle round about the earth in twenty minutes," but, at the rate of 260 miles an hour, (which is considerably within the computation of Spallanzani), it can circulate the globe in less than four days, and thus be from England to Africa in the brief space of four hours; even the eldier duck, apparently unwieldy as it is, could breakfast in Calitness and sup in Kent; and let the storm blow its worst, the golden eagle can dash right in the teeth of it at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

"In a study which is so delightful, it is quite refreshing to think that there is a work in a form easily accessible to all, and so full and varied, that each may find that which is more immediately interesting. Such is the work now before us, in which the text of the illustrious Baron Cuvier is faithfully given, together with all that has been added to the delightful science of Ornithology since the publication of his great work. The study of Zoology, in all its departments, is reviving in this country; and we know of no publication that is more calculated to spirit it on to farther exertions than this work, and the others of which it forms a part. The additional information is rendered valuable by the authorities being given; the supplements to the different orders embody all that is known of the habits of the genera and species, and the engravings, which are admirable both in their spirit and truth, are taken from rare specimens, and executed with much richness and freedom. They are also selected with great judgment: to have chosen those that are known to all, would have been of comparatively little value, as all that the student who found the living specimens in their native haunts would have done, could have been to criticise and compare; but by giving those chiefly which are rare and foreign, and comparing the figures with the descriptions, the student will be enabled, from the descriptions alone, to distinguish the native species whenever he meets with them. This is the most successful way of instruction, because, while it gives the lesson, it hides the schoolmaster. If we were to give a short opinion of it, it would be, that the book and the subject were equally delightful. Take the description of the manners of that most interesting bird, the Wood Grouse, which, though now unfortunately lost to the Ornithology of this country, still abounds in the extreme north of the continent, and of Asia; it is part of the appendage to the order Gallina, and a fair, but not flattering specimen of the work."—Literary Gazette.

"The Editors of this superior performance—certainly the best of the kind now in course of publication, beyond all comparison—pursue their labours with unhalting diligence. The present fasciculus completes the Order of the Gallinæ, and embraces, besides, nearly the whole of the Grallæ, or Wading Birds. Of the Gallinæ, the most extended account is naturally that of the domestic cock and hen—so much better known as they are—in the course of which the very curious process of Egyptian mechanical hatching is minutely described, as is also another matter equally curious, the mode of converting the capon into a nurse, according to Reaumur's suggestions, to accomplish the same purpose without the cruelty previously practised. The change in the self bearing of the bird, on his becoming again of importance, though not according to his original instinct, is worth attention.

"Instead of being melancholy, abashed, and humiliated, he assumes a bold, lofty, and triumphant air; and such is the influence of audacity over all animals, that this borrowed courage completely imposes on the cocks and hens, and prevents them from disturbing him in the fulfilment of his charge. At first he is a little awkward in the exercise of his office. His ambition of imitating, in his gait, the majesty and dignity of the cock, makes him carry his head too stiff, and prevents him from seeing the chickens, which he sometimes thus inadvertently tramples under foot. But experience soon teaches him to avoid such mishaps, and accidents of the same kind do not occur again. As his voice is not so expressive as that of the hen, to engage the chickens to follow and assemble near him, this deficiency has been supplied by attaching a little bell to his neck. When he is once instructed to conduct chickens in this way, he always remains capable of doing it; or, at all events, it is very easy to bring him back to the habit of it when required, &c. The capon has also been taught to hatch eggs—every thing, indeed, except to lay them."

"The plates are excellent, and on a good scale."—Monthly Magazine.

The CLASS of REPTILES,

Complete in One Volume, demy 8vo. 36s. ; royal 8vo. 2l. 14s. ; royal 8vo. coloured, 3l. 12s. ; demy 4to. India proofs, 3l. 12s.

"We have more than once noticed this work in its progress towards completion, and bestowed our meed of praise on its conductors, for the judicious manner in which they have blended interesting illustrations of the habits and nature of animals with the scientific system of Cuvier. Like all other sciences, zoology has its own peculiar phraseology; which to the general reader presents nothing but a dry catalogue of hard names, while to the student of the science it furnishes the only means for systematising knowledge and classifying observations. The great advance which has been made in the study of natural history within the last few years, has been owing rather to the accuracy than to the extent of the information acquired by modern travellers; when once the distinctive marks of the different classes and orders have been determined, the chances of mistake are infinitely diminished; we no longer meet with statements of anomalies and exceptions, but find that amid all variations and diversities there is a beautiful harmony in nature; that there are invariable laws for the animate as well as the inanimate creation; and that though within certain limits, there is room for many diversities, yet that those limits are never overpassed. The study of animated nature, always delightful, has thus acquired a new charm; for, in addition to its inherent interest, it has obtained at once the certainty and simplicity which constitute so great a portion of the pleasure derived from the study of the physical sciences. In man, nature has displayed the powers of the brain and the nervous system; to beasts she has given muscular energy; to the winged tribes of air she has presented a powerful pulmonary apparatus; and to the reptile kingdom she has assigned superior muscular contractility—whose results are ever the source of wonder and surprise. Each portion of zoological science has thus attractions peculiarly its own: in the mammalia we admire the display of strength and muscular exertion, while we trace the grades of docility and intelligence which find their consummation in man; the varied plumage and the rich harmony of the birds irresistibly arrest our attention; but in the reptiles we have to wonder at the amazing diversity of their forms, their wondrous tenacity of life, and, above all, their power of reproducing parts whose loss in other animals would be the certain termination of existence. It may well excite our astonishment, that there should be a common law of life to the alligator, the great terror of Southern America, and the harmless earthworm that we turn up in our fields; but it is no less true; and different as they are in outward form, it will be found that this general law produces a multitude of particular conformations. The structure and frame of the different classes of animals ever determine the laws of their existence; and when the anatomist has discovered the relative power and deficiency of the several organs, the history of the animal's life is known. The organic conformation which distinguishes the reptile tribes, is clearly shown in the work before us.

"The present Number contains the order Chelonis (tortoises), and part of the Sauria (lizards and crocodiles). The former division is enlivened by a very interesting account of the establishments for breeding turtle, in the West Indies; but we cannot understand why the writer should suppose that such depots will lead to the destruction of these animals. Though civic banquets may at present consume more than can be reared in the turtle-grounds, and consequently cause these establishments to be rather feeding-stores than breeding-places, the opportunities they afford of closely observing the animal's habits and economy, must eventually lead to the formation of a good system for their regular production, and thus ensure the continued glory of civic dinners, and the luxurious gratification of gourmands."—Literary Gazette.

"This is part of a great work on Natural History, which we have long had it in contemplation to notice as its interest and importance deserves; but a constant recurrence of more temporary matter has prevented, and must still prevent us from fulfilling our wish for the present. In the meantime we may state, that this work of the illustrious Cuvier is commensurate in extent and value with the great reputation which its author enjoys throughout civilised Europe, and that it offers, for the first time, a completely intelligible, satisfactory, and available system of zoological knowledge—a system that even the splendid labours of Blumenbach and Linnaeus yet still desideratum. The distinctive difference between the arrangement of Linnaeus and that of Cuvier is well explained in the following passage, from the Introduction to the English edition of his work:—

"The first leading distinction between our author and Linnaeus is in the grand division of the animal world. These the Baron makes to rest on the nervous and sensorial, not on the circulatory and respiratory systems. From a profound study of the physiology of the natural classes of vertebrated animals, he discovered, in the respective quantity of respiration, the reason of the quantity or degree of motion, and consequently, the peculiar nature of that motion. This last gives rise to the peculiar form of their skeletons and muscles; and, with it, the energy of their sensations, and the force of their digestion, are in a necessary relation. Thus, zoological arrangement, which had hitherto rested on observation alone, assumed in the hands of our illustrious author, for the first time, a truly scientific form. Calling in the aid of comparative anatomy, it involves propositions applicable to new cases; it becomes a means of discovery, as well as a register of facts; and by correct reasoning, founded on copious induction, it partakes of the demonstration of mathematics, and the certainty of experimental knowledge; in short, it becomes what it never was before,—a science.

"The present number (the 25th) forms Part I. of the class Reptilia, which it is proposed to complete in three parts. It contains seventeen plates, several of which are executed with much skill and spirit; and the work is got up altogether in a manner highly creditable to the state of the arts and of the scientific literature among us in the present day; and, that it has already reached five-and-twenty twelve-shilling numbers, is no less creditable to the spirit of encouragement which works of this nature receive among us, when prepared in a manner answerable to their interest and importance."—Court Journal.

"This class of the animal creation (Reptilia) is well worthy of notice, inasmuch as many of the subjects it includes are rarely seen in Europe. The first order is Chelonis, in which the Tortoise and Turtle are included. The second order, Sauria, includes the Crocodile, Alligator, and Lizard species. The descriptions are clear and explicit, and the work well supports its previous popularity, not falling off in the slightest degree from the early numbers. It is a most excellent book for youth, to whom the study of Natural History is indispensable."—New Monthly Magazine, Sept., 1830.

AND

The INSECTS, RADIATA, FISHES, MOLLUSCA, CRUSTACEA, &c.

Will form about Sixteen Parts. The whole thus comprising about Forty Parts.

The Work is so arranged, for the convenience of those who may confine their Zoological studies to either of the Classes, that each Class will make a distinct work, as well as one of the Series of the "Animal Kingdom." The conclusion will contain a Tabular View of the System, a Copious Index, and a general Terminology of the Science.

The engraved Illustrations of this Work are in a superior style of execution, by different Artists of distinguished eminence; and among the rest, many are by Mr. Landseer. Most of them are from original Drawings made from Nature, and several represent Species altogether new, or rarely figured before.

A SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME, just published, contains an ACCOUNT of the FOSSIL REMAINS of the ANIMAL KINGDOM.

Demy 8vo. 1l. 16s.; royal 8vo. 2l. 14s.; demy 4to. 3l. 12s.

In post 8vo. with Engravings, price 7s. 6d.

A DISCOURSE on the REVOLUTIONS of the SURFACE of the GLOBE, and the Changes thereby introduced into the Animal Kingdom.

By the BARON CUVIER.

Translated from the French, with Illustrations, and a Glossary.

CONSTABLE'S MISCELLANY

OF

ORIGINAL AND SELECTED WORKS,

IN THE

VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS.

Being intended for all ages as well as ranks, CONSTABLE'S MISCELLANY is printed in a style and form which combine at once the means of giving much matter in a small space, with the requisites of great clearness and facility.

Every Volume contains a Vignette Title-page; and numerous other illustrations, such as Maps, Portraits, &c. are occasionally given.

Each Volume contains at least 320 pages, price 3s. 6d.; a limited number being printed on fine paper, with early impressions of the Plates, price 5s.

A large paper Edition is printed of some of the Volumes, to range with Lardner's Cyclopædia, &c.

MORE than five years have elapsed since the commencement of CONSTABLE'S MISCELLANY, and its universal popularity, the continued support of all the leading periodicals, and the numerous imitations of it that have subsequently appeared, are the best proofs that can be given of the excellence of its plan, and of its perfect adaptation to the wants and wishes of the age. The increased and increasing diffusion of wealth and knowledge has formed, in these kingdoms, a new and very numerous class of readers, persons to whom the economy both of time and money is an object of importance, but who are, at the same time, anxious not to be left behind in the march of intelligence, and who are desirous to acquire information suited to the present advanced state of society. For such persons this series of publications was primarily designed; the convenient size of the volumes permitted them to be studied without any interruption to the necessary avocations of life and business; their cheapness placed them within the reach of every reader, and the neatness of their form, and elegance of their typography, rendered them ornamental as well as useful in the library. Even a cursory survey of the catalogue will suffice to show that the subjects selected for the Miscellany are precisely those respecting which information is most desirable, such as combine interest with utility, and valuable instruction with rational entertainment. The names of the writers, containing among them some of the first in the annals of modern literature, must be a sufficient guarantee for the style and execution of the several volumes; and the few specimens selected from the vast mass of favourable criticism will suffice to show, that from its commencement up to the present hour, the design, the successive parts, and the whole of CONSTABLE'S MISCELLANY, as far as completed, have received the warmest approbation from the legitimate guardians of literature.

Though the work has now passed into other hands, no change will be made in the original plan; the new proprietors are sincerely anxious to preserve its established character, and to make the concluding volumes like those that have already appeared, worthy of public favour, by preserving the great characteristics of the work,—cheapness, interest, and utility.

Of a select portion of the Miscellany, an edition is printed in small octavo.

Chambers' Scottish Rebellions. 5 vols. 25s.	Sinclair's Autumn in Italy. 1 vol. 5s.
Bell's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. 2 vols. 11s.	Stafford's History of Music. 1 vol. 5s.
Koch's Revolutions in Europe. 3 vols. 15s.	Bourrienne's Napoleon. 4 vols. 20s.
Conway's Travels in Norway, Switzerland, &c. 3 vols. 16s.	Memes' Josephine. 1 vol. 6s.
White's Natural History of Selborne. 1 vol. 6s. 6d.	Sutherland's Knights of Malta. 2 vols. 11s.
	St. John's Normandy. 1 vol. 5s. 6d.
	American Ornithology. 4 vols. 24s.

The Histories of the Scottish Rebellions and of Queen Mary illustrate so amply those periods in the Scottish annals on which Sir Walter Scott has founded his most popular novels, that the Proprietors have printed them in a form to match with his works.

Koch's Revolutions of Europe is a work so indispensable to every historical library that has even the most ordinary pretensions to completeness, that it was judged expedient to publish an edition of it, unconnected with the Miscellany, in a size and form that would render it not unworthy the notice of those who require some of the luxuries of literature, fine paper, and superior typography.

Few travellers have enjoyed such extensive and well-deserved popularity as Mr. Ingilt, or, as he chose to call himself, Mr. Derwent Conway; the large paper edition of his travels is designed to range in the library with the other works, not included in the Miscellany, which have been written by this admired author, and very extensively circulated.

The value of White's Selborne is so universally acknowledged, that the Proprietors of the Miscellany determined to prepare an edition of it more complete than the limited size of the volumes in their series would admit. To this edition are added the author's "Observations on various Parts of Nature," his "Summary of the Weather," his "Naturalist's Calendar," his "Posthumous Poems," and the original alphabetical Index.

Stafford's History of Music is published in this size and form, for the convenience of those who wish to combine beauty with utility in the formation of a library, being precisely that class of society in which music is most cultivated.

For the convenience of continental travellers, Sinclair's Italy, and St. John's Normandy, have been published in this separate form: they will be found instructive guides and entertaining companions.

The History of the Knights of Malta is almost the only isolated portion of modern history; it is complete in itself, and scarcely, if at all, is connected with the great continental revolutions. To poets and novelists it has furnished the themes most pregnant with exciting interest; and, if common fame may be credited, more than one of our greatest writers are even now about to select subjects from the romantic annals of those champions of Christendom.

The American Ornithology is so generally acknowledged to be one of the most delightful works on natural history, that the proprietors resolved to publish an enlarged edition of the work in a separate form, that would more easily admit pictorial illustrations than the small volumes of the Miscellany.

Bourrienne's Napoleon, and Memes' Josephine, in the large edition, form the most complete account of Napoleon and his family that has yet been published.

OPINIONS OF THE PERIODICAL PRESS.

"A real and existing library of useful and entertaining knowledge, neither puffed up by an upstart pseudo-monopoly, a junta in an university committee, nor a prostituted review."
—"This excellent design continues to increase in extent and value as it proceeds; and we are glad to find that its merits are rewarded by a corresponding increase of popularity."
—London Literary Gazette.

"This is a very delightful publication, conceived in the true spirit of genius, and executed with proportionate ability."—The Sun.

"We know not where so much good and valuable reading can be obtained at such an exceedingly moderate cost."—Courier.

"The first numbers have been very judiciously selected, and there is as rich promise of future excellence in the list attached to the present numbers. We cordially wish success to this speculation."—New Monthly Magazine.

"In every respect, this work seems well calculated to promote the greatness, and the happiness, the beneficial influence, and the true glory of our country."—Edinburgh Theological Magazine.

"We have heard, and we rejoice, that the Miscellany has been eminently successful. It well merits success, as well for its cheapness as for its elegance, and the intrinsic merit of the works which compose it."—Scots Times.

"We should think it difficult to attract the attention of the public too frequently to this work, whether we regard the judgment which must have dictated the comprehensive excellence of its general plan, or the very meritorious manner in which that plan has hitherto been carried into execution."—Edinburgh Observer.

"If this Miscellany is put, volume by volume, into the hands of youth, we know of no means by which their minds can be so effectually enlarged and stored with useful knowledge."—Edinburgh Weekly Journal.

VOLUMES I. II. III.

CAPTAIN HALL'S VOYAGES,

- viz.—I. Voyage to Loo Choo, &c. in the Eastern Seas.
 II. Interview with Napoleon, at St. Helena, in August, 1817.
 III. Journal written on the Coasts of Chili, Mexico, and Peru.

Captain Hall is too well and too favourably known to the public, to require any remarks on his great and varied qualifications as a descriptive writer. His voyages now rank among the standard works of English literature, and must hold that place while the union of a sailor's frankness, with a scholar's refinement, will be justly estimated. Being uniform with his interesting "Fragments of Voyages and Travels," it forms a very appropriate companion.

IV.

ADVENTURES of BRITISH SEAMEN.

By HUGH MURRAY, Esq. F.R.S.E.

The just pride that all Englishmen feel in their navy, will be gratified by the perusal of this volume, which contains many striking instances of the patient fortitude and unconquerable energies displayed by British sailors in the hour of danger.

V.

MEMOIRS of the
 MARCHIONESS DE LA LAROCHE JAQUELEIN.

With a Preface and Notes, by Sir WALTER SCOTT, Bart.

This volume contains a narrative of the Vendean War, by a lady who personally shared in all the exciting events of that unparalleled campaign.

VI. VII.

CONVERTS from INFIDELITY.

By ANDREW CRICHTON.

Archbishop Sharpe said that the best evidences of Christianity might be obtained from the death-bed—these volumes amply illustrate the truth of his assertion, and show that the philosophy which leads men to forget religion in the vigour of life and sunshine of prosperity, deserts them at their utmost need: and that in the time of adversity and of sickness, piety alone is a source of consolation, and pure religion the only support in the hour of death.

VIII. IX.

SYMES' EMBASSY to the KINGDOM of AVA.

With a Narrative of the late Military and Political Operations in the Birman Empire.

The anomalous empire founded by the British in India, presents every day some new and strange features to the public view; but none that better merit attention than its future probable relations with the Burmese. They do not disguise their anxiety to contest with us the empire of Hindoostan, and this work being the only authentic account of their character, deserves to be attentively read by all interested in the fortunes of our eastern dominions.

X.

TABLE-TALK: or, SELECTIONS from the ANA.

Works of this kind are more common on the continent than in England, where, in fact, they are supposed to be a species of jest-books; they are, however, an essential part of literature, being the casual observations of men of genius on topics that are rarely the subject of formal works.

XI.

PERILS and CAPTIVITY,

- viz.—I. The Shipwreck of the Medusa Frigate.
 II. Captivity of M. de Brisson.
 III. Voyage and Sufferings of Madame Godin.

Independent of the deep interest of these narratives, they are valuable in a philosophical point of view, since they furnish a curious illustration of the influence of affliction on the lively temperament of our Gallic neighbours, and form therefore an essential portion of the history of national character.

.XII.

SELECTIONS of the
MOST REMARKABLE PHENOMENA of NATURE.

By H. G. BELL, Esq.

The descriptions of natural wonders contained in this volume have been taken from numerous and very expensive works, not likely to fall into the hands of the general reader. To youth especially the work must be of great value, since it will stimulate them to further inquiries respecting the phenomena of the universe.

XIII. XIV.

MARINER'S ACCOUNT of the NATIVES of the TONGA ISLANDS, in the South Pacific Ocean.

From this work the most striking portions of Lord Byron's poem, The Island, have been derived.

XV. XVI.

HISTORY of the REBELLION in SCOTLAND,
in 1745, 1746.

By ROBERT CHAMBERS, Author of "Traditions of Edinburgh," &c.

In these volumes will be found many of the traditions on which the novels of Waverley and Redgauntlet have been founded.

XVII.

VOYAGES and EXCURSIONS on the EAST COAST, and in the INTERIOR of CENTRAL AMERICA.

By ORLANDO W. ROBERTS, many years a resident trader.

The countries described have been rarely visited by Europeans, and by none under circumstances so favourable to observation as Mr. Roberts. The volume contains some curious pictures of savage life, and is enriched by valuable practical hints respecting the extension of commerce in the Pacific Ocean.

XVIII. XIX.

The HISTORICAL WORKS of FREDERICK SCHILLER, from the German.

By GEORGE MOIR, Esq. Translator of "Wallenstein."

The history of the thirty years' war, which, after unparalleled vicissitudes, terminated in securing the establishment of the Protestant religion and the independence of the Germanic states, is here related by Schiller, whose name is scarcely second to Goëthe's in the modern continental literature.

XX. XXI.

An HISTORICAL VIEW of the Manners, Customs, Dresses, Arts, Literature, &c. of Great Britain, from the time of the Saxons down to the 18th Century.

By RICHARD THOMSON, Esq.

This is a proper supplement to the history of England, and enables the historical student to understand the causes and course of many events, which, from the change of customs and feelings, might otherwise appear absurd or even incredible.

XXII.

The GENERAL REGISTER of POLITICS, SCIENCE, and LITERATURE, for 1827.

An authentic memoir of Canning, and a judicious account of the establishment of the independence of the South American republics, give to this volume a more permanent interest than its title appears to claim.

XXIII.

LIFE of ROBERT BURNS.

By J. G. LOCKHART, L.L.B.

The editor of the Quarterly has never written anything more creditable to his head and to his heart than the life of Burns.

XXIV. XXV.

LIFE of MARY QUEEN of SCOTS.

By HENRY GLASSFORD BELL, Esq.

Few biographies are more interesting than that of the unfortunate Mary Stuart—none has given rise to more lengthened and more angry controversy. In these two volumes the principal events of her hapless life are detailed with great clearness, and the evidence for and against her stated very impartially.

XXVI.

EVIDENCES of CHRISTIANITY.

By the Venerable Archdeacon WRANGHAM.

In this volume the truth of Christianity is proved by seven successive and independent series of arguments; each separately is a perfect demonstration, but the effect of the whole united is irresistible.

XXVII. XXVIII.

MEMORIALS of the LATE WAR, viz.—I. Journal of a Soldier of the 71st Regiment.—II. The Spanish Campaign of 1808. By ADAM NEALE, M.D. F.L.S.—III. Despatch after the Battle of Corunna. By Lieut.-Gen. Sir JOHN HOPE.—IV. Reminiscences of a Campaign in the Pyrenees and South of France. By JOHN MALCOLM, Esq.—V. Memoirs of the War of the French in Spain. By M. de ROCCA.—VI. Narratives of the Battles of Quatre-Bras, Ligny, and Waterloo.—VII. Death of Napoleon Bonaparte.

The history of the late war was a subject too interesting and important to be omitted in the Miscellany: these volumes contain the narratives of those eye-witnesses who had the best capacity and opportunity for observation, and who were least likely to have their judgments warped by partiality or prejudice.

XXIX. XXX.

A TOUR in GERMANY, and some of the Southern Provinces of the Austrian Empire,

in 1820, 21, 22.

By JOHN RUSSELL, Esq.

The influence of German literature on the English mind is daily becoming stronger, and it is therefore useful to have the means of determining what result that influence will have, by seeing an account of the effects it has produced in its native land.

XXXI. XXXII.

HISTORY of the REBELLIONS of SCOTLAND under Montrose and others, from 1638 to 1660.

By ROBERT CHAMBERS, Author of "The Rebellion in 1745," &c.

These volumes contain several striking illustrations of the most powerful scenes described in the Waverley novels.

XXXIII. XXXIV. XXXV.

HISTORY of the PRINCIPAL REVOLUTIONS in EUROPE, from the Subversion of the Roman Empire in the West, till the Abdication of Bonaparte.

From the French of C. W. KOCH, by ANDREW CRICHTON.

Koch's Revolutions are in fact the grammar of modern history, and as such deserve to be studied most diligently. The three volumes contain a distinct and accurate outline of all the great changes that have occurred in Europe since the Roman empire was broken up, details the causes that have produced the rise and fall of its various dynasties, and shows to what concatenation of events its present political condition must be ascribed.

XXXVI. XXXVII.

NARRATIVE of a PEDESTRIAN JOURNEY THROUGH RUSSIA and SIBERIAN TARTARY.

By Captain JOHN DUNDAS COCHRANE, R.N.

A pedestrian tour by a captain in the royal navy is such a strange anomaly, that the volumes cannot fail to be amusing, but they possess much higher merits, for they afford us valuable information respecting the remote provinces of Russia, which cannot be obtained from any other source.

XXXVIII.

A PERSONAL NARRATIVE of a TOUR THROUGH NORWAY, SWEDEN, and DENMARK.

By DERWENT CONWAY, Author of "Spain in 1830," &c.

This volume contains an animated description of the magnificent scenery of Norway, and many interesting particulars respecting the present inhabitants of that country, which produced the heroic sea-kings, the conquerors of England, of France, and of Sicily.

XXXIX.

HISTORY of SCULPTURE, PAINTING, and ARCHITECTURE.

By J. S. MEMES, L.L.D. Author of "The Life of Canova," &c.

The histories of the plastic art are, for the most part, too technical for unprofessional readers, and too expensive for ordinary purchasers. In this volume will be found an account of the progress of these arts, sufficiently popular for general purposes, and at the same time so accurate, as not to be beneath the notice of men of science.

XL. XLI.

HISTORY of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, from its establishment in 1326 to 1828.

By E. UPHAM, Esq. Author of "The History of Budhism," &c.

The fortunes of the Turkish empire, in its rise, progress, and decay, present phenomena unparalleled in the annals of nations. This is the only English work that contains the modern history of the Turkish people, and indeed all the former histories were very expensive, and are now so rare as not to be acquired without difficulty.

XLII.

The REBELLIONS in SCOTLAND, under DUNDEE and MAR, in 1689 and 1715.

By R. CHAMBERS, Author of "The Rebellion in Scotland in 1745."

XLIII. XLIV.

HISTORY of REMARKABLE CONSPIRACIES connected with European History.

By J. P. LAWSON, M.A.

In these volumes are contained accounts of the assassinations of James I. and James III. of Scotland; the history of Fresco's conspiracy against Genoa; the history of the death of Don Carlos, which has afforded such a powerful theme to our best modern dramatists; the Gowrie conspiracy and the raid of Ruthven; the plot against Venice, the subject of Otway's great tragedy; the history of Massaniello; and an impartial account of the Gunpowder and Meal-tub plots in England.

XLV.

NATURAL HISTORY of SELBORNE.

By the late Rev. Gilbert White, M.A.

With Additions, by Sir W. JARDINE, Bart. Author of "Illustrations of Ornithology," &c.

Few works have enjoyed a more enviable or merited popularity than the Natural History of Selborne; the observations of a naturalist, enthusiastically devoted to the contemplation of the works of creation, written as they were suggested by the phenomena, with all the accuracy, but without the parade of science, constitute a volume whose peculiar interest can scarcely be paralleled. The labours of the editor have added many curious facts in animal economy, derived from the researches of modern naturalists.

XLVI.

An AUTUMN in ITALY; being a TOUR in the AUSTRIAN, TUSCAN, ROMAN, and SARDINIAN STATES, in 1827.

By J. D. SINCLAIR, Esq.

The condition of modern Italy is hourly becoming a matter of greater importance to Europe, on account of the consequences with which it is pregnant. This volume is, at the same time, a guide to the traveller and the politician; the former will find it a useful director, the latter will see described in it those elements of future strife which soon threaten to be fatally developed.

XLVII. XLVIII.

The HISTORY of OLIVER CROMWELL, comprising the History of the Commonwealth, from the year 1642 to the Restoration of Charles II. in 1660.

By M. RUSSELL, L.L.D.

On the interesting period of history embraced by these volumes, many valuable works have been published, but they are, for the most part, so disfigured by the virulence of party, that they are unsafe guides for the historical student. This work not only contains the biography of the Protector, but also a full account of the times in which he lived, the parties by which he was supported, and those with which he had to contend, the public policy of the period, and the private influence by which that policy was controlled.

XLIX.

LIFE of HERNAN CORTES ; including the History of the Conquest of Mexico.

By DON TELESFORO DE TRUEBA.

The interest that always attaches to the story of a life, is in this volume united to the importance of the greatest event that modern history records; an event that at once changed the entire face of Europe, and whose influence, even on private life, was scarcely of less magnitude than its effect on public policy.

L. LI.

HISTORY of CHIVALRY and the CRUSADES.

By the Rev. HENRY STEBBING, M.A.

These two volumes contain more information than can be found in any English work on these very interesting subjects.

LII.

THE HISTORY OF MUSIC.

By W. C. STAFFORD.

The treatises on the history of Music, like those on the plastic arts, were so expensive and technical, that the proprietors of Constable's Miscellany deemed that it would be no unacceptable service to procure a work on such a delightful subject, whose price should be within the reach, and whose matter within the comprehension of all classes.

LIII. LIV.

LIFE of SIR WILLIAM WALLACE of ELDERSLIE, with the History of his Struggle for the Independence of Scotland.

By JOHN D. CARRICK, Esq.

The name of Wallace is too deeply engraven on the hearts of all who love their country, no matter to what nation or clime they belong, for us to doubt that any person can read these volumes without feeling himself elevated by the consciousness that he belongs to the same species as the hero.

LV. LVI.

LIFE of KING JAMES the FIRST.

By ROBERT CHAMBERS.

These volumes, besides being of great importance to all students of English history, possess no small interest for the lovers of romance, since they contain the principal legends on which Scott has founded his tale, The Fortunes of Nigel.

LVII. LVIII. LIX.

MEMOIRS of NAPOLEON BONAPARTE, from the French of BOURRIENNE, Private Secretary to the Emperor.

By JOHN S. MEMES, LL.D.

Bourrienne was the playmate of Napoleon in early life, his companion through his first campaigns, and his private secretary after he had reached the summit of power. He has made the best use of his opportunities, and has revealed to us more of Napoleon's real character as a man, than any of the countless writers that have attempted his biography.

LX. LXI.

HISTORY of the WAR of INDEPENDENCE in GREECE.

By THOMAS KEIGHTLEY, Esq.

This is the best and almost the only complete account of the Greek war of independence, and its details furnish us with better descriptions of the modern Greek character than any other English work can supply.

LXII.

HISTORY of the CONQUEST of PERU by the SPANIARDS.

By DON TELESFORO DE TRUEBA.

The establishment of the independence of the South American republics was attended by circumstances little understood in Europe, from the ignorance that prevailed respecting the ancient history of the Spanish colonies. This volume contains very valuable information on the subject, and is, besides, more than ordinarily interesting from the pictures it contains of chivalrous enterprise, mixed with mercenary speculation, in the character and conduct of the Spanish captains.

LXIII. LXIV.

The ACHIEVEMENTS of the KNIGHTS of MALTA, from the Institution of the Hospitallers of St. John, in 1099, till the Political Extinction of the Order, by Napoleon, in 1800.

By ALEXANDER SUTHERLAND, Esq.

The History of the gallant community of the Knights of Malta is the most extraordinary union of romantic incident with historic truth that can be imagined. There never was a narrative, each page of which was crowded with such strange and important events, and each sentence more replete with exciting interest, than that contained in these volumes.

LXV.

JOURNAL of a RESIDENCE in NORMANDY.

By J. A. ST. JOHN, Esq.

This volume contains some very delightful descriptions of rustic manners in a part of France rarely visited by tourists, and is replete with valuable instruction for those whom circumstances or inclination may lead to seek either a permanent or temporary abode among our Gallic neighbours.

LXVI. LXVII.

A. JOURNEY through the NORTHERN PROVINCES of FRANCE, the PYRENEES, and SWITZERLAND.

By DERWENT CONWAY.

The countries described in these volumes are rarely visited by ordinary tourists, and they are portrayed with all that graphic energy which so peculiarly distinguishes the author's writings.

LXVIII. LXIX. LXX. LXXI.

AMERICAN ORNITHOLOGY of ALEXANDER WILSON and C. LUCIAN BONAPARTE, with Notes and Additions, by PROFESSOR JAMESON.

Of this, the most interesting work on Natural History that ever has been published, it is only necessary to say, that the editor has made this edition as accurate in science as it is delightful in description.

LXXII.

MEMOIRS of the EMPRESS JOSEPHINE.

By J. S. MEMES, Esq. LL.D.

This life of the faithful but hapless wife of Napoleon, is a very suitable companion to Bourrienne's Memoirs.

LXXIII. LXXIV.

The HISTORY of the CIVIL WARS of IRELAND.

By W. C. TAYLOR, M.A.

These volumes relate the calamitous history of the wars with which Ireland has been so long and so frequently devastated, and point out the effect they have produced on the present condition of that country.

LXXV. LXXVI.

The BOOK of BUTTERFLIES, MOTHS, and SPHINXES; containing, in addition to Descriptive Letter-press, 120 Engravings, coloured from Nature.

By Captain THOMAS BROWN, F.R.S. F.L.S. M.W.S. &c.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY;

A COLLECTION

OF

THE MOST AMUSING AND INSTRUCTIVE LIVES

EVER PUBLISHED,

WRITTEN BY THE PARTIES THEMSELVES;

WITH BRIEF INTRODUCTIONS AND COMPENDIOUS SEQUELS, CARRYING ON THE NARRATIVE TO THE DEATH OF EACH WRITER.

"BIOGRAPHY, however written," said an eminent critic, "always gives me more pleasure than any other species of writing, for there is no part of the life of any that have strutted and fretted their brief hour on life's busy stage, from which instruction may not be derived, as to what we should avoid or pursue." To this advantage, self-composed biography superadds others peculiar to itself; the writer throws aside the formality of authorship; his work takes the guise of a confidential communication; the stately lecturer is changed for a friend engaged in after-dinner conversation; and the mask which hid the springs and motives of action being thrown aside, the man reveals himself in his natural colours. From no other source can we derive such insight into human character; in no other way can we so effectually pursue "the proper study of mankind," that is, "man himself." A collection of such memoirs, besides being an exhaustless fund of amusement, is also a valuable collection of authentic facts for the study of the great science of human nature; they are in morals what experiments are in physics, both the foundation of knowledge, and the true test by which the accuracy of every theory must be determined. If the author be sincere in these confidential communications to posterity, we have the experiments detailed from the highest authority, for we have at once the evidence of the agent and the object; and even if he aim at concealment, the truth may easily be detected, for by showing what he wishes to appear, he virtually reveals what he really is.

The great requisite of such a collection is, that it should be diversified. Society and its various grades make so much of life artificial,—so large a portion of human conduct to depend on station and circumstance,—that it is not easy to point out how far character is the gift of nature, and how far it is the creature of accident; but by contemplating life in all its varied grades, we may soon learn how to separate the accident from the essence, and how to distinguish natural propensities from the feelings and desires superinduced by society. With a view to facilitating the acquirement of this practical philosophy, which the most learned may study with advantage, and to which any man of ordinary capacity may attain, the proprietors commenced this series of Autobiographies; and a cursory glance at the list of volumes already published, will prove that they have collected the lives of those who best illustrate the appearance of human nature, in situations at once the most diversified, and the best calculated for the development of character. Several of the volumes possess, in addition, great historical importance, introducing us into the private society of those who, either by their merits or their crimes, have acquired a conspicuous place in the annals of their race; and bringing us acquainted with the domestic habits and customs of periods distinguished for the occurrence of events that have produced permanent effects upon posterity.

VOL. I.

COLLEY CIBBER.

The dramatic profession is, perhaps, that which presents the most extraordinary vicissitudes of fortune. The life of the actor exhibits as frequent changes from tragedy to comedy, and from both to downright broad farce, as the stage he treads; it is full of "moving accidents" and "hair-breadth 'scapes," and is a perfect specimen of domestic romance. But besides his long and intimate acquaintance with those matters behind the scenes, which more than rival in interest what is acted before, Colley Cibber has other and, perhaps, higher claims upon our attention; he was a man of the world, as well as a man of the stage; a wit, a scholar, and not a very despicable poet; a coxcomb indeed, but a coxcomb of decided talent; the hero of the Dunciad, in consequence of his quarrel with Pope; the subject of a thousand stinging epigrams by the followers and flatterers of the splenetic bard; yet one who never lost his temper, under an accumulation of rhyming vengeance that would have driven any other human being out of his senses. Of the strange mélange that formed his character, every page of these memoirs bears the impress. The work also contains a history of the stage, at the interesting period when it was emerging from the gross licentiousness by which it had been polluted in the reign of the second Charles, and when, under the auspices of Steel, Addison, and Cibber himself, it was rapidly gaining a decided influence over society.

II.

HUME. LILLY. VOLTAIRE.

The great English historian's sketch of his life, though brief, is deeply interesting; it contains one very important lesson to young authors, which we should wish to see generally inculcated, that immediate success, or apparent failure, should neither immoderately excite nor depress. Lilly, the celebrated Sidrophel of Hudibras, gives us a detail of his astrological impostures, that form a strange chapter in the annals at once of quackery and credulity. Voltaire describes the circumstances of his intimacy with the King of Prussia in a vein of dry sarcastic humour, which none of his other works has surpassed.

III. IV.

MARMONTEL.

The age immediately preceding the French Revolution, and immediately leading to that fearful convulsion of society, took its character from the literary society of which Marmontel was among the most influential and least mischievous members. Uniting the single-minded simplicity of a child with the experience of a veteran in Parisian society, he describes with equal accuracy and spirit those literary circles, at once the glory and the infamy of France. The intimate of Voltaire, Rousseau, D'Alembert, Condorcet, and that host of able men whose misapplied talents brought ruin on an entire generation, he brings us acquainted with their merits, without attempting to advocate their principles, and pays homage to genius, while he mourns over its misdirection. No better guide exists than these memoirs to the history of European literature during the last century; and no better introduction to the annals of the French Revolution, than the details they contain of the causes that eventually led to that terrible disruption of society.

V.

ROBERT DRURY.

This is the plain narrative of a sailor's personal adventures in the island of Madagascar, where, after the murder of his companions, he was detained as a slave for fifteen years. In addition to the interest of a captive's changing fate, it contains some extraordinary pictures of savage life, in an island whose internal condition is still almost wholly unknown to Europeans.

VI.

GEORGE WHITFIELD. JAMES FERGUSON.

The personal narrative of one of the great apostles of a religious reformation that has extended its influence through the entire frame of British society, merits epithets of greater significance than interesting and important. George Whitfield was an orator of God's own making; a sincere philanthropist, that devoted his life to forward what he believed the best interests of man; a teacher, that pursued a long career in spite of calumny, virulent opposition, and scorn, without having his moral character subjected to the slightest imputation, even by his most violent enemies. The account he gives of his religious labours is beautifully simple and deeply affecting; and whatever opinions the reader may entertain of his doctrines, he cannot fail to be delighted with the exhibitions of apostolic zeal and devoted love of God and man that seem in every page. Ferguson's biography is the life of a self-taught scholar, whose ability and industry raised him from the lowest ranks of life to comfort and respectability.

VII.

MARY ROBINSON. CHARLOTTE CHARKE.

The lives of the two females recorded in this volume are replete with melancholy interest. Mrs. Robinson, a beautiful, highly-gifted, and engaging woman, was exposed to temptations from the heartless libertines that abound in society; in an evil hour she yielded to royal solicitation, was the darling play-thing of an hour, and was then a fatal example of reposing trust in those whose homage is merely sensual, and whose admiration is a snare. Mrs. Charke was the daughter of Colley Cibber, and her character is a perfect homo natura in the moral world. She details a life more whimsically eccentric than imagination in its wildest flights ever dared to picture, and reveals scenes of which those acquainted only with the ordinary occurrences of life could never have formed a conception.

"Whistled down the wind, a prey to fortune;"

VIII.

LORD HERBERT. PRINCE EUGENE.

The life of Lord Herbert, of Cherbury, a name for good and ill too well-known in the annals of English literature, needs not a word of commendation. As little, perhaps, does the biography of the great Prince Eugene, the companion and rival of our Marlborough, the last instance of the union of the spirit of ancient chivalry with the shrewdness of modern statesmanship.

IX. X.

AUGUSTUS VON KOTZEBUE.

The singular adventures of this extraordinary and unfortunate dramatist; the high character his works long maintained in Germany, France, and England; and the strange termination of his career by the hand of an enthusiastic assassin, must ever make his memoirs an object of curiosity. But this is not the only claim of these volumes; they throw considerable light on the political and social state of continental Europe, and contain better and more lively pictures of Russian and Siberian manners and scenery, than can be found in the pages of any modern travels.

XI.

JOHN CREIGHTON. WILLIAM GIFFORD.
THOMAS ELLWOOD.

Creighton was an officer employed in hunting the covenanted of Scotland during the persecutions of Charles II. and James II. Sir Walter Scott has been deeply indebted to these memoirs, in his Old Mortality, and bears ample testimony to their merits. The life of Gifford, the late editor of the Quarterly, is one of the most striking instances of the pursuit of knowledge under difficulties on record. Ellwood was one of the society of people called Quakers, and gives a very animated description of the bitter persecutions to which that sect was subjected on its first establishment.

XII.

LEWIS HOLBERG.

This author is justly regarded by the Danes as the founder of their modern literature. His memoirs are deeply interesting to Englishmen, for they contain the opinions of an enlightened foreigner on the merits and defects of our literary institutions, formed by Holberg during his residence in this country.

XIII.

JAMES HARDY VAUX.

The genuine life of a London pickpocket is truly a curiosity of literature; it is a new and not uninteresting chapter in the history of human nature; the legislator and the philosopher may study it with advantage.

XIV. XV.

EDWARD GIBBON.

The author of the "History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," has written his life in a form more instructive and engaging than any that has appeared before or since. His memoirs are a history of the formation of his character, both as a man and as a writer, detailed with a candour and ingenuousness as rare as they are agreeable.

XVI. XVII.

BENVENUTO CELLINI.

An able artist, a man of decided genius, the cotemporary and acquaintance of such sovereigns as Francis I., Charles V., Alexander, and Cosmo de Medici, the Popes Clement VII. and Paul III.; the friend and intimate of Michael Angelo, Titian, and Julio Romano, could not have written uninteresting memoirs. In addition to the valuable information respecting these personages, there is a raciness and originality in Cellini that irresistibly hurries the reader to the end of the book, and then leads him to regret that it is so soon concluded.

XVIII.

JAMES LACKINGTON.

The rambling memoirs of this fortunate bookseller are too generally known to require description. Besides the amusing sketches of life that they contain, his singular portraiture of methodism, and still more singular retraction, the work contains a valuable record of the slow but sure progress by which industry and sagacity lead to riches and independence.

XIX.

THEOBALD WOLFE TONE.

The Society of United Irishmen has been very unjustly held responsible for the crimes committed in the Irish insurrection of 1798. The account of this institution, detailed by one of its most energetic and able members, will be found replete with valuable information to the statesman and politician; while, to the ardent lovers of change, it will show the necessity of tempering patriotism with prudence—of pausing before kindling the torch of revolution, lest such a remedy for political evils should be worse than the disease.

XX.

BUBB DODDINGTON.

The secrets of the many political intrigues carried on by those who traded in party and principle in the time of George II., and during the early part of George III.'s reign, are detailed in these memoirs by one of the chief actors, with a complacency which is incomparably ludicrous. The traffic for seats in Parliament, the sale of votes for place and pension, the trials and chicanery of mercenary politicians, are recorded as incidents, innocent, if not laudable. It is, in fact, the ledger of a man whose stock in trade was an elastic conscience, a ready tongue, and moderate abilities, and who contrived to turn them all to good account by attentively watching the state of the market. This work should be read by all who are anxious to know the political state of England during the last century.

XXI. XXII.

THE MARGRAVINE OF BAREITH.

The Margravine was the sister of Frederic the Great, King of Prussia, and the daughter of Frederic William, one of the most brutal monarchs that ever disgraced a throne. The history of her life connects her with the most interesting events in the early part of the last century; but her memoirs are particularly valuable for the accuracy and simplicity with which she describes the peculiar manners of the German courts and princes of the period; manners that bordered on barbarism, but which the Margravine records as complacently as if they had been the perfection of refinement. The singular scenes enacted in her father's court, which border on the extreme of improbable ferocity, she describes with the utmost saiseté, as matters of such ordinary occurrence, that they could not excite the slightest surprise. This simplicity gives an irresistible charm to the work, and at the same time strongly confirms the veracity of the illustrious writer.

XXIII. XXIV.

GOLDONI.

The memoirs of this lively dramatist, the great reformer of Italian comedy, open to us scenes of life with which it is rarely the fortune of Englishmen to become acquainted. The author was a man of great and original genius, whose writings have been for more than half a century the delight of his countrymen: his simple good humour interests us in the account of the difficulties against which he had to contend, and his descriptions of the Italian stage-management, and practical workings of the Italian theatre, give his work a novelty that adds a zest to its other merits.

XXV. XXVI. XXVII. XXVIII.

VIDOCQ.

Vidocq was known to all the world of Paris as the most able thief and thief-taker that ever existed; in both professions he merited the rank of hero, and consequently his memoirs have the double interest of revealing roguery and its detection. For deep and varying interest; for a display of the human heart in its best and worst phases; for depravity aggravated by treachery, or relieved by the lingering remnant of better feelings, there is no work that can, for a moment, compete with the memoirs of Vidocq.

XXIX. XXX. XXXI. XXXII.

MADAME DU BARRI.

These are the genuine memoirs of an unfortunate female, the mistress of that heartless debauchee Louis XV., and reveal to us those iniquities of the French court which provoked the subsequent revolution, and, in some degree, palliated its excesses. It unintentionally exposes the depravity of kings and princes, the meanness of courtiers, and the effect of their conduct in depraving all the inferior ranks of society. The work is a solemn comment on the aphorism so often repeated, and as often disregarded, that "criminal pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall."

XXXIII.

WILLIAM SAMPSON.

These are the memoirs of an Irish exile, driven from his country for a suspected participation in the Irish insurrection of 1798, and contain a very curious and interesting narrative of his sufferings in England, Ireland, and Portugal. Comparatively recent as are the events, there are many to whom, at first sight, the unmerited persecutions of the writer may appear improbable; but a little examination of the documents by which the statements are supported, will soon convince him that the author has rather understated his case. An introduction is prefixed, detailing the causes of the Irish insurrection, by the author of the "History of the Civil Wars of Ireland."

A, exhibits the Pail or Receiver, with its earthen Basin and Air Trap at the top. B, is a Cistern, containing about Four Gallons of Water; C, is a small Door covering the opening, and into which the Water is put that fills the Cistern, B. D, is the handle of an Engine which draws the Water out of the Cistern, B, forcing it through the Washer, E, into the Basin on the top of the Pail; which Water, acting by its own weight on the Air Trap, forces it down, carrying the contents of the Basin into the Pail.

B. When the Pail requires emptying, it must be drawn out in the front, and may then be removed, without causing the least effluvia. Great care must be taken, in removing the Pail, to draw it clear away from the Washer; and the same care taken to push it well back when replaced; also not to fill the Cistern more than within Two Inches of the top; and not to omit putting some Water in the Groove inside the top of the Pail.

Fig. 3.—The Water Closet in the form of a Pedestal or Box.

Fig. 4.—The same Article shewn open for use.

Fig. 4.

The Machinery of this Closet is the same, in every respect, as that in Fig. 2; but when it is requisite to remove the Pail, the Seat or Flap, A, must be raised, the Pail drawn forward from the Washer, and lifted out.

MAPS AND PLANS illustrative of LIVY, 8vo. boards, price 12s.

MAPS AND PLANS illustrative of POLYBIUS and XENOPHON,
price 3s. 6d.

If we were desired to mention a series of works calculated to assist the student in his progress, we should refer him to some publications which have lately appeared at Oxford.
Of these the Atlases before us are not the least useful. They contain not only the general Maps necessary for the study of Grecian History, but also Plans and Sections illustrative of particular passages in the authors above mentioned. These chorographical treasures, long locked up in expensive publications, are now given to the world. Gail and Reimel are the principal authorities, and the engraver has executed his task with ability.

We earnestly recommend to the classical student an immediate acquaintance with the Maps under review. Classical Journal.

Divinity.

THE ARTICLES OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, with Notes compiled from the writings of the most eminent Divines of the Church of England, confirmed by texts of the Holy Scripture, price 2s.

This little book contains a brief history and orthodox exposition of the Articles; with notes from Tomline, Welshman, Burnet, and Mant, and a well chosen selection of Scripture proofs; it cannot be otherwise than useful, not only as a book of reference, but as an instructive guide for those who have not leisure for consulting larger works. Christian Remembrancer.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE HISTORICAL BOOKS OF THE OLD TESTAMENT, with notes and references to the most approved Commentators, 12mo. price 6s. boards.

This is a useful and important little work: it is adapted to give the young a clear idea of the course of Scripture History, and the more advanced reader will find great advantage with the assistance it offers to the recollection. The notes are well selected, and all highly useful. We recommend the work to general attention, not as superseding the Bible in its proper form, but as a key to its contents. Athenaeum.

THE ARTICLES OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, with Proofs and a Series of Questions, price 1s.

KEY TO THE QUESTIONS ON THE ARTICLES OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, price 1s.

CATECHISM OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION, with Scripture Proofs at length, 12mo. price 3s. boards.

A clear, concise, and comprehensive explanation of the principles of the Christian faith and practice; and we hope that the present translation, which is well executed, will obtain for it a more extended notice than it has hitherto enjoyed. The Scripture Proofs which are subjoined in the text are, for the most part, well selected and satisfactory vouchers for the doctrines inculcated and explained. Christian Remembrancer.

CHRONOLOGY of the Principal Persons and Events in the History of the Jews from the Creation to the final destruction of Jerusalem, on a card, price 1s.

COMPANION FOR THE SICK ROOM; or a Manual of Devotions for the Sick and Infirm; to which is added, a Thanksgiving after recovery from Sickness. Compiled by the Author of Discourses of a Father to his Children, 12mo. price 3s. 6d.

HARMONY OF THE MIRACLES, PARABLES, SAYINGS, ETC. OF CHRIST, CONTAINED IN THE FOUR GOSPELS, on one sheet, price 1s. 6d.

HARMONY OF THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS, shewing the Prophecies in the Old Testament and their fulfilment in the New, price 2s. boards.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION TO THE SEVERAL BOOKS OF THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS, compiled from the most eminent Divines of the Church of England, price 2s. 6d. boards.

HISTORICAL AND TYPICAL CONNECTION BETWEEN THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS, shewing the Types in the former and their fulfilment in the latter, fourth edition, price 1s.

KEY TO THE BIBLE; or, a General Introduction to the Study and Profitable Reading of the Holy Scriptures, in Question and Answer, in one vol. 12mo. price 6s. boards.

MANUAL OF DIVINITY, compiled for the Use of Students, 2 vols. 18mo. fifth edition, cloth boards, price 9s.

The same, bound in morocco, gilt leaves, price 15s.

This is a useful and comprehensive Manual, and will be found of considerable advantage for the purpose of general information, as well as for refreshing the memory of the student, by laying before him a compendious digest of his more extended researches. It contains also a carefully compressed epitome of the authors, subjects, and dates of the several books in the Bible; with such other topics of its general history, with which every student should be acquainted, though he may not have leisure for the critical examination of its contents. Christian Remembrancer.

NATURAL THEOLOGY, by WILLIAM PALEY, D.D. illustrated by a series of 41 Plates and Explanatory Notes. By JAMES PAXTON, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London. Second edition, with additions, 2 vols. 8vo. price 1l. 8s.

Mr. Paxton has executed the task in a manner so satisfactory, as well deserves the thanks of the public.

We are the more particular in recounting the nature of the illustrations, because we are desirous of recommending Mr. Paxton's work; and knowing the reluctance of most purchasers of a work to take a new edition, which seems thereby to render their former purchase useless, our author has very properly accommodated these unwilling buyers, by publishing a series of his prints, with letter-press descriptions, in a separate form. It is therefore to be hoped that no reader of the original book will be without it. Edinburgh Review.

SUMMARY OF THE EVIDENCES OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION. By BEILBY PORTEUS, D. D. price 1s.

GROTIUS ON THE TRUTH OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION, by John Clarke, D.D. 12mo. boards, price 5s. 6d.

A SERIES OF THIRTY-SIX ENGRAVINGS, with descriptive letter-press, illustrative of PALEY'S NATURAL THEOLOGY, 8vo. boards, price 15s. A few proof impressions may be had, price 1*l.* 1s.

PROPHETICAL CONNECTION BETWEEN THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS, with a table of the Prophecies and their fulfilment, fourth edition, price 1s.

RELIGIO MEDICI; by Sir THOMAS BROWNE, Knt. new edition, price 4s. bds.

Sir T. Browne's Religio Medici is a work as extensive in its fame among the well informed, as it is little known to casual readers: it is a volume abounding in wisdom and beauties, and to him who may not have read it, promising the richest harvest of delight of any work we could recommend. Athen. April 21, 1832.

SHORT NOTES ON THE FOUR GOSPELS, selected from the best Divines of the Church of England. By the Rev. R. B. PAUL, late Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, 12mo. price 4s. 6d. boards.

WATT'S SHORT VIEW OF SCRIPTURE HISTORY, 18mo. price 2s. boards.

BUCOLICS AND GEORGICS OF VIRGIL, with a Literal Translation, Explanatory Notes, and Illustrative Plates. By JOHN MARTYN, F.R.S. Professor of Botany in the University of Cambridge, 12mo. extra boards, price 10s. 6d.

The Same, without the Translation, for the Use of Schools, 12mo. extra cloth boards, price 7s.

The object of the present edition of Martyn's Bucolics and Georgics of Virgil being to combine cheapness with utility, it has been deemed necessary to omit or curtail the numerous quotations from ancient authors, which have been inserted at great length in the former editions: those only are retained which appeared essential to the clear understanding of the author. Anatomp.

INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF HUMAN ANATOMY. By JAMES PAXTON, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, and Author of the Illustrations of Paley's Natural Theology: illustrated with upwards of Two Hundred Wood Cuts, 8vo. cloth boards, price 2*l.*s.

This work may justly be said to make Anatomy an easy and delightful study, and will speedily become the favourite anatomical guide of professional students, and of all those who are desirous of making themselves acquainted with the structure of the human body. The text is accurate, concise, and very perspicuous: every part described is illustrated by a wood cut, in the same page with the descriptive text: by this judicious arrangement the student will find his labours very much diminished and facilitated. Medical Journal, March, 1831.

TREATISE ON LOGIC, ON THE BASIS OF ALDRICH, by the Rev. JOHN HUYSHE, M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, second edition, 6s.

This treatise is intended to assist those who wish to study Aristotle's Logic, in order to pass their examination in the Oxford Schools. The author's sole endeavour has been to render the study of the science as easy as he could, and he has freely made use of the suggestions of others, wherever he thought that they were calculated to elucidate any difficulty. Preface.

INTRODUCTION TO LOGIC: from Dr. Whately's 'Elements of Logic,' by the Rev. SAMUEL HINDS, M.A. of Queen's College, and Vice-Principal of Alban Hall, Oxford, 6s.

This treatise contains a selection from Dr. Whately's Elements of Logic of so much of that work as is necessary to qualify candidates for examination in the Schools. Preface.

A TABULAR VIEW OF VOLCANIC PHENOMENA, comprising a List of the Burning Mountains, which are either now in action, or have existed in former periods throughout the globe; together with the dates of their respective Eruptions, and of the principal Earthquakes which they have occasioned. By CHARLES DAUBENY, M.D. F.R.S. Professor of Chemistry in the University of Oxford.

The Tabular View of Dr. Daubeny presents at a glance a well arranged, accurate, and comprehensive view of much that is interesting in volcanic history and description, and therefore we do not hesitate recommending it to the attention of the geologist. Edinburgh New Philosophical Journal, September.

PINNOCK'S GUIDE TO KNOWLEDGE.

On July 7 will be published, in a 4to. of eight pages, No. I. (and continued weekly)

PRICE ONE PENNY,

THE GUIDE TO KNOWLEDGE,

WITH

ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS,

UNDER THE SUPERINTENDANCE OF
MR. W. PINNOCK,

AUTHOR OF "PINNOCK'S CATECHISMS," "GRAMMARS OF MODERN, SACRED, AND CLASSICAL GEOGRAPHY," &c. &c.

OF all the employments of Life, that of the attainment of KNOWLEDGE is of the highest importance; to aid which is the object of the present work. The EDITOR is well aware that there are several excellent works of a similar form and price already before the public; but notwithstanding their general ability and comprehensive aim, he thinks that yet an untrodden path remains to be explored. His object is to induce STUDENTS to begin at the beginning, and before we gather the fruit, to have the history of the TREE, and thereby show its origin, its progress, and its uses. Hence the usual method of communicating KNOWLEDGE, will be reversed.

Here the Student will be made to begin at the bottom of the TREE, and work upwards, and while doing so, he will gather the fruits of his labour. As there are many branches of KNOWLEDGE, some of which are easy, and others difficult of attainment, the former should be acquired first; by this course, the difficulty of the latter would be considerably diminished, as the faculties will become more and more capable and vigorous by their gradual exertion. If the contrary course be adopted, the mind will be embarrassed, and the attainment of knowledge will be at once irksome and limited. By following up the plan here proposed, the road to KNOWLEDGE will be as easy as the end will be profitable and delightful.

It is by the diffusion of KNOWLEDGE that MAN becomes civilized, that the inlets of happiness are opened, and that SOCIETY is formed on a firm, advantageous, and solid basis.

There are few persons who are incapable of acquiring all the KNOWLEDGE they need desire; and those who shall pay attention to the advice which will be furnished in this work, will readily accomplish their object.

The subjects to be treated of are very numerous, comprising the whole course of LITERATURE, SCIENCE, and the ARTS. Popular Introductions to which will be speedily given.

To accomplish a task so arduous and important as that we have undertaken, no labour or expense will be spared; and the EDITOR feels a peculiar pleasure in stating that he will be assisted by some of the most eminent literary men of the day, among whom he has to name J. RENNIE, Esq., M.A., Professor of Natural History, KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.

A NEW VOLUME
BY THE CELEBRATED DR. PHILIP DODDRIDGE.

On the 7th of July, in crown 8vo, price 8s.

THE DEVOTIONAL LETTERS

AND

Sacramental Meditations

OF

DR. PHILIP DODDRIDGE;

TO WHICH ARE ADDED

HIS LECTURES ON PREACHING, AND THE MINISTERIAL OFFICE.

In announcing this volume, the Publisher feels it a duty to remark, that the whole of the Letters which it contains are eminently pious, and as many of them were addressed to parties suffering from affliction, the pathetic tenderness they evince, and the religious consolation and advice they convey, cannot but render them of great service in families, and so truly valuable to all Christians, that every individual will be desirous of possessing them.

Of the SACRAMENTAL MEDITATIONS, it may be sufficient to say, that in relating the spiritual experience of Dr. Doddridge, they constitute a practical sequel to that invaluable work, "The Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul," and in this sense will be a treasure to pious readers of every denomination.

As the Lectures on the "Ministerial Office" have never before been printed in a form calculated for that extensive usefulness for which they are so well adapted, they are included in this volume. The great value of these Lectures, as a Manual for those who are preparing to administer in divine things, is duly acknowledged; but it may not be improper to add, that, as containing a series of characteristic sketches of the more important theological writers both in the Establishment and among the Dissenters, and as affording a variety of instructions on points of general conduct, and on the art of composition, they will prove of benefit to persons of every class.

On the whole, as it may be justly remarked, that the genuine spirit of the Gospel pervades every page of this book, the hope is confidently entertained, that it will prove one of the most influential supports to the cause of Evangelical Truth, which has appeared since the first publication of "The Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul."

On the 15th of July, will be published, No. I. of

THE GRAPHIC
AND HISTORICAL ILLUSTRATOR,
A Weekly Journal

OF
ANTIQUARIAN, TOPOGRAPHICAL, AND HISTORICAL LITERATURE,
&c. &c.

WITH SUPERIOR ENGRAVINGS ON WOOD,

TO BE EDITED BY EDW. W. BRAYLEY, ESQ., F.S.A. M.R.S.L., &c.
(AUTHOR OF THE HISTORY AND ANTIQUITIES OF WESTMINSTER ABBEY, AND NUMEROUS OTHER TOPOGRAPHICAL WORKS.)

ASSISTED BY MANY EMINENT LITERARY CHARACTERS.

WITHOUT pretending to pass our opinion on any of the numerous weekly periodicals which the present demand for cheap and popular literature has called forth in rapid succession, we may be permitted to say, that among them all there is not one specifically appropriated to the objects we have in view. The ILLUSTRATOR, therefore, enters upon a field where others have not pitched their tents, and which is sufficiently extensive and diversified in itself to allow sufficient range and variety to our labours.

That Antiquarian and Topographical studies may be rendered far more popular than they have hitherto been—more attractive and interesting to the uninitiated, without becoming in such form unworthy the attention of those who have long pursued them—there can be no doubt. Graphic Illustration has a charm for almost every one; and many who have, at first, been attracted by that alone, have insensibly acquired a relish for investigating and inquiring into the subjects thus introduced to them. From careless and casual inspection, they have been led on to make themselves acquainted with the history of the buildings and places they are shown—to compare their former with their present state; to learn who were their founders or occupiers, and what events or traditions are connected with them; and, afterwards, to study whatever relates to the architecture, the state of art and literature, the manners, the habits, the costume, of former periods—taking the term costume in its most liberal and comprehensive sense. Such collateral inquiries, if not indispensably necessary to the study of history, in the popular import of the word, are undoubtedly of extensive assistance, while they impart to it an additional charm, and confer on its scenes and actors that reality, and those vivid colours, without which history itself either sinks into a dry chronological register of events, or imperceptibly transforms itself into philosophical discussion.

Our NATIONAL ANTIQUITIES will, of course, occupy a considerable portion of our attention, and will furnish the chief subjects of our embellishments, comprising Buildings, Monuments, Furniture, Dress, Arms, Sports and Amusements, &c. While our HISTORICAL department will embrace Biography, Genealogy, Family History, Traditions, Anecdotes, Letters, &c., with Portraits of distinguished and remarkable individuals, from monuments and other authentic documents; fac-similes of their autographs, and other illustrations.

Topography will also supply us with abundant materials that may be referred to either of the preceding heads, besides local descriptions and subjects for the pencil.

As it will be advisable for us to keep variety in view, we shall not confine ourselves to the Antiquities and History of our own country, although they will naturally obtain a greater share of notice. Those of other countries, especially of such as have been most connected with England, and where the progress of society has been nearly parallel with our own, will come in for some share of notice. Neither shall we scruple to introduce, as opportunity may offer, subjects of modern architecture or topography, feeling assured that they will materially add to the interest of the ILLUSTRATOR, and tend to render it more generally attractive and popular than it could otherwise expect to be. By so doing, we shall be accumulating stores, of which future topographers will be able to avail themselves, at the same time that it will enable us to give, from time to time, notices and engravings of buildings not before described.

The ILLUSTRATOR will be published WEEKLY, at THREEPENCE each number; and, to secure good impressions of the engravings, the printing will be intrusted to Mr. C. WHITTINGHAM, Jun.

Communications for the Editor are to be addressed to the care of Mr. J. GILBERT, 228, Regent Street.

A DICTIONARY,

PRACTICAL, THEORETICAL, AND HISTORICAL,

OF

COMMERCE AND COMMERCIAL NAVIGATION.

By J. R. M'CULLOCH, Esq.

ILLUSTRATED WITH MAPS

OF

THE WORLD, ON MERCATOR'S PROJECTION; EUROPE, CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN, WITH THE MEDITERRANEAN SEA; BRITISH POSSESSIONS IN NORTH AMERICA; CENTRAL AMERICA AND THE WEST INDIES; AND A PLAN OF THE RIVER THAMES AND DOCKS.

It has been the wish of the Author and Publishers of this Work, that it should be as extensively useful as possible. If they be not deceived in their expectations, it may be advantageously employed, as a sort of vade mecum, by merchants, traders, ship-owners, and ship-masters, in conducting the details of their respective businesses. It is hoped, however, that this object has been attained without omitting the consideration of any topic, incident to the subject, that seemed calculated to make the book generally serviceable, and to recommend it to the attention of all classes.

Had our object been merely to consider commerce as a science, or to investigate its principles, we should not have adopted the form of a Dictionary. But commerce is not a science only, but also an art of the utmost practical importance, and in the prosecution of which a very large proportion of the population of every civilized country is actively engaged. Hence, to be generally useful, a work on commerce should combine practice, theory, and history. Different readers may resort to it for different purposes; and every one should be able to find in it clear and accurate information, whether his object be to make himself familiar with details, to acquire a knowledge of principles, or to learn the revolutions that have taken place in the various departments of trade.

The following short outline of what the Work contains, may enable the reader to estimate the probability of its fulfilling the objects for which it has been intended:—

I. It contains accounts of the various articles which form the subject-matter of commercial transactions. To their English names are, for the most part, subjoined their synonymous appellations in French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish, &c.; and sometimes, also, in Arabic, Hindoo, Chinese, and other Eastern languages. We have endeavoured, by consulting the best authorities, to make the descriptions of commodities as accurate as possible; and have pointed out the tests or marks by which their goodness may be ascertained. The places where they are produced are also specified; the quantities exported from such places; and the different regulations, duties, &c. affecting their importation and exportation, have been carefully stated, and their influence examined. The prices of most articles have been given, sometimes for a lengthened period. Historical notices are inserted illustrative of the rise and progress of the trade in the most important articles; and it is hoped that the information embodied in these notices will be found to be as authentic as it is interesting.

II. The Work contains a general article on COMMERCE, explanatory of its nature, principles, and objects, in which there is an inquiry into the policy of restrictions intended to promote industry at home, or to advance the public interests, by excluding or restraining foreign competition. Exclusive, however, of this general article, we have separately examined the operation of the existing restrictions on the trade in particular articles, and with particular countries, in the accounts of those articles, and of the great sea-port towns belonging to the countries referred to. There must, of course, be more or less of sameness in the discussion of such points, the principle which runs through them being identical. But in a Dictionary this is of no consequence. The reader seldom consults more than one or two articles at a time; and it is of infinitely more importance to bring the whole subject at once before him, than to seek to avoid the appearance of repetition by referring from one article to another. In this Work such references are made as seldom as possible.

III. The articles which more particularly refer to commercial navigation are AVERAGE, BILLS OF LADING, CHARTERPARTY, FREIGHT, MASTER, NAVIGATION LAWS, OWNERS, REGISTRY, SALVAGE, SEAMEN, SHIPS, WRECK, &c. These articles embrace a pretty full exposition of the law as to shipping: we have particularly endeavoured to exhibit the privileges enjoyed by British ships; the conditions and formalities, the observance of which is necessary to the acquisition and preservation of such privileges, and to the transference of property in ships; the responsibilities incurred by the masters and owners in their capacity of public carriers; and the reciprocal duties and obligations of owners, masters, and seamen. In this department we have made considerable use of the work of Lord Tenterden on the Law of Shipping,—a work that reflects very great credit on the learning and talents of its noble author. The registry act and the navigation act are given entire. To this head may also be referred the articles on the COD, HERRING, and WHALE Fisheries.

IV. The principles and practice of commercial arithmetic and accounts are unfolded in the articles BOOK-KEEPING, DISCOUNT, EXCHANGE, INTEREST AND ANNUITIES, &c. The article BOOK-KEEPING has been furnished by one of the official assignees under the new bankrupt act. It exhibits a view of this important art as actually practised in the most extensive mercantile houses in town. The tables for calculating interest and annuities are believed to be more complete than any hitherto given in any work not treating professedly on such subjects.

V. A considerable class of articles may be regarded as descriptive of the various means and devices that have been fallen upon for extending and facilitating commerce and navigation. Of these, taking them in their order, the articles BANKS, CANALS, CARRIERS, COINS, COLONIES, COMPANIES, CONSULS, CONVOY, DOCKS, FACTORS, LIGHT-HOUSES, MONEY, PARTNERSHIP, PILOTAGE, POST-OFFICE, RAIL-ROADS, ROADS, TREATIES (COMMERCIAL), WEIGHTS AND MEASURES, &c. are among the most important. In the article BANKS the reader will find, besides an exposition of the principles of banking, a pretty full account (derived principally from official sources) of the Bank of England, the private banks of London, and the English provincial banks; the Scotch and Irish banks; and the most celebrated foreign banks: to complete this department, an account of Savings' Banks is subjoined, with a set of rules which may be taken as a model for such institutions. There is added to the article COINS a table of the assay, weight, and sterling value of the principal foreign gold and silver coins, deduced from assays made at the London and Paris Mints, taken, by permission, from the last edition of Dr. Kelly's Cambist. The article COLONIES is one of the most extensive in the work: it contains a sketch of the ancient and modern systems of colonization; an examination of the principles of colonial policy; and a view of the extent, trade, population, and resources of the colonies of this and other countries. In this article, and in the articles QUEBEC, SYDNEY, and VAN DIEMEN'S LAND, recent and authentic information is given, which those intending to emigrate will find worthy of their attention. The map of the British possessions in North America is on a pretty large scale, and is, if not the very best, second to none, of those countries that have hitherto been published in an accessible form. It will be a valuable acquisition for emigrants to Canada, Nova Scotia, &c. The article COLONIES is also illustrated by a map of Central America and the West Indies. An engraved plan is given, along with the article DOCKS, of the river Thames and the docks from Blackwall to the Tower; and the latest regulations issued by the different dock companies here and in other towns, as to the docking of ships, and the charges on that account, and on account of the loading, unloading, warehousing, &c. of goods, are given verbatim. The statements in the articles LIGHT-HOUSES and PILOTAGE have been mostly furnished by the Trinity House, and may be implicitly relied upon. In the article WEIGHTS AND MEASURES, the reader will find tables of the equivalents of wine, ale, and Winchester measures, in Imperial measure.

VI. Besides a general article on the constitution, advantages, and disadvantages of Companies, accounts are given of the principal associations existing in the country for the purpose of conducting commercial undertakings, or undertakings subordinate to and connected with commerce. Among others (exclusive of the Banking and Dock Companies already referred to) may be mentioned the EAST INDIA COMPANY, the GAS COMPANIES, the INSURANCE COMPANIES, the MINING COMPANIES, the WATER COMPANIES, &c. The article on the East India Company is of considerable length; it contains a pretty complete sketch of the rise, progress, and present state of the British trade with India; a view of the revenue, population, &c. of our Indian dominions; and an estimate of the influence of the Company's monopoly. We have endeavoured, in treating of insurance, to supply what we think a desideratum, by giving a distinct and plain statement of its principles, and a brief notice of its history; with an account of the rules and practices followed by individuals and companies in transacting the more important departments of the business; and of the terms on which houses, lives, &c. are commonly insured. The part of the article which particularly respects marine insurance was contributed by a practical gentleman of much knowledge and experience in that branch.

VII. In addition to the notices of the excise and customs regulations affecting particular commodities given under their names, the reader will find articles under the heads of CUSTOMS, EXCISE, IMPORTATION AND EXPORTATION, LICENCES, SMUGGLING, WAREHOUSING, &c. which comprise most of the practical details as to the business of the Excise and Customs, particularly the latter. The most important customs acts are given with very little abridgment, and being printed in small letter, they occupy comparatively little space. The article TARIFF contains an account of the various duties, drawbacks, and bounties, on the importation and exportation of all sorts of commodities into and from this country, as they stood on the 1st of January, 1832. We once intended to have also given the tariffs of some of the principal continental states; but from the frequency of the changes made in them, they would very soon have become obsolete, and would have tended rather to mislead than to instruct. We have, however, given the existing tariff of the United States.

VIII. Among the articles of a miscellaneous description may be specified, APPRENTICE, AUCTIONEER, BALANCE OF TRADE, BANKRUPTCY, CONTRABAND, CREDIT, HANSEATIC LEAGUE, IMPORTS AND EXPORTS, IMPRESSMENT, MARITIME LAW, PATENTS, PAWNBROKING, PIRACY, PRECIOUS METALS, PRICES, PRIVATEERS, PUBLICANS, QUARANTINE, &c.

IX. We have, under their proper heads, given accounts of the principal emporiums with which this country has any immediate intercourse; of the commodities usually exported from and imported into them ; of their monies, weights, and measures ; and of such of their institutions, customs, and regulations, with respect to commerce and navigation, as seemed to deserve notice. We have occasionally subjoined to these notices of the great seaports, pretty full accounts of the trade of the countries in which they are situated ; as in the instances of AMSTERDAM, BORDEAUX, CANTON, HAVANNAH, HAVRE, NEW YORK, PETERSBURGH, RIO DE JANEIRO, VERA CRUZ, &c. To have attempted to do this systematically would have increased the size of the Work beyond all reasonable limits, and would have embarrassed it with details nowise interesting to the English reader. The plan we have adopted has enabled us to treat of such matters as might be supposed of importance in England, and to reject the rest. We believe, however, that notwithstanding this selection, those who compare this work with others, will find that it contains a larger mass of authentic information respecting the trade and navigation of foreign countries, than is to be found in any English publication.

The reader may be inclined, perhaps, to think that it must be impossible to embrace the discussion of so many subjects in a single octavo volume, without treating a large proportion in a very brief and unsatisfactory manner. But, in point of fact, this single octavo contains about as much letter-press as is contained in two ordinary folio volumes, and more than is contained in Macpherson's Annals of Commerce, in four volumes quarto, published at 8l. 8s. ! This extraordinary condensation has been effected without any sacrifice either of beauty or distinctness. Could we suppose that the substance of the book is at all equal to its form, there would be little room for doubt as to its success.

Aware that, in a work of this nature, accuracy in matters of fact is of primary importance, the authority on which any statement is made is invariably quoted. Except, too, in the case of books in every one's hands, or Dictionaries, the page or chapter of every work referred to is generally specified ; experience having taught us that the convenient practice of stringing together a list of authorities at the end of an article, is much oftener a cloak for ignorance than an evidence of research.

Our object being to describe articles in the state in which they are offered for sale, we have not entered, except when it was necessary to give precision or clearness to their description, into any details as to the processes followed in their manufacture.

Besides the maps already noticed, the work contains a map of the world, on Mercator's projection, and a map of Central and Southern Europe and the Mediterranean. These maps are on a larger scale than those usually given with works of this sort ; and have been carefully corrected, and compared with the best authorities.

Such is a rough outline of what the reader may expect to meet with in this Dictionary. We do not, however, flatter ourselves with the notion that he will consider that all that has been attempted has been properly executed. In a work embracing such an extreme range and diversity of subjects, as to many of which it is exceedingly difficult, if not quite impossible, to obtain accurate information, no one will be offended should he detect a few errors. At the same time we can honestly say that neither labour nor expense has been spared to render the Work worthy of the public confidence and patronage. The author has been almost incessantly engaged upon it for upwards of three years ; and the previous part of his life may be said to have been spent in preparing himself for the undertaking. He has derived valuable assistance from some distinguished official gentlemen, and from many eminent merchants ; and has endeavoured, wherever it was practicable, to build his conclusions upon official documents. But in very many instances he has been obliged to adopt less authentic data ; and he does not suppose that he has always had recourse to the best authorities, or that, amidst contradictory statements, he has uniformly selected that most worthy of being relied upon, or that the inferences he has drawn are always such as the real circumstances of the case would warrant. But he has done his best not to be wanting in these respects. We have had no motive to induce us, in any instance, to conceal or pervert the truth. What we have considered wrong, we have censured freely and openly ; but we have not done this without assigning the grounds of our opinion ; so that the reader may always judge for himself as to its correctness. Our sole object has been to produce a work that should be generally useful, particularly to merchants and traders, and which should be creditable to ourselves. Whether we have succeeded, the award of the public will show ; and to it we submit our labours, not with "frigid indifference," but with an anxious hope that it may be found that we have not misemployed our time, and engaged in an undertaking too vast for our limited means.

* Where the name of the place is not given, the parties are resident in London or its immediate vicinity.

III.—Anonymous Correspondence: containing interesting Papers on Questions of Medical Politics.

IV.—Analyses and Notices of Books: containing a very full Account of Dr. Bright's great work on the Brain, Vol. II. (Vol. III. to be similarly given in the current Nos.); and Critiques of 51 Medical Works lately published. In this department will be found, in the shape of abstract or short quotation, the essence of all the elaborate volumes, official documents, and ephemeral brochures, which have recently issued from the press on the subject of CHOLERA.

V.—Extracts from English, American, French, Italian, and German Journals; presenting the most important Medical Novelties in these several countries.

VI.—Reports of Learned Bodies: containing full digests of the Papers read at the Medico-Chirurgical Society, Royal Institution, and College of Physicians; with a Selection of Debates at the Westminster Medical Society.

VII.—Clinical Reports, limited to important Operations, and instructive Cases, at some of the principal Hospitals in the Kingdom.

VIII.—Weekly and Annual Meteorological Journals, kept by Mr. Adams, at Edmonton; Weekly Returns of Cholera in London, and in Great Britain.

IX.—Leading Articles and Editorial Observations on all the questions of Medical Politics, and current Topics connected with Medicine, calculated to interest the Profession. This department constitutes a series of short Essays, in which the chief aim is to examine the subjects discussed, with freedom, but without perversion.

X.—The volume is supplied with a very copious Index, by which the matters it contains are rendered easy of access; the whole constituting a complete and authentic Record of the History and Literature of Medicine during the period.

The GAZETTE is published in Numbers every Saturday Morning, price 3d.; also in Monthly Parts.

DR. LARDNER'S CABINET CYCLOPÆDIA,

IN MONTHLY VOLUMES, PRICE SIX SHILLINGS EACH, IN CLOTH.

CONSIDERABLE progress having been made in this work, the publishers wish to direct the attention of the public to the advantages by which it is distinguished from other similar monthly publications.

It is not intended that the Cabinet Cyclopædia shall form an interminable series, in which any work of interest which may present itself from time to time can claim a place. Its subjects are classified according to the usual divisions of literature, science, and art. Each division is distinctly traced out, and will consist of a determinate number of volumes. Although the precise extent of the work cannot be fixed with certainty, yet there is a limit which will not be exceeded; and the subscribers may look forward to the possession, within a reasonable time, of a complete library of instruction, amusement, and general reference, in the regular form of a popular Cyclopædia.

The several classes of the work are—1, Natural Philosophy; 2, the Useful and Fine Arts; 3, Natural History; 4, Geography; 5, Politics and Morals; 6, General Literature and Criticism; 7, History; 8, Biography; 9, a General Dictionary of Reference.

In the more abstruse and technical departments of knowledge, an attempt has been made to convey to the reader a general acquaintance with these subjects by the use of plain and familiar language, appropriate and well-executed engravings, and copious examples and illustrations, taken from objects and events with which every one is acquainted.

Among the volumes already published in the literary department, no less than four have been the production of men who stand in the first rank of literary talent,—Sir James Mackintosh and Sir Walter Scott. In the scientific department, a work has been produced from the pen of Mr. Herschel, which has been pronounced by the highest living authority on the subjects of general philosophy, to contain “the noblest observations on the value of knowledge which have been made since Bacon,” and to be the finest work of philosophical genius which this age has seen.

DR. COPLAND'S
 DICTIONARY OF PRACTICAL MEDICINE,

Uniform with Cooper's Surgical Dictionary.

IN THE PRESS, AND SPEEDILY WILL BE PUBLISHED,

 OF PRACTICAL MEDICINE;

COMPRISING

GENERAL PATHOLOGY, THE NATURE AND TREATMENT OF DISEASES, MORBID STRUCTURES,

AND THE

DISORDERS ESPECIALLY INCIDENTAL TO CLIMATES, TO THE SEX, AND TO THE DIFFERENT EPOCHS OF LIFE;

With numerous approved Formulæ of the Medicines recommended.

By JAMES COPLAND, M.D.

CONSULTING PHYSICIAN TO QUEEN CHARLOTTE'S LYING-IN HOSPITAL; SENIOR PHYSICIAN TO THE ROYAL INFIRMARY FOR CHILDREN; MEMBER OF THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS, LONDON; OF THE MEDICAL AND CHIRURGICAL SOCIETIES OF LONDON AND BERLIN, &c.

THIS work will contain, in an abstract and condensed, yet comprehensive form, the opinions and practice of the most experienced writers, British and Foreign, so digested and wrought up with the results of the Author's practice, that the Student and Young Practitioner will not be bewildered in the diversity of the opinions and facts adduced for their instruction, but be guided in the difficult path on which they have entered, and enabled, with a due exercise of their powers of observation and discrimination, to arrive at just conclusions and successful practical results. To the experienced Practitioner also, the Work will present a diversified range of opinions, methods of cure, and authorities, which his matured judgment will enable him to apply in an appropriate manner, to particular cases. It will also comprise the complications and modified states of Disease which are even more frequently met with in practice, than those specific forms too often described by Nosologists as constant and unvarying types, to which morbid actions, occurring under a great variety of circumstances, can never closely adhere. When discussing the methods of Cure, the Author has given Formulæ of the Medicines recommended, in the most efficient and approved forms of combination. He has likewise furnished numerous References to the best Works and Treatises on the topics discussed in each article.

In conclusion, the Work will contain the results of many years of laborious study and research, and of twenty years' extensive and diversified experience.

The Work is being printed in a small, but clear type, cast for the purpose, in the common 8vo. size; and uniformly with the last edition of Mr. Cooper's Surgical Dictionary: it will be confined within the compass of one large volume.

The NINTH VOLUME, containing the Description of ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, and IRELAND, and a copious GENERAL INDEX, will speedily be completed. It has been found necessary to have the department of Great Britain entirely re-written for the English Edition, on a scale commensurate with the importance which the English reader attaches to this portion of Geography. The printing of the present volume has been delayed till the publication of the census of 1831, that the Editor may avail himself of the latest information.

The Index is so constructed as to be a complete Table of Reference to the whole book, at the same time that it forms an extensive and useful Gazetteer.

THE EDINBURGH GAZETTEER ;

Or, COMPENDIOUS GEOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY : containing a Description of the various Countries, Kingdoms, States, Cities, Towns, Mountains, Seas, Rivers, Harbours, &c. of the World ; an Account of the Government, Customs, and Religion, of the Inhabitants ; the Boundaries and Natural Productions of each Country, &c. ; forming a complete body of Geography, Physical, Political, Statistical, and Commercial. By J. C. LOUDON, F.L. H.G. Z.S. &c.

With upwards of Eleven Hundred Engravings on Wood.

New Edition, in 1 large Volume, 8vo. price £2. 10s. extra boards.

No pains have been spared on the part of either the author or the publishers to render this second edition of the Encyclopædia of Agriculture as perfect as possible. The author undertook a journey into France and Germany in 1828, on purpose to procure information respecting the present state of Agriculture on the continent; and the publishers have gone to the expense of nearly 500 new Engravings, nearly half of which are new subjects. The co-operation of upwards of forty individuals, (a list of whom is appended,) has also been procured, or voluntarily given; and their suggestions or additions have embraced almost every department of the work. On the whole, the author thinks himself warranted in asserting that the work is now as perfect as its nature and the present state of agricultural science and practice will admit.

WORKS PUBLISHED
BY BALDWIN AND CRADOCK,
LONDON;

UNDER THE SUPERINTENDENCE OF THE SOCIETY FOR THE DIFFUSION OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE.

I.

The LIBRARY of USEFUL KNOWLEDGE.

OF this series of publications 126 Numbers, at sixpence each, are already printed. They appear at intervals of a fortnight, and are illustrated by numerous Cuts wherever the matter requires them. Although the various subjects are published without much apparent attention to systematic order, yet it is the endeavour of the Society to complete volumes, with Indexes, as speedily as is consistent with a lucid arrangement of the contents of each. The vast quantity of matter which is compressed within the compass of a single volume renders it impossible to publish once a fortnight, and yet let each volume proceed without interruption to its end. The various subjects, therefore, necessarily appear in a desultory manner; but, eventually, this Series will form the cheapest and most comprehensive Encyclopædia that has ever appeared.

The Subjects of the 126 Numbers already published, are:—

Of these the following are completed in volumes:—

VOL. I. NATURAL PHILOSOPHY; consisting of	{ The Preliminary Treatise, Hydraulics, Hydrostatics, Heat, Mechanics, Optics, Polarization of Light, Glossary, and Index.	Fifteen Numbers. Price 8s. in cloth boards.
VOL. II. NATURAL PHILOSOPHY; consisting of	{ Popular Introduction to Natural Philo- sophy, Newton's Optics, Optical In- struments, Thermometer and Pyro- meter, Electricity, Galvanism, Mag- netism, Electro-Magnetism, Glossary and Index.	Nineteen Numbers. Price 10s. 6d. in cloth boards.

The HISTORY of GREECE, nine Numbers, price 5s. bds.

GEOMETRY, Plane, Solid, and Spherical, nine Numbers, 5s. bds.

A volume of BIOGRAPHIES; THE CHURCH, in one volume; ROME, in one vol.; GEOGRAPHY, Physical, Mathematical, and Political, in one vol.; ASTRONOMY, with the History of Astronomy, in one vol.; SPAIN, PORTUGAL, and SWISSERLAND, in one vol., are all in course of completion.

The other subjects marked thus (*) in the list of Numbers are complete in themselves, and may be bound together; but are not formed into volumes until other analogous Treatises are prepared to accompany them.

II.

THE FARMER'S SERIES.

This Series is intended to comprise all those subjects which are peculiarly interesting to the Country Resident, the Farmer, and the Husbandman; and will eventually form a FARMER'S LIBRARY.

The Subjects of the 25 Numbers already published are:—

Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17.	{ THE HORSE. Fifteen Numbers. Price 8s. 6d. in cloth boards.	Nos. 7, 12, 18, 21, 25	{ Reports of the Cultivation of Select Farms.
No. 24. The Mountain Shepherd's Manual.		Nos. 19, 20, 22, 23	{ On Planting Timber & Orna- mental Trees.

The great variety of Amusement, and the complete course of Instruction, illustrated by very numerous Figures, which have been compressed into the single volume, entitled "THE HORSE," have deservedly rendered it one of the most popular works of the day. On the same plan are now preparing—

A volume on CATTLE and SHEEP.

A volume on DOGS, and those inferior Animals which are useful or destructive to the Farmer.

Two volumes on HUSBANDRY.

Also, various other Treatises in RURAL and DOMESTIC ECONOMY; to form, as has been stated, a Farmer's Library.

III.

M A P S.

In order to accompany the various Historical and Geographical works published, and to be published, by the Society; and also for the purpose of forming a Modern and an Ancient ATLAS, moderate in size, economical in expence, and yet sufficiently comprehensive for the Library, the Society have proceeded far in the publication of a Series of GEOGRAPHICAL MAPS, of a size varying from 14 inches by 10 to 17 inches by 14, two of which Maps are sold in a wrapper for 1s.; or, if coloured, for 1s. 6d.

The Numbers already published are 23; and contain,

Thus the Maps of Greece, Turkey, Persia, Egypt, Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, Poland, the Netherlands, and England, are complete, with Plans of most of their Capitals.

These MAPS are compiled from the very best Authorities, both official and private. The Scale varies according to the acknowledged importance of the respective Countries and Districts. The ANCIENT MAPS— a very useful and interesting feature of which is, that they are precisely on the same scale as the corresponding MODERN—are compiled with the greatest care, and under the most rigorous scrutiny. The whole are engraved, in the best manner, on Steel; and their Cheapness is unexampled in any country.

The Society have also published, of the same size as the Geographical Maps, price 3s. plain; 6s. with the Constellations coloured; and 6s. on India paper,

SIX MAPS OF THE STARS,

Laid down on the Gnomonic Projection, including all the Stars to the Sixth Magnitude, or such as can be seen with the naked eye. These Maps, placed on a ten-inch cube, will supply the place of a Celestial Globe, and will be found exceedingly useful in Schools.

ON THE SAME PROJECTION, ARE ALSO PUBLISHED,

Price 3s. Plain, and 4s. 6d. Coloured,

SIX MAPS OF THE WORLD,

In size 10 inches by 10.

A few Copies of these Maps of the Terrestrial Globe are printed without the Names and Places, for the Exercise of Students in filling up the same. Price 3s.

A Selection of Six of the other Maps are also printed in Outline, for the same purpose, price 3d. each, or 1s. 6d. in a wrapper.

A Portfolio has been constructed on a peculiar Plan,

For the express purpose of containing and preserving the Maps until the entire Atlas shall be complete for binding. Price 7s.

In consequence of the very general approbation which has been bestowed on the Six Maps of the Stars, on the Gnomonic Projection, it has been determined to produce another Set on the same plan, but of the extent of 24 inches by 24. This work will contain all the Stars in Piazzi's Collection, and all the Nebulæ in Bode's. The Double Stars will be distinguished, as in the smaller edition, by two dots following the reference. These Maps will have the Lines of Longitude and Latitude, as well as those of Right Ascension and Declination; thus affording the means of determining, at once, the effect of Precession on any Star.

MISS EDGEWORTH'S TALES AND NOVELS.

Published, on the First of May,

Volume I., price 5s., uniform in size and appearance with the "Waverley Novels" and "Lord Byron's Life and Works."

TO BE COMPLETED IN EIGHTEEN MONTHLY VOLUMES.

The TALES and NOVELS of MARIA EDGEWORTH.

The DRAWINGS to illustrate this attractive Edition of the most engaging writer of the age are wholly by HARVEY, and engraved by CHARLES ROLLS, GOODALL, H. ROBINSON, BACON, &c. in the most finished style of excellence; each Volume to contain a Frontispiece and Vignette; and the work is bound in a cloth manufactured and embossed for the purpose, and lettered in gold.

To delineate, with accuracy, the peculiar Scenery of Ireland, and give to native character all its humour and truth, Mr. Harvey visited many of its districts, and has thus been able to introduce into his talented sketches, living Character and much of the wild and beautiful Scenery of the country.

* * Sir Walter Scott, in his General Preface to the first Volume of the "Waverley Novels," thus alludes to Miss Edgeworth's writings: with such valuable testimony to her merits, and her long-established fame, the Publishers have been urged to place an edition of her Works, uniform in size and appearance, by the side of the most popular book that was ever published.

"Without being so presumptuous as to hope to emulate the rich humour, pathetic tenderness, and admirable tact, which pervade the works of my accomplished friend, I felt that something might be attempted for my own country, of the same kind with that which Miss Edgeworth so fortunately achieved for Ireland—something which might introduce her natives to those of the sister kingdom, in a more favourable light than they had been placed hitherto, and tend to procure sympathy for their virtues and indulgence for their foibles."

The whole of the Works have undergone a careful revision and correction by the Author.

The First Volume, comprising "Castle Rackrent" and "Irish Bulls," is illustrated with fine Engravings by H. Robinson and I. Cook.

Volume the Second, being the first of "Moral Tales," with exquisite Engravings by C. Rolls and Engleheart, was published on the 1st of June.

Volume Three, being the second of "Moral Tales," with fine Illustrations by I. W. Cook, will be published on the 1st of July.

TESTIMONIALS OF THE PERIODICAL PRESS.

"Here is the first number of an undertaking, which, if it do not command a popularity at least equal in extent to that of any of the similar undertakings now in progress, will not be treated as its surpassing merits and attractions deserve. Miss Edgeworth's Tales are not merely unique in their kind, but they are unequalled in their moral value and utility. The Scotch Novels are glorious productions; but we doubt if they have done the good that Miss Edgeworth's have, except in so far as relates to the delight they have caused, and which we fully admit to be a most unequivocal good, and one of a high quality. What we mean is, that little knowledge was ever acquired from the Scotch Novels, except of that general kind whose results are general also. They make us wiser and better, and consequently happier; but they do not teach us to ponder on our actual position in the actual world, and act upon the results of the self-knowledge, or knowledge of the world thus acquired. Now Miss Edgeworth's Novels do this, and to more various and important effect than any other existing productions of a similar character. We have no hesitation, therefore, in placing this elegant, yet cheap, reprint of Miss Edgeworth's Works at the very head of those undertakings of a similar form and object which the present passion for cheap literature has called forth."—Court Journal, April 28, 1832.

"We hail, with pleasure, the promised reprint of the Works of this ingenious and useful writer. Many are the happy hours that we have spent over her almost inexhaustible pages, and much delight do we promise ourselves in this elegant and splendidly-embellished series."—Spectator, May 5.

"One of the most beautiful volumes we have seen: paper, print, binding, all of the best quality, and in the finest taste, and the Work illustrated by Harvey, who, as a book illustrator, hardly needs our good word. The Work is to be completed in eighteen monthly volumes, and a very complete Work it will be; cheap enough for the deal shelves of the mechanic, and handsome enough for the boudoir of a lady."—Athenæum, April 28.

"Of all the re-publications which the combined exertions of artists, publishers, printers, and binders are now making, we anticipate for none a better reception than for the present series. In externals it vies with the best of its precursors; and in 'that which passeth show,' the combination of good sense, utility, entertainment mixed with instruction, and an untiring endeavour to make us all wiser, better, and happier, where are we likely to find eighteen volumes to compare with those of Miss Edgeworth?"—Tatler.

"It is got up, as the phrase is, with considerable taste and elegance: the Designs are by that rising artist, Harvey; the Engravings by eminent hands, and the Work will form a handsome addition to any Library. It is somewhat too late to write detailed criticisms on Works which have already taken their place in our literature; but it is only fair to Miss Edgeworth to say, that the School of National or Historic Novels, since brought to such perfection by Sir Walter Scott, was founded by her. 'Castle Rackrent,' as Sir Walter acknowledges, was the original of 'Waverley.' It is, indeed, a curious and faithful Picture of the Irish Squirearchy of the last Century—of a race now almost extinct."—Standard, April 24.

"The world is a large debtor to Miss Edgeworth. For the last forty years she has been an eminent instructress in the difficult art of social well-being, in the science of happiness. The grand-children of those whom she informed and benefitted are now reaping the fruits of her labours in improved modes of mental and of moral culture, and in increased knowledge. During nearly the same period she has held the envied place of the most high and popular of the fair preachers of the fashionable world; and, unlike most other great dignitaries, she has been, beyond all doubt, the most useful and practical."—Tait's Edinburgh Magazine, No. 3.

"All the cheap publications are not mischievous or worthless. Nobody, we suppose, who has any pretensions to sense or taste, will dispute the value of the writings of Miss Edgeworth,—writings of which a great master (Sir Walter Scott) has said, that he should think it “presumption to hope to emulate the rich humour, the pathetic tenderness, and admirable tact which pervade them.” This praise is not undeserved, as any intelligent person who has read ‘Castle Rackrent,’ ‘Ennui,’ ‘Ormond,’ and the ‘Absentee,’ will allow without hesitation. Some of her English Tales, (such as ‘Leonora,’ and ‘Belinda,’ and ‘Patronage,’) abound in just observation and in spirited sketches of character and manners; but they fall far short of that animated but most accurate delineation,—that keen but most benignant sagacity,—that rich but never extravagant humour,—that affecting but never exaggerating pathos, which characterize all her portraits of Irish life. Here she is unrivalled, and will probably continue so, for it is difficult to conceive such various qualifications again combined in one person. These distinguished works are now in a course of cheap publication, at the rate of five shillings a volume, each volume containing as much matter as in all previous editions has been sold for twelve shillings or fifteen shillings.” —Times, May 24, 1832.

“It was an excellent idea to re-publish Miss Edgeworth’s Tales. To no person living is her country more indebted. She first disabused the English mind of many absurd and time-engendered notions, disreputable to our warm-hearted and well-intentioned fellow subjects. Divested of prejudice, and partial to truth, the pictures which she presents to us are neither too highly tinted, nor are the sombre hues concealed beneath a mass of florid colouring, too rich to be true.” —News, May 26, 1832.

In the Edinburgh Review, No. 28, for July, 1809, is the following remark on Miss Edgeworth’s works:—“If it were possible for reviewers to envy the authors who are brought before them for judgment, we rather think we should be tempted to envy Miss Edgeworth; not, however, so much for her matchless powers of probable invention—her never-failing good sense and cheerfulness; nor for her fine discrimination of character, as for the delightful consciousness of having done more good than any other writer, male or female, of her generation.”

HER WORKS FOR YOUNG PERSONS.

HARRY and LUCY, concluded; being the last part of Early Lessons. In Four vols. 12mo. price 17s. neatly half-bound.

“Looking merely at its literary merits, this is a delightful book; considered merely with a view to its object, it is a very important one. Miss Edgeworth, in her ‘Harry and Lucy,’ makes use of fiction, as the vehicle of instruction. This is no new undertaking, but it is the most successful we have ever met with.” —London Magazine.

EARLY LESSONS, in four vols., price 11s., half-bound.

ROSAMOND; being a Sequel to Rosamond, in the Early Lessons. Two vols. price 5s., half-bound.

FRANK; being a Sequel to the Story of Frank, in the Early Lessons. Three vols. price 9s., half-bound.

The PARENT’S ASSISTANT: or, Stories for Children. A New Edition, complete in three vols., 18mo., with fine Engravings on Steel, from Drawings by Harvey. Half-bound, price 10s. 6d.

“I feel convinced that one of Miss Edgeworth’s ‘Stories for Children’ is worth all the questions and answers that have made History easy or Geography light.” —Miss London.

LITTLE PLAYS for CHILDREN; being a Continuation of the Parent’s Assistant. 18mo. half-bound, price 3s. 6d.

POETRY EXPLAINED. 18mo., half-bound, price 2s. 6d.

READINGS in POETRY. 18mo. half-bound, price 3s.

COMIC DRAMAS. 12mo., boards, price 7s.

ESSAYS on PRACTICAL EDUCATION. Three vols., 12mo., price 16s. 6d. boards.

WORKS

Published under the Superintendence of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge,

BY

C. KNIGHT, PALL-MALL EAST.

THE LIBRARY

OF

ENTERTAINING KNOWLEDGE.

THE object of this Series is to meet the wants of that numerous class of readers, in every condition of life, who are desirous to attain knowledge chiefly through the medium of amusement. To those who are anxious to instruct themselves in the Sciences and History, by diligent reading and study, the Library of Useful Knowledge affords the requisite information. But as there are many persons who, from want of time or of the habit of study, are reluctant to acquire knowledge when presented in a didactic form, so there are also many of the most interesting facts of science and literature which are too scattered to be well arranged in a systematic treatise. In this Series of works the object of the Society is, to give as much useful information as can be conveyed in an amusing form; and it is hoped, that by presenting to those who are desirous of occupying their vacant time with a book containing some of the most attractive parts of knowledge, they will be gradually led to appreciate the value of a fuller and more systematic pursuit of studies, which, instead of being dry and repulsive, contain matters capable of affording delight as well as improvement. At the same time, those who are engaged in the task of self-instruction will find in this series an agreeable relaxation, which will not weaken the mind or distract it from more arduous pursuits.

In order to show the manner in which the work is embellished, specimens of the Illustrations in Wood are given in the succeeding Lists.

The subjects which have hitherto been treated of, or the preparations for which being nearly completed will shortly make their appearance, are as follow :—

MENAGERIES.

MENAGERIES, Vols. I. and II.—This branch of the Series is confined to QUADRUPEDS, and is an endeavour to lead the reader to a gradual acquaintance with the Science of Zoology, by instructing him in the peculiarities of individual animals, without adhering to a systematic classification. The Two Volumes already published contain accounts of the different varieties of the Dog, the Wolf, the Hyena, the Lion, the Tiger, the Camel, the Llama, the Giraffe, the Antelope, the Deer, and the Elephant; and are illustrated with one hundred and sixty-one wood-cuts. It is calculated that this subject will be completed in about five volumes.

INSECTS.

INSECT ARCHITECTURE, INSECT TRANSFORMATIONS, and INSECT MISCELLANIES form a complete work on ENTOMOLOGY, comprising the most interesting and important facts of that branch of Natural History, derived either from the personal observations of the Author, or the statements of the most valuable authorities. The three volumes are illustrated with above four hundred wood-cuts.

VEGETABLE SUBSTANCES.

Two Volumes have been published on VEGETABLE SUBSTANCES one of Timber Trees and Fruits, the other of Substances used for the Food of Man. A Third Volume, treating of Substances used in Manufactures, will shortly be issued. Upwards of one hundred and forty engravings on wood illustrate the two volumes already completed.

THE PURSUIT OF KNOWLEDGE UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

This work, in two volumes, contains a collection of valuable examples of the enthusiasm which has excited and supported individuals of every rank, in their efforts to obtain knowledge, even under circumstances which would appear to present almost insurmountable impediments. Portraits engraved on steel of Benjamin Franklin, John Hunter, Captain Cook, James Fergusson, Sir Richard Arkwright, James Barry, and James Watt, illustrate these volumes.

SAVAGE LIFE.

THE NEW ZEALANDERS is a volume devoted to an account of that interesting people and the island which they inhabit, and embodies the personal narrative of a sailor who was detained by them for many years, and who was adopted into their society and conformed to their customs and manners. It is illustrated by a map of the island, a portrait of the individual above mentioned, and forty-five other engravings on wood

BIRDS.

THE ARCHITECTURE OF BIRDS is an account of the mechanical displayed in the Construction of NESTS, illustrated with nearly eighty engravings on wood. It will be immediately followed by another volume, entitled—THE DOMESTIC HABITS OF BIRDS.

PARIS AND ITS HISTORICAL SCENES.

The object of this work, in two volumes, is to describe the more remarkable edifices and situations of the French Capital, in association with some of the great events of which that city has been the theatre. The first volume comprises events previous to 1830; the second gives a detailed account of the events of the Revolution of that year. The two volumes are illustrated with a map of Paris, together with fourteen engravings on steel, and twenty-six wood-cuts, descriptive of events recorded in the text.

HISTORICAL PARALLELS.

This volume details, from the original historians, the most celebrated events in Grecian and Roman History, comparing or contrasting them with other incidents of ancient or modern times. Fifteen wood engravings illustrate this volume, and include copies of several medals preserved in the British Museum. It is proposed to complete this subject in another volume.

POMPEII.

This volume contains an account of the destruction of Pompeii, with its subsequent discovery. It gives a description of the public buildings hitherto explored, and exemplifies the customs of the Romans as connected with those buildings, such as the Baths, Theatres, Gymnasia, &c. It is illustrated with four engravings on steel, and one hundred and thirty-nine wood-cuts. A Second Volume, containing an account of the private buildings and domestic habits of the inhabitants of the city, and completing the work, will be published about June or July.

CRIMINAL TRIALS.

The first volume of this work, comprising some of the most remarkable and interesting trials connected with British History, and placing, in striking points of view, the former state, the gradual amelioration, and the origin of many of the present forms of our Criminal Law, will be published on the 1st of May. A second volume will be completed in the course of the year.

BRITISH MUSEUM.

It is intended to dedicate a portion of the Library of Entertaining Knowledge to subjects immediately connected with the WORKS OF ART contained in the BRITISH MUSEUM, with the view of furnishing visitors and others with fuller and more exact information than can be comprised within the limits of a common Catalogue. But to give both additional interest and value to these Volumes, it has been thought advisable not to confine the description to a bare account of what the Museum contains, but to treat generally of the History of Art, in connexion with NATIONAL CUSTOMS AND MANNERS, among the Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans, illustrating the text principally, but not entirely, by the specimens in the Museum. In pursuance of this intention two volumes on the Antiquities of Ancient Egypt are in a state of considerable forwardness, and will be followed at short intervals by others, including,—

THE ELGIN AND PHIGALIAN MARBLES,
THE TOWNLEY MARBLES AND BRONZES.
THE TERRA COTTAS AND VASES.

The whole will be profusely illustrated with Engravings on Wood, from specimens in the British Museum, and other sources.

The price of each of the above volumes is 4s. 6d. bound in cloth ; or, in parts, price 2s. each, sewed.

THE WORKING-MAN'S COMPANION.

A large number of the children of the labouring classes are now taught to read and write, and are instructed in arithmetic. In some schools they learn a little geography and astronomy, and are taught music or singing. But the difficulty they find when they leave school is to go on with anything which they have learnt; and for want of proper books they often quite forget what they were taught at school, without acquiring other knowledge of daily use. Books are yet wanting for the use of those who have little leisure for reading, and very restricted means of procuring information on matters connected with the details of humble life; yet much useful and pleasing knowledge might be associated with the working-man's daily occupations; and it would not be difficult to show him, on many occasions, how he might provide for worldly evils before they come upon him. The information proposed to be given in the Working-Man's Companion is entirely of this kind; and it will be written in a manner so plain and perspicuous as to be clearly understood by the readers for whose benefit it is designed. Thus the artisan, the domestic servant, and the labourer, may procure a great mass of valuable and interesting information, calculated to give them right notions of the things by which they are surrounded, and which, however common, are full of instruction; to lead them forward to other sources of knowledge, if they are willing to pursue them; to teach them how to extract the greatest advantages out of the situations in which they are individually placed, and to fit them for a right discharge of their private and public duties.

The matter of the Working-Man's Companion will be in great part original; illustrations in wood-cuts will be given where necessary; and each volume will contain 216 pages, of a pocket size.

The following Volumes are already published, price One Shilling sewed, or Fifteen-pence bound in cloth:—

1. THE RESULTS of MACHINERY; namely, Cheap Production and Increased Employment exhibited.

2. COTTAGE EVENINGS

Some of the volumes of the series of 'The Working-Man's Companion' will be especially, though not exclusively, adapted to the Agricultural Population. This difference will be marked by the word 'Cottage' being added to the title of the particular volume.

3. THE RIGHTS of INDUSTRY; (CAPITAL AND LABOUR.) Addressed to the Working-Men of the United Kingdom, by the Author of 'The Results of Machinery.'

'The great principles of that science which is generally known by the name of "Political Economy," ought, certainly, not to be sealed to the understandings of those who are chiefly affected by the operation of those principles—those, namely, who obtain a living by their labour. Matters affecting interests of every human being, and involving a variety of facts, having relation to the condition of mankind in every age and country, are not necessarily, as has been supposed, dry and difficult to understand, and, consequently, only to be approached by systematic students.'—Extract from the Introduction to the Rights of Industry.

4. THE PHYSICIAN :—1. THE CHOLERA.

The volumes under this title are intended to convey in a cheap form such plain and useful information relating to medicine as may be serviceable to the working classes, who, in the course of their ordinary occupations, incur many inconveniences, and often much suffering and loss, from which a little knowledge of the nature of different diseases would tend to protect them. The present volume contains a history and description of the Cholera, with plain directions for avoiding it.

The next volume of this series, which will be published in a few weeks, will be entitled FRUGAL COOKERY.

The second section of the RIGHTS of INDUSTRY—POPULATION—will shortly be published.

ALMANAC AND COMPANION.

THE BRITISH ALMANAC.

The BRITISH ALMANAC was originally published in 1828, and the necessity for such a publication has been confirmed by its very extensive sale, by the partial improvement that it has produced in the old Almanacs, and by the establishment of others upon a plan similar to its own. The peculiar character by which this Almanac is sought to be distinguished, is USEFULNESS. This first requisite of a Manual which is constantly consulted, is attained by an equal attention to the exclusion of everything that can be injurious, and to the introduction of whatever is important to be known for the guidance of the daily transactions of the coming year. It contains seventy-two closely printed pages, embracing a great variety of information, adapted for all parts of the United Kingdom. Price 2s. 6d. in a wrapper.

THE COMPANION TO THE ALMANAC.

The COMPANION to the ALMANAC is not only a Supplement to the 'British Almanac,' but a work of universal reference upon all subjects arising out of the course of the seasons, or the events of the year. Its object is to condense into a small compass a great body of information, essential to be known by every member of the community. The contents of each COMPANION (which was also commenced in 1828, and continued every year since) are wholly different from those of previous years. Price 2s. 6d. sewed.

THE BRITISH ALMANAC AND COMPANION.

Neatly bound together, 6s.

The COMPANIONS to the ALMANAC for 1828, 1829, and 1830, with a copious Index, may be had neatly bound together, price 8s.

THE QUARTERLY JOURNAL OF EDUCATION.

Price 5s. sewed; or bound in cloth, in half-yearly volumes, price 10s. 6d.

The JOURNAL OF EDUCATION contains Essays on Education in general, and on the best modes of teaching particular branches of knowledge.

It also contains detailed accounts of Universities, Colleges, and Schools, with remarks on the changes that from time to time are made in the general plan of instruction and discipline in such institutions—remarks on any striking merits or defects in establishments for education, accompanying the description of their origin, constitution, and present state. Accounts of the general state of education in different countries, and the means adopted for the diffusion of instruction and the maintenance of establishments for that purpose are also given.

Reviews of Books used in practical instruction form an important part of the Journal. The chief object of this department is to furnish teachers and learners with the means of choosing the best books for themselves and their pupils.

In order to render the Journal complete, a portion is reserved for a variety of short notices, which are not comprehended in the part already described.

Under the head of different countries, British and Foreign, are recorded short notices of the progress or foundation of schools or colleges, or societies for the promotion of knowledge, and in general such intelligence as comes under the description of news of education, and is likely to interest and instruct all classes of readers.

The following are the contents of the six numbers already published :—

GALLERY OF PORTRAITS.

The Committee of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge have directed their attention, for more than a year, to the preparation of a series of engraved Portraits of some of the most eminent men of every age and country. They have been led to undertake the publication of authentic and carefully-executed Portraits of those who have given the greatest impulse to Science, Art, Literature, Politics, and Religion, from a belief that large numbers of persons, whose knowledge has been cultivated by the reading of cheap books, may have their taste in the same way called forth and gratified by the possession of cheap, but well-engraved prints. A taste for the Fine Arts has been, to a certain extent, exclusive in this country; for the high price of good Engravings has prevented all but the more opulent from partaking of the improvement and gratification which they are calculated to afford. To place such Engravings within the reach of the public at large is a novel experiment; but one which the Committee believe will not be unsuccessful. They have determined to make the experiment upon Portraits, in the first instance, because the associations connected with that branch of art are familiar to most persons. The short Biographical Memoir, also, which will be attached to each Engraving, will afford means of communicating information, which, although in some cases scanty, will be valuable to many readers, in connexion with faithful and spirited representations of those who have exercised a powerful influence upon the condition of mankind.

The 'Gallery of Portraits' to be published by the Society, although similar in form, and not inferior in execution, to one or two series of Portraits now publishing, will be, in a great degree, different from any other, in the selection of those illustrious persons whose likenesses it is thought desirable to make familiar to all. The Committee, to exhibit an accurate view of the classes who will find a place in this 'Gallery,' have selected One Hundred names from the List which they have decided on.

The Committee having determined to publish no Portrait that shall not be deemed authentic, it is possible that it may be necessary, for the want of a likeness that can be depended upon, to omit a few of the names in the above list.

The Committee have to acknowledge the ready assistance of many distinguished personages and public bodies, in furthering their plan, by permitting copies to be made, for engraving, from original Pictures in their possession. Artists of ability have already finished many copies from the collections of his Majesty, of the King of the French, of the Royal Society, of the French Institute, of the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Egremont, Lord Holland, and Lord Dover. The Execution of the Engravings from many of these Pictures has been confided to some of the most eminent engravers of the day.

Each Number will consist of THREE PORTRAITS, with accompanying Biographical Memoirs, occupying upon an average twenty-four pages of letter-press. The size of the Work will be Super-royal Octavo, corresponding with the small paper copies of Lodge's Portraits. The price of each Number will be HALF-A-CROWN. No large paper copies will be printed.—The First Number will appear on the 31st of May, 1832, and the Work will be continued Monthly

THE PENNY MAGAZINE

OF THE

SOCIETY FOR THE DIFFUSION OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE.

THE SOCIETY have considered it proper to commence this Publication, from the belief that many persons, whose time and whose means are equally limited, may be induced to purchase and to read it. The various Works already published by the SOCIETY are principally adapted to diligent readers,—to those who are anxiously desirous to obtain knowledge in a condensed, and, in most cases, systematic form. But there are a very great number of persons who can spare half an hour for the reading of a newspaper, who are sometimes disinclined to open a book. For these we shall endeavour to prepare an useful and entertaining WEEKLY MAGAZINE, that may be taken up and laid down without requiring any considerable effort; and that may tend to fix the mind upon calmer, and, it may be, purer subjects of thought than the violence of party discussion, or the stimulating details of crime and suffering. We have, however, no expectation of superseding the newspaper, and no desire to supersede it. We hope only to share some portion of the attention which is now almost exclusively bestowed upon ‘the folio of four pages,’ by those who read little and seldom. We consider it to be the duty of every man to make himself acquainted with the events that are passing in the world, with the progress of legislation and the administration of the laws; for every man is deeply interested in all the great questions of government. Every man, however, may not be qualified to understand them; but the more he knows, the less hasty and the less violent will be his opinions. The false judgments which are sometimes formed by the people upon public events can only be corrected by the diffusion of sound knowledge. Whatever tends to enlarge the range of observation, to add to the store of facts, to awaken the reason, and to lead the imagination into agreeable and innocent trains of thought, may assist in the establishment of a sincere and ardent desire for information: and in this point of view our little Miscellany may prepare the way for the reception of more elaborate and precise knowledge, and be as the small optic glass called ‘the finder,’ which is placed by the side of a large telescope, to enable the observer to discover the star which is afterwards to be carefully examined by the more perfect instrument.

The PENNY MAGAZINE will consist of EIGHT FOLIO PAGES, handsomely printed in Sixteen Columns, and will contain illustrative Wood Cuts.

* * The PENNY MAGAZINE will, in most cases, be delivered weekly in the Towns of the United Kingdom, by Booksellers and Newsvendors, to whom Subscribers should address their Orders. It cannot be sent by Post as a Newspaper is, being unstamped. For the convenience of those who, residing in country places, cannot obtain the Publication at regular Weekly intervals, the Numbers published during each month will be stitched together, to form a Monthly Part. That this Part may be sold at a convenient and uniform price, a MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT, consisting chiefly of Notices of such New Books as we think right to give a place to in 'the Library,' will appear with the regular Number on the last Saturday in the Month. The price of the Part, whether consisting of five or of six Numbers, will be SIXPENCE; each Part will be neatly and strongly done up in a wrapper. Thus, the annual Expense of Twelve Parts will be Six Shillings, viz.:

Shopkeepers and Hawkers may be supplied wholesale by the following Booksellers:—London, Groombridge, Panyer Alley, Paternoster Row; Birmingham, Drake; Bristol, Westley & Co.; Hull, Stephenson; Leeds, Baines & Co.; Liverpool, Willmer and Smith; Manchester, Robinson, and Webb and Simms; Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Charnley; Nottingham, Wright; Dublin, Wakeman; Edinburgh, Oliver and Boyd; Glasgow, Atkinson and Co.

CHRONOMETERS.

THE rapid strides with which science has advanced during the last few years may be readily accounted for by the attention that has been bestowed on it by the leading men of all nations, and by the almost universal establishment of Societies having for their professed object the improvement of its different branches. These praiseworthy efforts of individuals have, since the establishment of peace in Europe, been laudably encouraged by the several Governments, and by none more liberally than our own. It is, however, remarkable, that in this country the Chronometer, so important to navigation, and for the improvement of which large rewards had been offered by our Government, should have been the only instrument that did not keep pace with the great and rapid improvement of every other description of machinery that had engrossed the attention of the man of science and the mechanic, and by the aid of which England has been raised to such eminence among nations. Happily, however, this stigma is in a great measure removed; and England may now justly boast of having as far outstripped all her competitors in this as she has done in several other instances of the application of science to purposes of national utility.

It is unnecessary here to dilate on the importance of the Chronometer in determining the longitude at sea, or to advert to the great benefit the mariner derives from its use. By its assistance he frequently preserves the lives and property committed to his care, while the average duration of voyages, as compared with those previously to its introduction, is reduced in a ratio perfectly astonishing.

The very general adoption of the Chronometer, particularly in long voyages, is the best proof of its value; and it is more than probable, that, in a very few years, no vessel will sail without one, either to distant parts of the world, or when navigating smaller seas—this invaluable instrument being equally useful to the scientific navigator in the one case as in the other.

The interest taken by the different Maritime Governments of Europe for the discovery of a marine watch capable of more accurately determining the longitude at sea was exemplified so long ago as 1598, when Philip the Third of Spain offered a reward of one thousand crowns for that purpose. The States of Holland soon afterwards munificently promised one hundred thousand florins: in the reign of Queen Anne, England, being equally desirous of promoting so important a discovery, offered twenty thousand pounds: and in 1716 the Duke of Orleans, then Regent of France, also offered one hundred thousand livres to the artist who should attain that object.

These princely inducements naturally stimulated men of science and ingenuity to the arduous undertaking, which, to the honour of England, was attained by our highly-talented countryman, John Harrison, to whom the first premium was awarded. This scientific mechanic, after forty years of intense application and study, at length succeeded in completing a marine watch, which, upon trial in a voyage to Barbadoes, determined the longitude within the limits prescribed, and he received from the British Parliament, in 1764, the sum of twenty thousand pounds.

Foreign artists also exerted their powerful abilities to attain this desirable object; among the principal of whom were Berthoud and Le Roy. The latter invented the detached escapement, which very much improved and simplified the Chronometer; and also the compensation balance (now with scarcely any improvement universally adopted). That artist, however, on its first introduction, fearful of applying his own invention—not feeling sufficient confidence in its stability—used other means in his marine watch for the purpose of counteracting the changes of temperature. He also, in a very ingenious, scientific, and valuable Treatise on Marine Watches, suggested the Isochronous property contained in the balance spring, so indispensable in producing the accurate measurement of time. These inventions having been introduced into this country, were taken up by several ingenious artists, and improved on by Messrs. Mudge and Arnold, and subsequently by Earnshaw; to the former of whom a premium was awarded by Parliament of three thousand pounds in 1793; and the same sum to both Mr. Arnold and Mr. Earnshaw, by the Board of Longitude in 1800.

Although prior to this period, and afterwards, some excellent Chronometers were occasionally produced, which proved the possibility of their being brought generally to greater perfection; yet it was evident, by their forming so very small a proportion of those in general use, that their good performance arose rather from accidental circumstances than from any known principle in their construction.

During the lengthened warfare which involved the whole of Europe, England had little time to attend to the advancement of science: but on its termination, ever anxious to be pre-eminent on that element by which her glory had been extended to all portions of the habitable globe, the Government of this country planned several expeditions for the advancement of geographical discovery and for the improvement of nautical science; and the Lords of the Admiralty, in 1822, offered two premiums—one of 300*l.* and one of 200*l.*—to be awarded annually to the makers of the two Chronometers which should be adjudged to be the best, after having been submitted to a twelvemonth's trial at the Royal Observatory at Greenwich.

It is only from this period that it may truly be asserted that Chronometers have been improved in their construction, so as collectively to approximate to perfection, and that greater improvements have been made in them than in the forty years preceding. As a proof of this fact, Government now refuses to purchase Chronometers sent for trial, whose performances have far exceeded those to which at the commencement of the trials (1822) they awarded the above prizes.

Among the first of the voyages undertaken by the English Government subsequently to the late war, for the purpose of geographical discovery, was the Northern Expedition (in 1818), to endeavour to settle the long-contested problem of a North-West Passage into the Pacific Ocean. The expedition consisted of two ships—the Isabella, commanded by Captain Ross, and the Alexander, by Lieutenant Parry. Captain Sabine, of the Royal Artillery, F.R.S., was appointed Astronomer to this expedition. They were furnished with several Chronometers and every necessary instrument for prosecuting scientific discovery. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, who had devoted a considerable portion of their time and great attention to the improvement of Chronometers, and had spared neither expense nor exertions in their endeavours to attain perfection, considered this an eligible opportunity of having one upon their principle practically tried. They therefore made application to the Lords of the Admiralty for permission to send it with the expedition at their own risk, which request was acceded to. On the return of Captain Ross, this Chronometer was reported to have surpassed all the others which he took with him in the regularity of its going and the equability of its rate—as will be seen from the extracts of two letters addressed to PARKINSON and FRODSHAM by Captain Ross and Captain Sabine.—(See Appendix, No. I.)

This high testimony of its performance induced the Lords of the Admiralty to order it to be purchased for the use of a second expedition, then fitting out under Lieutenant Parry, for the purpose of attempting further discoveries.

In consequence of this liberal encouragement, and having completed three other Chronometers on the same principle, they again applied to the Board of Admiralty, and immediately obtained the required permission to send them with this expedition, which, consisting of the Hecla, Lieutenant Parry, and the Griper, Lieutenant Liddon, sailed in 1819. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM placed No. 259 under the charge of Lieutenant Parry, and the other two (Nos. 253 and 254) under that of Captain Sabine, who again accompanied this expedition as Astronomer and for the purposes of general science. The whole of them were delivered to Captain Sabine, accompanied by a letter from PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, stating that they were “Experimental Chronometers,” in which they had attempted a principle of correcting their final adjustment different from that in general use, for the purpose of endeavoring to prevent that disposition to acceleration and retardation in their rates to which Chronometers had hitherto generally been subject. The result of the performance of these Chronometers in this severe and unprecedented trial was an evident proof of considerable improvement—the whole of them having preserved their rates in a most uniform manner during an Arctic winter exposed to 40° below zero; and whilst every other Chronometer on board (of which there were fourteen) ACTUALLY STOPPED, No. 228, (the one already mentioned as having been purchased by the Admiralty,) Nos. 259, 253, and 254, kept the same rates throughout the time occupied by the expedition, as appeared upon comparison made at London on its départure and return, and also by observations at Leith.—(See Appendix, No. II.)

On the return of the Hecla and Griper the Lords of the Admiralty purchased the two Chronometers Nos. 253 and 254, and the Officers of the expedition purchased No. 259 for Captain Parry, which they presented to him as a testimony of the esteem and respect they entertained for their commander. The Honorable Board also, on receiving the reports of the extraordinary and unprecedented performance of the four Chronometers, 228, 253, 254, and 259, ordered their rates to be printed, and circulated them amongst the scientific circles.

All these Chronometers accompanied the second expedition of Captain Parry in the Fury, and Captain Lyon in the Hecla, in 1821, to Winter Island and Igoolik. They returned in 1823, and the report of the rates of their performances was equally satisfactory.

In 1822 Captain Sabine sailed from Portsmouth for Africa in the Iphigenia, Captain Clavering, for the purpose of making experiments to determine the figure of the earth by means of the pendulum vibrating seconds in different latitudes. He was furnished with the best instruments of every description belonging to the Royal Society and the Board of Longitude, in addition to those of his own private property; and PARKINSON and FRODSHAM also sent four Chronometers with him on trial. He arrived at Sierra Leone on the 22d of February, and returned to London on the 5th of the same month in the following year. The correctness of these Chronometers was so highly appreciated that Captain Clavering purchased one of them for his own use.

In 1823 Captain Sabine proposed to extend his experiments in the high latitudes, for the purpose of concluding his pendulum experiments. This proposal having been approved by the Lords of the Admiralty and the Board of Longitude, he sailed on the 11th May on board the Griper, Captain Clavering, to Spitzbergen, &c. &c. and returned to London in December. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's three Chronometers accompanied this expedition, together with a Chronometer No. 1, made by W. E. FRODSHAM, one of the junior branches of their house, which performed equally well with the others.—(See Appendix, No. III.)

From the report made by Captain Sabine on his return home, Government purchased two of the abovementioned Chronometers, Nos. 423 and 649, which were sent out with Captain Parry in his third voyage (together with some of the others previously mentioned), and they maintained the same high character in the Polar Seas that they had obtained from Captain Sabine in his pendulum experiments.

In 1824 Captain Parry in the Hecla, and Captain Hopner in the Fury, again proceeded for the purpose of discovering a North-West Passage. In this voyage, PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers were selected to accompany the enterprise, together with one that had that year received the first prize of three hundred pounds. They also sent one out on comparative trial, HENRY FRODSHAM, No. 1, another of the junior branches of their house. Mr. Foster accompanied the expedition as astronomer, and had charge of all the Chronometers. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers preserved their rates in the same satisfactory manner as in the preceding voyages; and the one by FRODSHAM junior performed equally well with those which had previously undergone so great an alternation of climate: and, from its regular and uniform going, was adopted (in 1825) as the Standard Chronometer. From the high report of its excellent performance, Lord Melville, the then First Lord of the Admiralty, purchased it for a present to his son, the Hon. Captain Dundas.—(See Appendix, No. IV.)

Several other makers also sent Chronometers on trial on this as in former voyages, but they were generally found upon trial not to have been sufficiently prepared for so severe a test as those made by PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

In the same year, 1824, Captain Lyon proceeded in the Griper to Repulse Bay, to endeavour through this course to discover a North-West Passage, but returned unsuccessful, having met with most disastrous weather. Lieutenant Kendall accompanied him as assistant surveyor, and had charge of the Chronometers.

PARKINSON and FRODSHAM sent Chronometer No. 1, which had performed so well with Captain Sabine in 1822, and one of their own.—(For their performances see Appendix, No. V.)

In Captain Parry's last voyage in the Hecla, to attempt to reach the North Pole in boats over the ice, which sailed the 26th May 1827, "Government (we quote Captain Parry's own words) furnished six chronometers, the whole being pocket watches. Of these PARKINSON and FRODSHAM were directed to prepare two, the dial plates of which were to have the hours from one to twenty-four marked on them—a precaution intended to provide “against the possibility of incurring an error of twelve hours when travelling over the ice towards the Pole. The rest were directed to be supplied from the Royal Observatory at Greenwich; but it so happened that a short time before the embarkation, these latter Chronometers, intended for the use of the expedition, were going irregularly—a circumstance which at this advanced stage of the equipment would have been attended with very serious inconvenience, had it not been for the liberal offer of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM to supply the number required at their own risk. However, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, on becoming acquainted with the circumstances of the case, immediately directed the Chronometers in question to be purchased of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM; and these, with five others (three of which belonged to the same makers, the other two to Captain Parry and Lieutenant Foster, the astronomer), were embarked on board the Hecla.”—They passed the summer at Spitzbergen; and Captain Parry, in speaking of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM’s Chronometers, says, “it is highly creditable to the makers of these excellent Chronometers, that each was found to preserve its rate extremely well; and under the severe trials to which these watches were subjected, the boats made Little Table Island, after an absence of fifty days, to a surprising degree of exactness.”

A scientific expedition under the command of Captain King, in the Adventure, and Captain Stokes in the Beagle, sailed in 1826, for the purpose of surveying Terra del Fuego, Magellan Straits, Cape Horn, &c. &c., Lieutenant Graves having in this voyage generally taken charge of the Chronometers. One sent out by PARKINSON and FRODSHAM (No. 1048), on comparative trial, was officially reported by Captain King (with the Government Chronometers) to the Admiralty; and in a letter to PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, Captain King says, “It performed by far the best of all he had on board,” of which there were thirteen. From Captain King’s report to the Admiralty, this Chronometer was liberally purchased by Government.—(See Appendix, No. VI.)

In 1828, Capt. Foster, in the Chanticleer, proceeded on a voyage for making pendulum experiments and extensive surveys. He had seventeen Chronometers on board (two lent by PARKINSON and FRODSHAM on comparative trial, and two belonging to the Government by other makers that had obtained the prizes of three hundred pounds). One of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's, No. 1204, was, after sufficient trial, adopted as the standard, and continued so till the end of the voyage in 1831. Lieutenant Kendall had the charge of the Chronometers for a portion of the voyage, until his appointment to the Hecla surveying vessel. The expedition sailed from Falmouth, and embraced in its route Madeira, Teneriffe, St. Antonio, Fernando de Noronha, Rio Janeiro, St. Catherine's, Monte Video, Staten Island, Cape Horn, South Shetland, Cape Horn again, Cape of Good Hope, St. Helena, Ascension, Trinidad, Para, Maranham, Porto Bello, and St. Michael's, and returned to Falmouth. Captain Foster, having been unfortunately drowned on his return home (January 1831), Lieutenant (now Commander) Austin took the command, and for his report we refer to Appendix, No. VII.

In 1830 Lieutenant Kendall proceeded (by order of the Secretary of State for the Colonial Department) to America, to make a series of astronomical observations, with the view of fixing the relative positions of several principal points in the Province of New Brunswick. He was furnished, at the request of Government, with five of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers (which they readily lent for the purpose): and for a testimony of their excellent performance on their conveyance by hand, in coaches, on horseback, and on shipboard, we refer to Appendix, No. VIII.

A comparative trial of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers with others was directed to be made at the Observatory of Leyden: they were tried by one of the Learned Professors of that University—the result of which again confirmed the superiority of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers, and they in consequence obtained from the Government of the Netherlands the most liberal encouragement.

The Russian circumnavigators, Captain Kotzebue, Captain Lutkie, and Baron Wrangel, were furnished by the Russian Government with PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers, and expressed their high satisfaction at the accuracy of their performances.—(See Appendix, No. IX.)

The principle of correcting Chronometers, as adopted by PARKINSON and FRODSHAM in the first voyage of Captain Parry, in 1818, was applied to all those subsequently sent on the other voyages of discovery, and has been continued to the present time, together with those alterations and improvements which observation and experience have naturally suggested; and they have the satisfaction of knowing that their exertions in the cause of science have been duly appreciated.

In addition to the above high testimonials, they have received numerous letters from distinguished Officers in His Majesty's Service (many of them employed in voyages of considerable duration), from Captains in the merchant service, from Commanders of vessels engaged in American commerce, and other intelligent Navigators in various parts of the world—all tending to confirm their excellence, and evincing the strongest proof of the value of the discovery, and the certainty and universality of its application. —(See Appendix, No. X.)

But, however flattering all these testimonials of pre-eminent accuracy in the performance of their Chronometers through every variation of climate—far exceeding the reasonable expectations of any artist, however eminent—together with the excellent rates of going of others (made by the junior branches of their house) at the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, particularly on the late and preceding trials, the rates of which are here annexed, and to some of which Prizes were adjudged:—yet PARKINSON and FRODSHAM hope that still greater perfection may be attained in this important branch of mechanical science, so as to make Chronometers generally maintain their rates more equably: and they confidently trust, by devoting all their abilities in furtherance of this great object, they may eventually be enabled to produce Chronometers with such a positive certainty of equal perfection, as must render them invaluable for the purposes of navigation.

PARKINSON AND FRODSHAM,

in the following page, have the satisfaction to submit the RATES of FOUR CHRONOMETERS, made by three of the Junior Branches of their Establishment, tried at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, in 1828-29-30-31.

No. 2 was the second, and No. 1 the fifth, in the trial list. With respect, however, to No. 1, some correction was made a few days previously to its being sent on trial; so that its rate was not settled the first month, and which, in fairness to the merits of the Chronometer, should be omitted: and then, taking the twelve subsequent months, the extreme variation will be found to be only 0^u 57. This, out of nearly 500 Chronometers sent on the public trial, was equalled only by one, whose extreme variation was 0^u 54. These two Instruments were also purchased by the Government.

APPENDIX.

No. I.

Extract of a Letter from Captain Ross to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

" HEREWITH you receive an account of the going of your Chronometer No. 228, which was sent with the expedition under my command to Baffin's Bay. By a comparison with the other Chronometers and observations which ascertained their rates during the voyage, as well as by the comparison on our return, it appears that your Chronometer abovementioned has performed better than any other we had on board, and exactly as you had in your directions expected it to do : and I have great pleasure in affording you this testimony of my approbation, and in recommending your Chronometers as of a superior construction, and as instruments which may be safely depended on by navigators.

(Signed) " JOHN Ross, Capt. R.N.

" London, July 1819."

Extract of a Letter from Captain E. SABINE, Astronomer to Captain Ross's Expedition.

" CAPTAIN SABINE has great pleasure in assuring Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM that their Chronometer No. 228 has gone remarkably well during the North West Expedition. As soon as he is at liberty to give extracts from his papers, he will furnish Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM with a statement of its comparative going, with five other Chronometers embarked in the Isabella, as also such remarks as he feels it his duty to make on it.

" Nov. 25, 1818."

On the 13th of July 1819, Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM received the following Note :—

" CAPTAIN SABINE begs to inform Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM that in consequence of the favorable report which he has made of their Chronometer No. 228 ; and as an encouragement to the liberality with which Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM entrusted it on the late Voyage of Discovery, Mr. Croker (Secretary to the Lords of the Admiralty) has expressed the readiness of Government to purchase No. 228."

No. II.

Extract of a Letter from Captain PARRY, R.N. to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"CAPTAIN PARRY has the satisfaction to inform Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM that their watches have performed admirably throughout the voyage, and that the account, which will shortly be published, cannot fail to reflect the highest credit on the makers of such invaluable Chronometers. Captain Parry begs, however, that Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM will not, in any public way, make use of his name on this subject, as it is his full intention to make known, in the proper manner, the advantage he has derived from the use of them.

"Nov. 9, 1820."

Extract of a Letter from Captain SABINE, R.A., F.R.S., to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"CAPTAIN SABINE has great pleasure to acquaint Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM that all their Chronometers are safe, and have behaved most admirably indeed—the details of which Captain Sabine will shew Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM so soon as the Hecla shall arrive at Deptford from Leith, where she is at present.

"Portland Place, Nov. 6, 1820."

Captain PARRY's Journal of this Expedition was subsequently published by authority of the Lords of the Admiralty, in which are the following remarks on Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers:—

"The number of Chronometers embarked in the expedition amounted, altogether, to fourteen. No. 323 of Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, had been sent on trial in the Voyage of Discovery to Baffin's Bay, in 1818, at the risk of its makers, whose property it then was. A favorable report having been made, on return, of its going, the Admiralty were pleased to order its purchase for the public service. In consequence of such encouragement, Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM determined to send three Chronometers on trial on the present occasion ; accordingly their Nos. 253 and 254 were delivered to Captain Sabine in the beginning of April 1819, and No. 259 a few days before the expedition sailed.

" In table No. 3 is shewn the daily rate of the remaining of the Hecla's complement on mean Greenwich time, as shewn each day at noon by 259, with its correction applied to its rate and original difference.

" No. 259 has been selected for this purpose, because it is believed to have preserved the most steady and uniform rate throughout the season. This fact may be examined by a reference to the table closing the abstract of latitudes and longitudes determined in 1819, in which the daily longitude by each Chronometer is shewn separately, as well as by their mean. It is considered to afford a presumption of remarkable steadiness.

" The occasional stoppage of some Chronometers, and the irregularity of others, shew, that, notwithstanding the precautions that were adopted, the cold which was experienced was greater than they were prepared to meet.

" The Chronometers of Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM appeared to have been better prepared for the peculiar service on which they were employed than any other of the Chronometers. No instance occurred of any one of them being stopped by the cold.

" On due examination of the going of the Chronometers at Melville Island, exhibited in table 5, it was apparent that the four of Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's were principally to be relied on in the determination of longitude in the ensuing season.

" Their actual differences, ascertained by comparison at Calton Hill, being divided by 4 (the number of the Chronometer), gives 1.813 fast, as the error of the Greenwich time, shewn by the Chronometers at the end of 104 days, on being allowed the average daily rates at which they had gone for the three months preceding the period.

" The longitude of the western parts of Melville Island, and of a considerable portion of the western coast of Baffin's Bay and Davis' Straits, which were surveyed in the season of 1820, have been accordingly determined by the mean of these four Chronometers, being the rates. Table 7, containing a statement of their daily going in time since their return to London. The materials of their statement have been furnished by the makers, who had not received any intimation of the previous rate.

" Admirably as these Chronometers have fulfilled the purpose for which they were employed, it is an additional satisfaction to find, that notwithstanding the change of circumstances attendant on their disembarkation and replacement in their makers' care, they are still retaining, almost without exception, their Melville Island rates."

No. III.

Extract of a Letter from Captain SABINE on his return from his First Voyage for making Pendulum Experiments.

"CAPTAIN SABINE has the pleasure of apprising Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM that their Chronometers, 423, 493, 384, and 357 are safe, and that 423 and 357 are the best watches Captain Sabine ever knew. The others are also very good, but the two named pre-eminent.

"Captain Sabine is going again to the Arctic Circle for the summer months, and will be very glad to have with him at least 423 and 357. No. 357 need not even return into the maker's hands in the interim. No. 423 requires a slight amendment in compensation, equivalent to one second per diem for 10 degrees of latitude.

"February 10, 1823."

Extract of a Letter from Captain SABINE on his return from his Second Voyage for completing his Pendulum Experiments.

"CAPTAIN SABINE has the pleasure to acquaint Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM once more of his safe arrival, and of the safety and excellent going of their Chronometers. They have all gone well—the one by W. E. FRODSHAM certainly scarcely inferior to the best.

"Captain Sabine hopes he will at length be enabled to make the best return in his power for the great assistance which these admirable time-pieces have been to him throughout his observations, by making it known in almost every page of his publication.

"December 20, 1823."

The following are Extracts on the performances of Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers in Captain SABINE's two Voyages to Africa, &c. and Spitzbergen, for making Pendulum Experiments—as published (by authority of the Board of Longitude) in his Narrative of those Scientific Expeditions.

"It would be impossible to express the advantage of which Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's Chronometers proved to me on all occasions, or how much the thorough reliance which I could place on their time facilitated, or, what is more important, how much it conduced to the accuracy of the variety of observations which successively occupied my attention, and which I was usually pressed to complete in the shortest possible time."

* * * * * "It is known that the rates of Chronometers are frequently found to vary on embarkation in vessels, insomuch as to have given rise to the distinctive terms of sea-rates and land-rates. No such variation, however, can be found in the going of No. 423, in any one of the six voyages in which it was embarked between April and November, which alternated with nearly equal periods on land, when it was employed incessantly in observations, including those of magnetism." * * * * *

In a note on this passage, Captain Sabine says, "An opinion has lately prevailed that the change in the rate of Chronometers on embarkation which used to be considered as a consequence of the motion of a ship, is principally occasioned by the magnetic influence of the iron which she contains: and it has been assumed by some of the writers who have taken part in the recent discussions on the subject, that the effect so attributed is one of general experience. I believe, on the authority of others, rather than from my own observation, that a difference has sometimes, and even frequently, taken place between the land and sea rates of Chronometers; but, from whatever cause the irregularity may arise, I must regard its occurrence as an evidence of the inferiority of the peculiar Chronometer to the advanced state to which the art of their construction has attained: because, among the many with which I have at different times been furnished by Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, and which I have frequently transferred from the ship to the shore, for two or three weeks at a time, for the purpose of trial, I have never been able to discover any systematic variations whatever consequent on their removal. With regard to the influence of the iron as a cause of the irregularity, a more decisive evidence of its not being practically discovered under the most favorable circumstances for its exhibition can scarcely be imagined, than took place in the four Chronometers of Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, of which I have given an account in the Appendix to Captain Parry's Voyages in 1819-20, pages vii. to xii. xviii. xix. and xx*." Having succinctly mentioned the results, Captain Sabine adds:—"These particulars are stated in detail in the pages referred to; but the circumstance is thus again generally noticed, because it seems to have been overlooked by many whose ingenuity has been exerted in devising contrivances to remedy an evil which has no practical existence, when the common discretion of life is exercised in obtaining the better article at an equal price. Had the especial purpose of the Hecla's voyage been to inquire whether the iron of a ship, in its ordinary distribution, would, under such extreme circumstances, exert a sensible influence on the Chronometers, better adapted arrangements could scarcely have been devised for the experiment, nor could a more decisive result in the negative have been obtained."

* "The Hecla was stationary and immovable, being frozen up for more than ten months, in the vicinity of the magnetic pole, the dip between 88 and 89 degrees. Such is the situation and such the circumstances which are supposed best adapted for the developement of magnetism in the stanchions and other irons of a ship. The Chronometers were on board during the whole winter; and their rat preparatory to the following summer, were assigned from the average of the four months immediately preceding her extrication from the ice, at an equal period of navigation. The Hecla arrived at Leith, having experienced much bad weather in crossing the Atlantic: but on comparing the four Chronometers at the Observatory at Leith, their Greenwich time, employing their winter harbour rates, proved less than two seconds in error on the arrival of the Hecla in the Thames. The Chronometers were returned to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM's house in London, where, after a month's interval, they were found still going at the same rates as in the Hecla whilst in the harbour of Melville Island."—Note by Captain Sabine.

Extract of a Letter from Captain PARRY to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"CAPTAIN PARRY requests Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM will inform him whether their Chronometer "HENRY FRODSHAM, No. 1," is disposed of or not; as, in consequence of its excellent performance during his late voyage, a Gentleman has applied to Captain Parry, and commissioned him to purchase it.

"Admiralty, December 8, 1825."

Extract of a Letter from Lieutenant WYNNE to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"GENTLEMEN—The rate of my Pocket Watch, No. 510, which you made for me, has been registered throughout the voyage with the Chronometers embarked in the Hecla, and has performed remarkably well; certainly equal to any that we had on board. The rate will be published with the other Chronometers, and you will then have the opportunity of seeing that I have much reason to be satisfied with it."

Extract of a Letter from Lieutenant FOSTER to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"DEAR SIRS—I request you will send some careful person on board the Hecla, now at Deptford, on Monday next at noon, to receive your Chronometer, 'HENRY FRODSHAM, No. 1.' It was under my charge throughout the voyage, and has performed remarkably well, keeping a uniform rate, and was adopted as the standard during the navigation of 1825.

"The Pocket Watch you made for me has given me the greatest satisfaction. Its rate has been compared with the other Chronometers throughout the voyage, of which I will furnish you a copy as soon as I have arranged my papers.

"Hecla, Deptford, October 29, 1825."

(One of the Chronometers to which Government had adjudged the prize of 300*l.* was sent out in this voyage.)

Extract of a Letter from Captain G. F. LYON, R.N. to Messrs.
PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"GENTLEMEN,

"I have much pleasure in acquainting you of the admirable performance of your two Chronometers. A carefully registered table of their rates has been kept, with which I have requested Lieutenant Kendall to furnish you. You will then see how much reason I have to be pleased with your Watches. I must state to you, that, in consequence of my favorable opinion of your Chronometers, I was induced to name you to a scientific Gentleman, who, I believe, will wait on you to purchase one. I have to request you to accept my best thanks for your having lent me two such valuable Chronometers, as those brought to me by Mr. FRODSHAM, jun.

"Great Portland Street, January 4, 1825."

Extract of a Letter from Lieutenant KENDALL, R.N., to Messrs.
PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, dated January 14, 1825.

"GENTLEMEN—According to the instructions I have received from Captain Lyon, I herewith inclose a table, drawn up by myself, of the daily comparisons, differences, and second differences of your Chronometers embarked on board His Majesty's Ship Griper in her voyage to Repulse Bay; and having had charge of the watches during the whole time of their embarkation, I may be allowed to say their performance was excellent. No chronometers, I believe, could have been exposed to a severer trial, except as relates to change of temperature. I cannot bring a stronger testimony in support of the equability with which their rates were maintained, than the fact of our having made the land with such surprising accuracy after so long an interval, during which it was not practicable to obtain observations to enable us to form a judgment of their going, and we therefore relied on the rates furnished by you on sending the Chronometers on board.

"In conclusion, I beg to offer you my best wishes for the universal adoption of the principle you have so successfully tried, being well assured that, if it succeed according to your wishes, you will have the satisfaction of having conferred the greatest possible benefit on your country, by advancing the interests of science.

"I am, &c.

E. N. KENDALL."

Letter from Captain KING, R.N. of His Majesty's Ship Adventure, to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"GENTLEMEN—I beg leave to inclose to you the rate of the Chronometer No. 1048, made by you, during the time it was in my possession: and I have, in returning you my best thanks for the loan of it, to state with pleasure that it was by far the best going Watch of the twelve that were in my charge. The inclosed rate will prove this to you, I am sure, most satisfactorily.—I am, &c. PHILIP P. KING."

"H. M. S. Chanticleer, Woolwich, June 7, 1831.

"GENTLEMEN—From the very high opinion the late Captain Foster entertained of your Chronometers, and also the liberality with which you lent him two for the more effectually accomplishing the object he had in view, I feel myself called upon, as the late Senior Lieutenant of the Chanticleer, to express to you, that, during a voyage of three years' duration, through the greatest variety of climate and most tempestuous latitudes, the performances of your Watches were admirable in the extreme: and, indeed, often when in conversation with Captain Foster, we agreed that your Chronometers had gone beyond our most sanguine hopes at our departure from England. When Captain Foster was unfortunately lost, he had the Chronometer, No. 543, in his pocket, which you made specially for him when he accompanied Captain Parry in his Third Expedition (1824). This Chronometer he highly prized, and which, he often said, was the very best that ever was made. I can bear testimony to the accuracy of those which accompanied the Expedition; but I do not think that anything I can say will express more than the daily rough comparison-books will shew, and which I have the pleasure of sending for your inspection. I may add, that I am quite aware, had Captain Foster lived, he would have most strongly recommended your Chronometers, as I most cordially do, as the very best that have ever come under my observation.

"I am, Gentlemen, your obedient Servant,

"HORATIO THOS. AUSTIN, Commander R. N."

(There were two Chronometers on board the Chanticleer, to each of which Government has adjudged the prize of 300l.)

No. VIII.

Letter from Lieutenant KENDALL, R. N., to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, dated Craven Street, October 22, 1831.

"GENTLEMEN—I beg to inclose a letter which I conceived it my duty to address to the Hydrographer on the subject of your Chronometers, and, as he wished me to point out three out of the five which I could most confidently recommend, I pointed out B, C, and D, as those which had preserved their rates with the greatest uniformity; and he noted them for purchase. I regret exceedingly that my constant occupations have prevented my personally waiting on you ere this, but I will endeavour to see you in a few days. Meanwhile, I remain, &c.

"E. N. KENDALL."

Copy of a Letter from Lieutenant KENDALL to Captain BEAUFORT, R. N. F. R. S., &c. Hydrographer to the Hon. Board of Admiralty, dated October 11, 1831.

"SIR—In accordance with your desire, I beg to annex a statement of the rates of five Chronometers that were used by me in my recent employment in determining the relative positions, by astronomical observation, of several points in the Province of New Brunswick, and to offer my testimony to the excellence of their performance within the last fifteen months, during which period they have been exposed to all the different motions consequent on their conveyance, by hand, in coaches, on horseback, and on shipboard. They have also withstood a range of the thermometer from -30° to $+95$; and I would therefore submit for your consideration the propriety of purchasing them for His Majesty's service, especially when it is known that the makers, Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, with their accustomed liberality, lent them to the Government at their own risk, without remuneration."

No. IX.

Extract of a Letter from Baron WRANGEL to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"YOUR two Chronometers have performed admirably: one never having gained more than one second six-tenths, and the other being never more than two seconds four-tenths, during a voyage of more than three years, exposed to great extremes of temperature, thus balancing their differences (for errors they could not be called) with astonishing precision, agreeing with all our observations to an exactness throughout the voyage, particularly under circumstances the most unfavorable to which such instruments could be exposed."

The report from Captains KOTZEBUE and LUTKIE was equally satisfactory.

“ H. M. S. Tamar, Plymouth, Dec. 28, 1827.

“ CAPTAIN BREMER is happy in being enabled to inform Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, that the Chronometer he purchased of them, No. 596, performed to admiration. It never failed in all the various climates and weather to which it was exposed in the Tamar's long voyage of four years, in which we sailed upwards of sixty thousand miles. In running from the Cape of Good Hope to Bass's Strait, in New Holland, a distance of 126° of longitude, the land was made by it to a remarkable exactness.”

(One of the Chronometers to which Government had adjudged the prize of 300l. was sent out in the Tamar.)

Letter from Captain GEORGE CHEYNE, R.N. to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

“ 6, Arundel Terrace, Islington, March 29, 1826.

“ GENTLEMEN—Annexed is a copy of the reply of Captain Parry to the following extract of a letter to him from me :—

‘ TO CAPTAIN PARRY.

‘ May 17, 1826.

‘ I have a conditional order concerning a Chronometer for Lord Bloomfield. Will you be troubled to send me your opinion of those made by PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, in case my own limited experience of their instruments may have deceived me in assigning to them the superiority over any other makers.

‘ Yours very truly,

GEO. CHEYNE.’

REPLY—DATED 18TH MARCH.

‘ MY DEAR CHEYNE—I can safely say, that as far as my experience goes concerning Chronometers, of which I have lately had between thirty and forty in my immediate keeping, I know no maker so likely to furnish a good one as Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

‘ Yours very sincerely,

W. E. PARRY.’

“ I shall only add to the above, that I shall ever retain a thankful remembrance of the experience I have had of two Chronometers which I had from you.

‘ I am, &c.

GEO. CHEYNE.’

Extract of another Letter from Captain CHEYNE to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, dated Santa Ana, August 9, 1829.

"By the last English packet I received a letter from Captain Bloomfield, of the Artillery, a relative of Lord Bloomfield, from Stockholm, from which I send you an extract :—

"This and divers other things have prevented me executing a commission I have been long since ordered to do by Lord Bloomfield—to write to you, and to tell you how well pleased he is with the Chronometer you were the means of PARKINSON and FRODSHAM furnishing him with. He left England last May, and had it with him during a few months' trip on the Continent: at the end of which time he unfortunately let it down; but he had good reason to suppose it had not varied three seconds, and it has gone admirably ever since."

"I felt anxious to know that the Chronometer is a good one, and will answer the great purpose I had in view—first, in persuading Lord Bloomfield to take one of your Chronometers to Stockholm as a means of convincing the Astronomer, who is the oracle of the Swedish navy, that he had erred in saying, 'England had now to yield the palm of Chronometer-making to both France and Denmark:' and, secondly, I trust in turning the account to your advantage, which your generous compliance with my desire in this business so well entitles you to. I add another extract from the same letter :—

"Only think (he says) of our having no less than -12° of cold (Celsius) at six this morning, and ever since the middle of December we have seen nothing but snow."

"The above -12° of Celsius is equal to about 22° of Fahrenheit below freezing, and will of course be to you a gratifying account of your manufacture. Knowing you have devoted so much of your time to prevent Chronometers being affected by either extreme of cold or heat, I have made it my pleasure to serve you on all occasions since I first became convinced of the justice of your claim to so honorable a distinction as the best Chronometer-makers in the world."

Letter from Captain GEORGE PROBYN, of the Hon. East India Company's Ship Minerva, to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"79, Baker Street, March 10, 1825.

"GENTLEMEN—I have much pleasure in making you the most favorable report of your Chronometer No. 560. Its daily gain throughout the voyage was about half a second. Indeed that was the original rate which you gave it. On taking it on board, June 7, 1823, it was 9" too fast, and on my return to England, July 6, 1824, it was 3' 13" too fast on Greenwich time; so that, according with your rate, its error on my return, after a voyage of thirteen months, was only 13". In fact, I have no hesitation in saying that it is one of the best Chronometers I ever met with.

"I am, &c.

GEORGE PROBYN."

Letter from Captain LODOWICK LEEDS, of the Isabella of Baltimore,
to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"Liverpool, Jan. 13, 1824.

"GENTLEMEN—It affords me much satisfaction to state, that the Chronometer No. 276, which I purchased of you, in my voyage from England to China in 1822, and on its return to America, performed with singular correctness. During nine months that I was on board the Tigris it varied from its rate and mean time only four seconds. In my subsequent use of it home, and in my return to Liverpool this winter, it has given the same correct results. It is only due to your merited services to navigation and nautical men to give this testimony of the value I entertain of your Chronometers.

I am, &c.

LUDOWICK LEEDS."

Extract of a Letter from Captain F. DEWSON, of the Boston Packet Ship Topaz, to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"Liverpool, Jan. 23, 1827.

"GENTLEMEN—The Chronometer No. 594, which I purchased of your agent here four years since, is a first-rate instrument, not having varied from her rate five-tenths of a second during the whole time. I have had four of your Chronometers within the last eight years, and in every instance they performed wonderfully.

I am, &c.

F. DEWSON."

Letter from Captain HUGH GRAHAM, of the Packet Ship Caledonia,
to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

"Liverpool, Feb. 29, 1832.

"GENTLEMEN—I have had several Chronometers of your make, all of which have performed with the greatest possible accuracy. The last I purchased of you, No. 771, is unexampled in correctness, not having varied more than two seconds on its rate for the last three years; and during the ten years it has been in my possession it has met my most decided approbation.

I am, &c.

HUGH GRAHAM."

Letter from Captain JOHN CLARKSON, of the Bombay Merchant, to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, dated Deptford, December 10, 1828.

"GENTLEMEN—Herewith you will receive my eight-day Chronometers, 145 and 146, which have given me great satisfaction. No. 146 has gone particularly well, and I don't think 300l. would induce me to part with it. You'll please pay attention to their rates, as I shall want them about the 10th of March next.

I am, &c.

JOHN CLARKSON."

Letter from Captain WILLIAM S. SEBOR, of the Ontario Packet Ship, to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM.

" London, Feb. 24, 1832.

" GENTLEMEN—It affords me much pleasure to have it in my power to say, that during the last ten years that I have constantly been engaged in the navigation between this Port and the United States, I have, on board of the vessels under my command, invariably availed myself of sundry Chronometers made by you. They have at all times performed with equal regularity and correctness: and as an additional instance of their durability and perfection, allow me to mention the circumstance, that when on a late voyage to this country one of these instruments accidentally fell from a high shelf, its action did not become thereby in the least disturbed, but, on the contrary, proceeded without the slightest alteration of rate. It is in justice to your superior skill, and already amply-established reputation only, that I have the gratification of stating these facts, the result of personal observation. Wishing you every farther success your meritorious exertions so well deserve, I remain, &c.

WILLIAM S. SEBOR."

Letter from Captain F. H. HEBARD, of the Packet Ship Hannibal, to Messrs. PARKINSON and FRODSHAM, dated London, March 27, 1832.

" GENTLEMEN—My vessel has just arrived in the London Docks, and I wish you to send for my Chronometer No. 1152.

" Previously to my sailing on the last voyage, I was so much engaged that I entirely forgot to request you to send it on board, and I felt much obliged by your forwarding it to me at Portsmouth. I consider it remarkable, that notwithstanding its conveyance by coach, I found, on working up the rate you sent with it, when at New York, it had not varied more than 7" from the error on Greenwich time. This I consider an additional proof of the excellence of my Chronometer, which I have now had more than four years, during which time its rate has never altered more than one second (keeping between + 1" 5" to + 2" 5"), although it has been twice to Gravesend, and once to Portsmouth by coach; and I have frequently returned to Europe with a variation of not more than one-tenth of a second from the rate given by you.

" I am, &c.

F. H. HEBARD."

Letter from Captain JOSEPH PINDER, of the East India Ship Hindoo, dated Whitehaven, Feb. 22, 1832.

" GENTLEMEN—I have great pleasure in acknowledging the universal satisfaction and accuracy I have derived from three of your Chronometers during the last twelve years, particularly No. 729, which, after performing a voyage from Liverpool to Calcutta (nine months), and allowing her no rate (supposing her going at mean time), I found on my return that there was only seven seconds variation from error given me on my departure. I have had the opportunity of proving them in very cold latitudes, in rounding Cape Horn on two voyages in the winter season, in sudden transitions from heat to cold, and the contrary, and always found them to maintain their regularity of going. I am, &c. J. PINDER.

Letter from Captain WILLIAM ROWETT, dated Liverpool, March 21, 1832.

"GENTLEMEN—I have the satisfaction of handing you the particulars of your Chronometer 564, which has been in my possession for the last six years, during which period I have made four voyages round Cape Horn, and it has been exposed to 21° of Fahrenheit, and to 80° and sometimes to 90° . In neither extreme of temperature has it varied its rate. During one voyage in particular of twenty-six months, on making Ireland, and passing between Cape Clear and the Fastnet rock with very fine weather, it placed the rock in $9^{\circ} 41' 15''$, (which is immediately between that given by Mr. Norrie in his two last editions, which vary from each other seven miles,) allowing one second daily loss, which it had done throughout the voyage. I could give you numerous other proofs where it has been equally correct. Hoping you will continue to benefit the public by your attention to that science, I remain, &c. WILLIAM ROWETT."

Letter from Professor BARLOW, F.R.S., &c. &c.

"GENTLEMEN—You herewith receive the Chronometer I purchased of you in 1825, which I think should, after seven years, undergo your examination. I beg to say that I have every reason to be perfectly satisfied with its performance. I have never in any instance detected in it any unsteady rate, but simply a slight and gradual change between winter and summer, and the contrary. This small vibration I am aware you would have been able to correct; but I am unwilling, while the change is so inconsiderable, and the rate so very small, to have any correction attempted. If this testimonial can add any weight to those you already possess from many of our most distinguished Observers, you are quite at liberty to make any use of it you please. I remain, &c.

"Woolwich, March 27, 1832.

PETER BARLOW."

PARKINSON and FRODSHAM could extend this List of Testimonials to an almost indefinite length: but they conceive enough is here shewn to testify the accuracy and truth of their Time-pieces.

INTERESTING NEW WORKS, BY EMINENT WRITERS,

JUST PUBLISHED BY

RICHARD BENTLEY, NEW BURLINGTON STREET.

(LATE COLBURN AND BENTLEY.)

In 2 vols. 8vo. with fine portrait, maps, &c.

I. LIFE OF SIR DAVID BAIRD, G.C.B.

Including his Correspondence with the most celebrated Military Characters of the Day.

II.
GERALDINE HAMILTON;
Or, SELF-GUIDANCE. A Tale.

'Written with much feminine feeling and tact, and has the unusual merit of not being confined to a narrow sphere.'—Literary Gazette.

III.
THE EAST INDIA SKETCH BOOK.
By Lady. 2 vols. post 8vo.

IV. THE SPANISH NOVELISTS.

A Series of Tales from the Earliest Periods to the Close of the Seventeenth Century; translated from the Originals, with Biographical and Critical Notices. By THOMAS ROSCOE, Esq., Editor of 'The Italian Novelists,' &c. 3 vols.

V. WILD SPORTS OF THE WEST.

With LEGENDARY TALES and LOCAL SKETCHES. By the Author of 'Stories of Waterloo.' 2 vols. 8vo. with numerous Plates and Vignettes.

'Redolent of legendary lore, anecdote, shooting, and fishing exploits, cum multis aliis, and all very entertaining. We have the people and the country placed vividly before us, and almost join in the sights and sports which the author so ably paints.'—Literary Gazette.

VI.
THE STRING OF PEARLS;
From the Persian. By the Author of 'Darnley,' &c. 2 vols. (Just ready.)

VII.
ZOHRAH THE HOSTAGE.
By the Author of 'Hajji Baba.' 3 vols.

'This new romance is running a race of popularity as great as that of Mr. Hope's Anastasius. The character of the Shah, Aga Mohamed, his almost infallible wisdom, and the daring of his military exploits, is true to history, as may be seen by reference to Sir John Malcolm's work Q. Rev. No. 95.

on Persia; and equally true are the sketches of the Prince Fattah Ali, the Vizir Hajji Ibrahim, and the slave Sadhek, however excessively they may seem at first to draw on the reader's credulity. All who know the powers of the author, and are aware of his perfect familiarity with Eastern localities and manners, will feel secure that his dramatic inventions are distinguished by perfect verisimilitude.'—Morning Post.

VIII. THE BUCCANEER.

By Mrs. S. C. HALL, Author of 'Sketches of Irish Character.' 3 vols. (Just ready.)

FRASER'S MAGAZINE.

MONTHLY—PRICE 2s. 6d.

NOTICES OF THE OCTOBER NUMBER.

'This work keeps up its usual spirit; it is altogether entitled to high praise.'—Courier, Oct. 1.

'FRASER appears to us to outstrip all his contemporaries.'—Morning Herald, Oct. 3.

'This is just what a Magazine, in our opinion, ought to be.'—News, Oct. 7.

'REGINA is not only stored to the very hatches, but provided with a well assorted cargo, suited to all tastes.'—Old England, Oct. 6.

'REGINA is in great force this month.'—National Omnibus, Oct. 5.

'The number for the present month will be read with as much amusement and instruction as any of the preceding. There are eighteen or nineteen Articles of various kinds, and all good in their way.'—Morning Post, Oct. 5.

'This Magazine is full of good things.'—Bath Journal, Oct. 8.

'We select an admirably written paper from FRASER'S MAGAZINE of this month.'—Boston Herald, Oct. 9.

'FRASER has done good service.'—Carlisle Journal, Oct. 9.

'Both amusing and instructive.'—Chester Chronicle, Oct. 12.

'The number of this popular miscellany for October is in every respect worthy of its high and increasing reputation—its papers on science, both physical and moral—its humorous sketches and caustic wit are varied and interesting in no common degree, while its honest, straightforward politics always, to our taste, render it well worthy of attentive perusal by those who love sensible, and amusing, and vigorous writing.'—Cornwall Gazette, Oct. 13.

'Contains papers which stand high above most magazine articles in utility and truth.'—Derbyshire Courier, Oct. 5.

'An excellent number.'—Durham Advertiser, Oct. 5.

'The number for the present month is excellent.'—Exeter Gazette, Oct. 13.

'We have turned over the leaves of FRASER with increased pleasure, and recommend the number under notice because we think all who, either for information or amusement, consult its pages will not rise from them without experiencing similar feelings of gratification.'—Exeter Flying Post, Oct. 11.

'FRASER'S MAGAZINE is conducted with much spirit, and yields to none of his contemporaries in the worth and interest of its varied contents.'—Gloucester Journal, Oct. 18.

'This excellent periodical.'—Lancaster Gazette, Oct. 6.

'Contains articles of merit.'—Leeds Mercury, Oct. 6.

'Most ably conducted.'—Liverpool Albion, Oct. 8.

'Abounds in articles of interest and entertainment.'—Liverpool Courier, Oct. 10.

'FRASER'S MAGAZINE outstrips all his contemporaries.'—Maidstone Journal, Oct. 9.

'Contains admirable papers.'—Northampton Herald, Oct. 6.

'This is a clever number of a clever work—an English Blackwood.'—Newcastle Courant, Oct. 13.

'This miscellany is one of the most talented Magazines of the day—the best writers are employed upon it, and the work well deserves the extensive support it receives.'—Plymouth Herald, Oct. 13.

'FRASER is redolent of good things.'—Taunton Courier, Oct. 3.

'The number before us is a most brilliant one.'—Western Luminary, Oct. 9.

'Its contents are exceedingly rich.'—Western Times, Oct. 6.

'Capital, varied, and able throughout.'—Edinburgh Evening Post, Oct. 6.

'We have great pleasure at all times at receiving our friend FRASER'S MAGAZINE, which we regard with affection, not only as the depository of talent, but as the representative of virtuous feeling and upright principle.'—Glasgow Courier, Oct. 6.

* * * There are at present thirty-three Numbers of this periodical,—of some second, and of others third, editions have been required; and the Work from the commencement, either in Numbers or in Volumes, the latter bound in cloth and lettered, price 16s. 6d. each, may now be had at 215, Regent-street, and of all Booksellers and Newsmen, by whom Subscribers' names are received, and the Numbers supplied monthly, price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

OUR VILLAGE; Sketches of Rural Character and Scenery. By MARY RUSSELL MITFORD. The Fifth and concluding volume.

'Miss Mitford has more of the right true country English feeling than almost any other living writer; she is always easy and natural—always full of good sense and original observation; she is acquainted with the pride of the humble, and the imprudences of the prudent; she paints landscapes with much of the truth and clearness of Gainsborough, and like him she peoples her scenes, not with the creations of her own fancy, so much as with the children of the soil, a little ragged sometimes, and their toilettes neglected, but so full of life that we cannot help seeing them before us as we read. Her fame has flown far and wide, and she has taken her rank with the ablest writers of the age; honours ought to be paid to her in every cottage; her works are pictures of the manners and feelings of our peasantry; and she has had the good sense to see that our rustics are not so wholly depraved and shameless, as Crabbe, with little charity, has drawn them.'—Athenæum, Sept. 15.

'The concluding volume of this gallery of rustic scenes and familiar life, which shows the family lineaments strong in its resemblance to its predecessors. The sketches are twenty-four in number, and all bear the impress of Miss Mitford's natural and graphic pencil.'—Lit. Gaz., Sept. 15.

'Miss Mitford is one of the truest painters of life.'—Spectator.

THE BOOK OF BUTTERFLIES, MOTHS, and SPHINXES; containing, in addition to Descriptive Letter-press, Ninety-six Engravings, coloured from Nature. By Captain THOMAS BROWN, F.R.S. F.L.S. M.W.S. &c.

'This is a delightful work, with no fewer than ninety-six Engravings, coloured after Nature: and both by the style of its scientific descriptions and its general arrangement, well calculated to convey ideas, at once correct and popular, of the habits and economy of the beautiful tribes of which it treats.'—Lit. Gaz.

'The Engravings alone would be astonishingly cheap at the price of the work.'—Sunday Times.

IV.

The Second Edition Enlarged, with an Index of every Word, price 3s. in cloth, 1

THE WRITER'S and STUDENT'S ASSISTANT; a Compendious Dictionary of English Synonymes, rendering the more common Words and Phrases in the English Language into the more elegant and scholastic; and presenting at one view select for objectionable Words; a choice of the most appropriate from an assorted variety; and the opportunity of consulting occasional concise Notes, interspersed throughout the whole, pointing out, in a familiar way, the distinction between such of the Words as are frequently, in error, used synonymously.

'This may be characterized as a very useful little abridgment, with considerable improvements of Mr. Crabbe's more elaborate work on Synonymes. It is calculated at once to accelerate literary composition, and to assist in establishing a correct and elegant style, both in speaking and writing.'—Gent. Mag.

V.

The Twenty-third Edition, revised by W. C. TAYLOR, M.A. 12mo. Price 6s. bound and lettered.

PINNOCK'S Improved Edition of Dr. GOLDSMITH'S HISTORY of ENGLAND, with a Dictionary, Biographical, Historical, &c.: explaining every difficulty, fixing the proper Sound and Meaning of the Words, and rendering every part easy to be understood by the meanest capacity; with a Continuation of the History, from the Peace of Amiens up to the Year 1832. To which are added several new Chapters, copious Notes throughout, and three interesting and comprehensive Genealogical Tables of the Sovereigns of England; with Portraits of all the Sovereigns and the Junior Branches of the present Royal Family; a coloured Map, containing the Ancient and Modern Divisions, &c.; and many other valuable Improvements.

'We consider this to be one of the most complete books of the kind for education that has ever issued from the press; and the improvements so copious as to merit a distinct eulogium. The editors deserve every praise for the pains and labour they have bestowed in perfecting the publication.'—Lit. Gaz.

A THREE MONTHS' TOUR IN SWITZERLAND and FRANCE. Giving a General Description of the Country, an accurate Account of the different Routes, and affording every necessary Information for the Guidance of future Travellers. By the Rev. WILLIAM LIDDIARD, Author of 'A Metrical Tale of Switzerland,' &c. &c.

'We find enough in this work to justify an anticipation of its proving a welcome companion to those who may be inclined to follow the same track, as well as a fund of entertainment to readers at home.'—New Monthly.

'This gentleman sketches with effect; his descriptions are those of an ardent admirer of Nature in her grandest array; and his book is the work of a man of highly cultivated mind and gentlemanly feeling.'—Metropolitan.

'We must say that the descriptions of Mr. Liddiard are at once lively, accurate, and well-chosen; and that those persons who are about to afford themselves the delight of a similar "Three Months' Tour in Switzerland and France," cannot do a wiser thing than make this book their carriage companion.'—Court Journal.

ACTUARY—NICHOLAS GRUT, Esq.

In this Office, the Assured participate in four-fifths, or 80 per cent. of the estimated Profits, which will be added every Seventh Year, by way of Bonus, to Policies effected for the whole term of life, on lives not exceeding the age of fifty when assured. Or the additions may be applied in reduction of future annual premiums, at the option of the assured, to be expressed in writing when effecting the assurance.

Every holder of a Policy of £1000, or upwards, for the whole term of life, may (after two annual payments) attend and vote at all General Meetings.

All persons whose lives are assured in this Office, may pass and repass in time of peace from any part of Europe to another, by sea or land, without payment of additional premium, or forfeiting their Policies.

Claims are paid within Three Months after proof of the death of the party.

SEPTENNIAL BONUS.

The following Table shows the Additions made to Policies for £5000, which had been in force for Seven complete years, to the 31st December, 1831, viz.—

Date of Policy.	Age when assured.			Additions to Sums assured.
31st December 1824	..	10	..	£281 0 10
.. Ditto	15	..	338 19 2
.. Ditto	20	..	414 11 8
.. Ditto	25	..	424 15 10
.. Ditto	30	..	433 15 0
.. Ditto	35	..	447 10 0
.. Ditto	40	..	477 18 4
.. Ditto	45	..	512 10 0
.. Ditto	50	..	571 5 0

Proportionate sums were also appropriated to Policies which have subsisted for less than seven years, and will be payable in the event of death, after seven annual payments.

The above additions, on an average of all ages, exceed 44 per cent. on the Premiums paid.

Persons assured, at any period before the next Valuation in 1838, will also have sums appropriated to their Policies, in proportion to the Profits then declared.

Assurances for a LIMITED NUMBER OF PAYMENTS ONLY, may be effected at this Office; the Policies participating in profits, although the annual payments may have ceased.

BUTLER'S MEDICINE CHEST
DIRECTORY, and FAMILY CATALOGUE OF DRUGS, CHEMICALS, &c., with the Properties and Doses, and the best Mode of Administration of all the Articles more generally used in DOMESTIC MEDICINE; to which is appended, a CONCISE and FAMILIAR DESCRIPTION OF DISEASES.

The objects of the Medicine Chest Directory are, 1st, to teach unprofessional persons to distinguish such diseases as are dangerous in their nature and rapid in their progress, in order that proper assistance may be had without unnecessary delay; 2nd, to instruct them how to act reasonably in such cases as either do not require a physician's attendance, or in which his presence cannot be immediately obtained.

In the work will also be found the most approved methods of fumigating infectious chambers; directions for counteracting poisons; the Royal Humane Society's mode of treating suspended animation from drowning, apoplexy, suffocation, &c. Also, observations on bathing, and an account of the Mineral Waters of Cheltenham, Bath, Harrowgate, Leamington, &c.

. This Work will be found useful in large manufactories, to Emigrants, Travellers, and particularly to Captains of vessels, when no medical attendant is on board.

Published by Messrs. Butler, 54, Lower Sackville Street, and W. F. Wakeman, Dublin; Simpkin and Marshall, London; Oliver and Boyd, Edinburgh; and sold by all Booksellers and Druggists in the United Kingdom.

PROFESSOR BURNETT'S NEW EDITION OF MEDICAL BOTANY.

DEDICATED BY PERMISSION TO THE KING.

Just published, Nos. I. and II., price 2s. 6d. each, (to be continued monthly, and complete in 48 numbers.)

MEDICAL BOTANY; or, Illustrations and Descriptions of the Medicinal Plants of the London, Edinburgh, and Dublin Pharmacopœias; including a Popular and Scientific Account of Poisonous Vegetables indigenous to Great Britain. With Figures drawn and coloured from Nature. By JOHN STEPHENSON, M.D. F.L.S., Graduate of the University of Edinburgh; and JAMES MORRIS CHURCHILL, F.L.S., Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, and Fellow of the Medico-Botanical Society of London. New Edition, edited by GILBERT T. BURNETT, F.L.S., M.B. R.I. R.C.S., Professor of Botany in King's College, London, and to the Medico-Botanical Society.

The flattering reception given to the previous Edition of 'Medical Botany' has induced the Publisher to re-issue the work at such a REDUCTION IN PRICE as will place it within the reach of every student, while the additional value conferred by its being edited by Professor Burnett will ensure its continuing to rank as the best Standard Work on this branch of Medical Science. No expense will be spared to make this edition as complete as the present advanced state of Botany demands. New plates will be substituted for those where botanical inaccuracy has been detected, or any failure from a close and faithful representation of Nature observed.

ALLIANCE

BRITISH AND FOREIGN LIFE AND FIRE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

ESTABLISHED BY ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

CAPITAL £5,000,000 STERLING.

TO AGENTS.

PERSONS desirous of becoming AGENTS of the Company in those places where no Agencies have hitherto been appointed, will be so good as address their applications to ANDREW HAMILTON, Esq., Secretary, Alliance Assurance Office, London.

As the Company grant a PARTICIPATION of PROFITS to the ASSURED, both in the Life and Fire Departments, the Agents enjoy every facility in effecting business. At the first quinquennial division of Profits in the Life Department, in March, 1829, the sum appropriated to holders of policies for the whole term, amounted on an average to about 20 per cent. of the Premiums which they had paid.

ANALYTICAL COURSE OF MATHEMATICS, BY J. R. YOUNG.

1. THE ELEMENTS of PLANE and SPHERICAL TRIGONOMETRY; comprehending the Theory of Navigation and Nautical Astronomy, together with the necessary Logarithmic and Trigonometrical Tables. 12mo. price 10s. 6d. in cloth.

2. THE TABLES separately, price 5s. 6d. in cloth.

3. ELEMENTS of the INTEGRAL CALCULUS: with its Applications to Geometry, and to the Summation of Infinite Series, &c. 9s. in cloth.

This volume forms one of an Analytical Course.

* More elegant text-books do not exist in the English language; and we trust they will speedily be adopted in our mathematical seminaries. The existence of such auxiliaries will, of itself, we hope, prove an inducement to the cultivation of analytical science; for, to the want of such elementary works, the indifference hitherto manifested in this country on the subject, is, we apprehend, chiefly to be ascribed. Mr. Young has brought the science within the reach of every intelligent student, and, in so doing, has contributed to the advancement of mathematical learning in Great Britain.—Presbyterian Review, Jan. 1832.

4. ELEMENTS of the DIFFERENTIAL CALCULUS: comprehending the General Theory of Curve Surfaces and of Curves of Double Curvature. 8s. in cloth.

5. An ELEMENTARY TREATISE on ALGEBRA, Theoretical and Practical; with Attempts to simplify some of the more difficult Parts of the Sciences, particularly the Demonstration of the Binomial Theorem, in its most general form; the Solution of Equations of the higher orders; the Summation of Infinite Series, &c. 8vo. boards, 8s.

6. An ELEMENTARY TREATISE on the COMPUTATIONS of LOGARITHMS; intended as a Supplement to the various books on Algebra. 12mo. 2s. 6d.

7. ELEMENTS of GEOMETRY; containing a New and Universal Treatise on the Doctrine of Proportions, together with Notes, in which are pointed out and corrected several important Errors that have hitherto remained unnoticed in the Writings of Geometers. 8vo. 7s.

8. The ELEMENTS of ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY; comprehending the Doctrine of the Conic Sections, and the general Theory of Curves and Surfaces of the second Order, with a variety of Local Problems on Lines and Surfaces. Intended for the Use of Mathematical Students in Schools and Universities. 9s. cloth.

9. ELEMENTS of MECHANICS, comprehending the Theory of Equilibrium and of Motion, and the first Principles of Physical Astronomy; together with a variety of Statical and Dynamical Problems. Illustrated by numerous Plates. 10s. 6d. cloth.

* If works like the present be introduced generally into our schools and colleges, the Continent will not long boast of its immense superiority over the country of Newton, in every branch of modern analytical science.—Atlas, July 25, 1830.

LIFE of THOMAS GENT. Portrait, new, in cloth boards, 9s. 8vo. Large Paper, with Proof Impressions of the Portrait, upon India Paper, extra cloth boards, 11. 1s. 8vo.

The Author of this curious and hitherto unpublished piece of Auto-Biography is well-known by the several works of which he was the author, as well as printer. The narrative is full, written in an easy and unaffected style, interspersed with several pieces of Poetry; and, from the number of adventures he went through in early life, and the characters and stories incidentally introduced, is extremely amusing. His occupation as a printer necessarily introduced him to the acquaintance of many literary men, and his book abounds with notices of authors, printers, &c. of the times in which he lived; among others occur the names of Bishop Atterbury, with whom he relates a singular interview, Browne Willis, and Dr. Drake, the Historian of York, &c.

ORIENTAL PUBLICATIONS.

POPULAR and ESTEEMED ORIENTAL, ELEMENTARY, and other PUBLICATIONS, by the late WILLIAM PRICE, Assistant Secretary to the Right Honourable Sir Gore Ouseley, Bart., Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from his Britannic Majesty to the Court of Persia.

Journal of Travels through Persia, Armenia, and Asia Minor, the route of Sir Gore Ouseley's Diplomatic Mission from England to the Court of Persia; with a Dissertation upon the Antiquities of Persepolis, illustrated by nearly eighty Views of Places, Monuments, Inscriptions, &c. The Second Edition, 2 vols. oblong folio, 21. 2s. boards.

The purchase of the entire property of Mr. Price's Works, since his lamented decease, enables the publisher to reduce the publication price of his highly esteemed work to two guineas.

The Illustrations, which are very numerous, are many of them admirable for their spirit and effect, and exhibit much, that has hitherto been unattainable by any European Traveller.

The Second Volume comprises the Journal of the route of a portion of the Embassy back to Constantinople and Smyrna, and the Voyage thence to England.

A Grammar of the Three Principal Oriental Languages, Hindoostanee, Persian, and Arabic, on a plan entirely new and easy. To which is added a set of Persian Dialogues, composed by Mirza Mohammed Saulis, of Shiraz, with an English Translation. 4to. 18s. boards.

Elements of the Sanscrit Language; or, An Easy Guide to the Indian Tongues, 4to. 10s. 6d. boards.

The Sanscrit, a language of high antiquity, has been spoken by the Indians from a very remote period. The motives which induced the present publication are thus explained by the late respected author:—

'After having studied some of the languages spoken in the East, with tolerable success, I applied myself to the Sanscrit, as the chief source from which many of the modern Dialects are derived; but the vast number of superficial rules that appeared in the Grammars, seemed an insurmountable barrier. Having advanced in the first principles, I selected such simple rules as were the basis of others of a more prolix nature; and as I advanced in the acquirement, I found I had acquired a very useful Grammar, containing every fundamental rule sufficient for analysing any compound word or sentence, and for the translation of the most learned works in the language.

'When in India, I collected some valuable treatises on the rudiments of Sanscrit verse; these and my own observations interspersed with the rules already alluded to, form the Grammar I now venture to lay before the public, trusting that a candid and impartial view will be taken of a work, in the composition of which I have made UTILITY MY PRINCIPAL OBJECT.'

A New Grammar of the Hindoostanee Language; to which are added, Selections from the best Authors, Familiar Phrases and Dialogues, in the proper character. 4to. 10s. 6d. boards.

Particular care has been taken to render the rules of this modern Dialect, derived from the Sanscrit, Arabic, and Persian, clear and concise. The Hindoos retain a greater mixture of Sanscrit, while the Mussulman part of the people copiously tincture their expressions with Arabic and Persian words and phrases. A partial knowledge of the three languages is therefore required; and the Elementary Grammar of the Sanscrit is intended as an accompaniment to this of the Hindoostanee, by which the latter may be traced to its primitive sources. As to the Arabic and Persian, all that is requisite for the acquirement of the Arabic will be found in the Grammar of the 'Three Principal Oriental Languages.'

Dialogues composed by Mirza Saulhi, of Shiraz, in Persian Characters, with an English Translation, as literal as possible, in parallel columns. 4to. 4s. sewed.

The only Persian Dialogues hitherto known, are those in the Persian Moonshie, composed by Indian Moonshies, unaccustomed to modern Persian, and are replete with pedantic phrases and obsolete words. The present attempt will, therefore, be hailed as no inconsiderable addition to the fund of Oriental Literature, and as a practical means of rendering the attainment of the Persian language less difficult to students.

Dialogues in the Persian Language, printed in the Roman character, with a French Translation in a parallel column. 4to. 3s. sewed.

These Dialogues of Mirza Mohammed Saulih, of Shiraz, are printed for the use of students who may not be familiar with the Persian. The orthography is suited to English Pronunciation, which the translator conceived to be better adapted to the purpose, than that of the French, or any other European language.

Husn Oo Dil, or Beauty and Heart, an Allegory, composed by Alfetah of Nishapoor, Persian and English. 4to. 10s. 6d. boards.

Translated from a beautiful manuscript on silky paper, powdered with gold dust, and highly ornamented by the hand of Abdunahman in [1491] the year of the Hegira 896.

The idioms of this translation, which is perfectly literal, conform to the Persian order; that the oriental student may more readily trace the words, as they correspond with each other in the two languages.

Now on sale, by THOMAS THORPE, Bedford-street, Covent Garden; Mr. PARKER, Oxford; and Mr. JOHN THORPE, Cambridge; and may be had of all Booksellers.

Beautifully printed in small 8vo., with appropriate Engravings by the most Eminent Artists. Price of each Volume in cloth boards, 5s.

THE Publishers have felt regret at receiving from all quarters complaints, that, in consequence of several of the Numbers having been out of print, it was impossible to meet the constant call for complete Sets. This, they beg leave to state, arose inevitably from the rapid and increasing demand, which has been so much beyond expectation, that for some time they could not provide effectually against the inconvenience. But arrangements have now been made on a scale commensurate with the ample and flattering encouragement afforded by the Public: the Volumes are all reprinted, and the Publishers trust that they will henceforth be able to ensure a regular supply of the EDINBURGH CABINET LIBRARY from its commencement.

FRANCE IN THE LIVES OF HER GREAT MEN.

VOL. I. 8vo. 16s.

THE HISTORY OF CHARLEMAGNE.

By G. P. R. JAMES, Esq.

'Out of the mass of contradictions and difficulties that lay at the very threshold of his task, Mr. James has produced a luminous and impartial work, which will confer lasting honour on his name.'—Atlas.

'We are glad to see that this Life of Charlemagne is but the beginning of a great undertaking, and we cannot give Mr. James higher praise than when we say, we do not wish more than that the work should continue as it has commenced.'—Literary Gazette.

'This is high praise, and Mr. James must feel it to be so. We go farther, and say that his work displays talent of a very high order, and that it supplies an important desideratum in English literature.'—Athenæum.

'It will be difficult to compress into a small space the sentiments with which we have been inspired during the perusal of this volume, or to give an adequate idea of the impression it has left upon our mind. We rise from it as from the contemplation of a magnificent picture; and our admiration is divided between the subject itself, and the artist whose talent has been employed in its delineation.'—Nottingham, Lincoln, and Doncaster Gazette.

'Our admiration of the style in which Mr. James has executed his task, almost tempts us to travel with the reader, page by page, through the volume.'—Mirror.

'He manifests throughout the volume great patience in research; scrupulous regard to truth; sound discriminating judgment; and that happy combination of narrative and reflective talent, which communicates at once liveliness and dignity to history. His style is at once clear, vigorous, and classical.'—Scotsman.

'It is impossible, within the limits of a weekly journal to give anything like an analysis of the contents of the volume before us, which must be read, and that with attention, to be properly appreciated. The work is evidently the composition of a master-hand, and must have been the result of great labour and research.'—Exeter Gazette.

'We are bound to say that the attempt to write the history of a country which has undergone so many changes and political convulsions as France 'in the lives of her great men,' is an effort which, if successful, deserves the highest reward which letters can bestow. To say that the Author has executed the task before us with the usual talent of a compiler, would come short of the truth; he has discharged his duties as an historical biographer, ably and impartially; and we have intrinsic evidence in the work itself, that he has spared no pains in collecting his authorities.'—Edinburgh Observer.

'This is but his starting point; he purposes to follow up the present sketch of the Life of Charlemagne, by a series of volumes on the same principle, illustrating the history of France by the lives of her great men. We shall hail the appearance of these works with pleasure, if they fulfil the rich promise the present one holds out—for it is eloquent, interesting, and instructive, in no common degree.'—Scots Times.

'We know not that a more attractive subject than a History of Charlemagne and his Times could have been chosen; nor do we know any living author who could have done more justice to the theme than has been rendered to it by Mr. James.'—Durham Advertiser.

'If we consider the mass of heterogeneous materials out of which the volume before us has been composed, the conflicting statements of the author's contemporary with the hero whose history it records, and the very opposite opinions which modern historians have formed of the value of Charlemagne's institutions, the policy of his laws, and the justice of his wars, the labour and research which characterise Mr. James's work will appear incalculable; and the impartiality with which he has examined the facts he relates, and has formed the opinions he expresses, will be rated at its proper value.'—Northern Whig.

'This is a very novel way of executing the history of a country; but it will be readily perceived to be the most judicious, giving it, in the shape of biography, a far more attractive influence, rendering the philosophy of history more powerfully impressive, and bringing every event into closer association with those whose mental powers in the political and moral sciences have tended to aggrandise the scope of intellect.'—West Briton.

'Mr. James, we think, has discovered the secret in which the interest of history consists. Instead of a detailed account of the affairs of France from the earliest ages to the present time, he has very ingeniously considered that the same object may be accomplished in a manner more satisfactory to the reader, by presenting a continued series of biographies, embracing all the illustrious men whose actions adorned the siècles in which they flourished, and gave direction to the future fortunes of their country. This method is probably one of the happiest improvements upon the popular literature of the day, which it has fallen to the lot of this age of change to witness.'—Glasgow Courier.

NEW PRACTICAL COMMENTARY ON THE NEW TESTAMENT.

On the 1st of September was published, (to be continued monthly,) No. I., price 6d. of

THE NEW TESTAMENT, with a COMMENTARY, consisting of Short Lectures, for the daily Use of Families. By the Rev. CHARLES GIRDLESTONE, M.A., Vicar of Sedgley, Staffordshire.

In this Edition of the New Testament it has been the chief object of the Editor to furnish Families with an Exposition for daily reading. The Scripture is divided into paragraphs of a convenient length, and the explanatory and practical matter is digested, under each portion, into one consecutive Lecture, so as to demand of the Reader no previous study or attention.

The First Volume, containing the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Mark, may be had complete, price 9s. in boards.

Printed for J. G. and F. Rivington, St. Paul's Churchyard and Waterloo Place; and sold by Parker, Oxford; Langbridge, Birmingham; and all other Booksellers.

A SKETCH of the HISTORY of the CHURCH of ENGLAND to the REVOLUTION 1688. By THOMAS VOWLER SHORT, B.D., Student of Christ Church, and Rector of Kings Worthy, Hants.

'Mr. Short informs us in his preface that these volumes were drawn up for his own use, and under a sense of the duty incumbent on every clergyman to become intimately acquainted with our Church History, especially those parts of it which immediately concern the formation of our Articles, Liturgy, &c. We are inclined to think that Students in Divinity will find Mr. Short's volumes very useful, in consequence of his having attended particularly to these matters.'—British Magazine, No. 5.

J. H. PARKER, Oxford; J. G. & F. RIVINGTON, LONDON; J. & J. J. DEIGHTON, Cambridge.

Lately published, by Messrs. Simpkin and Marshall,

BIBLE STORIES, PART II.; Containing STORIES taken from the NEW TESTAMENT. By the Rev. S. Wood, B.A. Price 2*s*. in cloth boards.

These Stories are almost entirely in the words of the Common Version. Reflections are added to those sections which seem to admit of them, and short Explanatory Notes where they are required.

Also, by the same Author,

BIBLE STORIES, PART I.; containing STORIES taken from the OLD TESTAMENT. 1*s*. 6*d*. in cloth boards.

ADDRESSES FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS, with APPROPRIATE PRAYERS. 3*s*. in cloth boards.

'We have perused the Addresses to Sunday Schools with very great pleasure. They are written in that happy style, plain, affectionate, and familiar, which is sure to fix the attention and interest of the young, and are eminently calculated to do good, both from their own intrinsic excellence, and as furnishing valuable models to those engaged in the interesting duties of the institutions for which they are intended.'—Christian Pioneer for Dec. 1831.

PRAYERS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS, with LISTS of BOOKS suitable to the CHILDREN, and HINTS to TEACHERS. 2*s*. half-bound.

Also, edited by the same,

The WELL-SPENT HOUR; reprinted from the American Edition. 2*s*. half-bound.

CHRISTMAS TALES,

HISTORICAL AND DOMESTIC.

By W. H. HARRISON,

Author of 'Tales of a Physician,' 'The Humorist,' &c.

Illustrated with Engraving by Bacon, Charles Heath, Goodyear, Portbury, &c., from designs by Richter, Corbould, J. M. Wright, &c., &c.

With a Medallion Portrait of the late Sir Walter Scott, Bart., in relief, from a Medal Engraved by Stothard, from a Bust by F. Chantrey, R.A.

Although, in presuming to add to the number of ANNUAL competitors for public favour, the Proprietors of CHRISTMAS TALES cannot but feel that they are venturing upon ground which has been considered to be already sufficiently occupied, they trust to some peculiarities by which their volume will be distinguished from its precursors; for securing a fair share of the patronage which has usually been extended to this class of publications.

The volume will consist of a series of original tales, in prose, some of which, founded on historical fact, are designed to illustrate the characters of persons who have played conspicuous parts on the great theatre of the world—others, again, attempt to depict feelings and events which spring out of domestic life; and it will be found, generally, that while it aims to promote the amusement of the social circle, the inculcation of moral and religious truth has not been overlooked.

Of the pictorial illustrations it is merely necessary to state they are executed in the very best style of the artists whose names are prefixed.

CONTARINI FLEMING; a Psychological Autobiography. In 4 vols. fcap. 8vo. 24s.

'Contarini Fleming is the product of a travelled mind—a meditative mind—a mind gradually filtering itself of its early impurities of taste and discrepancies of judgment. What a character has the author made of Winter! I know nothing like it in the English language in conception, or more elaborately executed; it is only a pity that we have so little of this fine ideal. To sum up—in this work the author has shown a power, a fertility, a promise, which we sanguinely hope will produce very considerable and triumphant results.'—The Author of Pelham, in the New Monthly Magazine.

INFORMATION and DIRECTIONS for TRAVELLERS on the CONTINENT of EUROPE, more particularly in ITALY and in the ISLAND of SICILY.

By MARIANA STARKE.

SEVENTH EDITION,

Carefully corrected, and enlarged.

In one compact Pocket Volume, price 15s.

The Author of the above work, which has long enjoyed the reputation of being the best Guide Book for Italy, being fully persuaded of the impossibility of writing an accurate account of a country without having examined it herself; and likewise feeling, from respect to the public, an earnest wish not to be considered an erroneous Guide, has lately visited almost every part of Italy, especially those parts which in modern times have been neglected by travellers. She has collected the newest information from all quarters, and has rewritten the greater portion of the book. The additions and improvements to this edition will be found to have materially increased the value of the work to all classes of travellers. A very important chapter is devoted to the description of the Remains of Ancient Italy, lately brought to light and investigated by the Antiquarian Society of Rome. The Author, anxious to facilitate the progress of travellers who may feel a desire to visit the ancient Remains in Etruria, has endeavoured to discover the best roads leading to them, and, by minutely examining them, has been enabled to give an account of them which is to be found in no other work of the sort.

'It being her object to comprise within the narrow limits of one portable volume all the information requisite for travellers in the most frequented parts of Europe, she has combined her account of the "Remains of Ancient Italy" with a new and considerably enlarged edition of her "Travels in Europe." The following pages, therefore, contain a faithful description of the Antiquities, ancient Customs, and Manners of Italy, Magna Græcia, and Sicily; together with an account of all the principal Towns and Post-roads in the most frequented parts of the European Continent; correct Catalogues* of the most valuable specimens of Architecture, Painting, and Sculpture, in France, Italy, Magna Græcia, Sicily, and Germany; with the opinions of Nardini, Venuti, Winckelmann, and Visconti, on some of the most celebrated Works of Art. The following pages likewise contain an account (deduced from very long experience) of the Climates of Southern Europe; the expenses attendant upon various modes of travelling; the distances from post to post on every Great Road, according to the post-books last published; the average price of ready-furnished Lodgings, Provisions, &c.; together with a short comparative view of family expenses in various Cities of Europe: so that persons led by motives of economy to reside on the Continent may not experience the disappointment of finding their plans frustrated by imposition.'

* No complete printed description of the sculpture, frescos, and oil-paintings, either in the Vatican or in the private galleries at Rome, being at the present moment attainable, the Author of the ensuing Work has endeavoured to supply this deficiency by catalogues made with the utmost care: but it should be recollected that in every gallery, whether public or private, the situation of statues and pictures is liable to be changed.'

BOSWELL'S LIFE of JOHNSON, a New Edition, incorporating HAWKINS, Mrs. Piozzi, TOUR to the HEBRIDES, &c.

By the Right Honourable
JOHN WILSON CROKER.

Illustrated with numerous original Notes by Sir WALTER SCOTT, Sir JAMES MACKINTOSH, LORD STOWELL, and the EDITOR. With several original Portraits. 5 vols. 8vo. 3l.

'We do not know the literary work which has acquired a greater or more universal popularity than Boswell's Life of Johnson. It has been a constant favourite with all intelligent readers; and though slight improvements have been made in the new editions at various times, it was quite necessary to revise it again, because many facts and explanations, which were not set down, because they were universally known, and were entrusted to the keeping of tradition, were in a fair way to be entirely lost. A few years will have swept away all the associates of Johnson; but as the trouble of collecting these things is not at all estimated by readers at large, no one was willing to submit to the labour, till Mr. Croker came forward and undertook the trust. We can cheerfully bear witness to the able and faithful manner in which he has discharged the duty. We acknowledge the excellence of the work, and recommend it to all who wish for an intimate acquaintance with Johnson, and every one who has the least respect for intellectual greatness is included in this description. The work is much improved by inserting extracts from the other biographers. Mr. Croker has evidently laboured with unwearying industry to gather materials. We cannot believe that any subsequent improvement will ever be made upon this edition; and we have no doubt that it will excite the curiosity and reward the attention of the reading world. We have the pleasure of announcing an American reprint, and hope that we shall be able to repeat the saying of a distinguished writer of the last age, "Every one that can buy a book has bought Boswell."—North American Review for Jan. 1832.

The DIARY of an INVALID in pursuit of HEALTH; being the Journal of a Tour in Portugal, Italy, Switzerland, and France.

By the late HENRY MATHEWS, M.A.
Fellow of King's College, Cambridge.

Fourth Edition, complete in one pocket volume.

"In the number of those more unpretending works which do not profess to give an elaborate description of Italy, or any particular part of it, but merely to record the impressions of a stranger as he journeyed through the country, and thus to supply an entertaining companion to his followers in the same path, we have long singled out 'Mathews' Diary of an Invalid.' It is the work of a scholar and a gentleman, written in an amicable temper of tolerance, and good-will towards mankind."—Journal of Education, No. VIII.

VIEW of the MOTIONS of the HEAVENLY BODIES.With a popular INTRODUCTION.By Mrs. SOMERVILLE. 8vo. 30s.

'Taken altogether, the production does honour to the age in which we live—but as the exclusive performance of a female, it must be regarded as a prodigy of intelligence and mental industry. It is a subject worthy of national congratulation, that a lady of extraordinary talents, and of sufficient ambition to trespass beyond the restraints imposed upon her sex, should enlist in the ranks of the missionaries of useful knowledge.'—Monthly Review, Jan, 1838.

'In the pursuit of her object, and in the natural and commendable wish to embody her acquired knowledge in a useful and instructive form for others, the Author seems entirely to have lost sight of herself; and, although in perfect consciousness of the possession of powers fully adequate to meet every exigency of her arduous undertaking, it yet never seems to have suggested itself to her mind, that the acquisition of such knowledge, or the possession of such powers, by a person of her sex, is in itself anything extraordinary or remarkable.'

'We have, indeed, no hesitation in saying, that we consider the Preliminary Dissertation by far the best condensed view of the Newtonian philosophy which has yet appeared. We do not, of course, mean to include the "Système du Monde" of Laplace himself, which embraces a far wider range, both of illustration and detail, and of which Mrs. Somerville's preface may in some sort be regarded as an abstract, but an abstract so vivid and judicious as to have all the merit of originality, and such as could have been produced only by one accustomed to large and general views, as well as perfectly familiar with the particulars of the subject.'—Quarterly Review.

THE PROVINCE of JURISPRUDENCE DEFINED. In Six Essays. Being the Substance of Ten Lectures delivered at the University of London.By JOHN AUSTIN, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 12s.

'I have stated in the beginning of my preface, that the six Lectures or Essays composing the following Treatise are made out of ten Lectures which I delivered at the University of London. These (I may venture to add) were heard with some approbation, by an instructed and judicious audience. Imboldened by that approbation, I submit them, in their present form, to the judgment of a larger public.'—Preface.

A SHORT HISTORY of SPAIN.
On the Plan of Mrs. MARKHAM's HISTORIES of ENGLAND and FRANCE.

By MARIA CALLCOTT.

With Wood Engravings. 2 vols. 12mo.

'These works are constructed on a plan which is novel and we think well chosen. They are divided into chapters, and at the end of each chapter is subjoined a conversation suggested by the matter of the preceding text. By this arrangement a consecutive narrative is kept up, while, at the same time, everything interesting connected with each reign is made the subject of discussion and examination: thus much valuable and curious information is imparted without disturbing the continuity or perplexing the progressive steps of the history. The style is plain and easy—the conversations are usually sustained with spirit, and are sufficiently familiar without degenerating into puerility; at least this blemish is only of rare occurrence, and in books designed for children we hold this to be no trifling merit. The works bear throughout evident marks that the Author is completely versed in every part of the history of the two countries. She has shown great judgment in the selection of events and of those particulars which are most likely to attract the attention of children. She offers to their notice exactly the species of knowledge which they can best understand, and does not confuse them with a recital of the complicated manoeuvres of political factions. Party intrigues are not discussed, and the crimes and vices of mankind are not exhibited so as to offend or disgust, while good feeling and pure morality are generally inculcated.'

'We are glad to find that these excellent little Histories are deservedly popular. They cannot be too strongly recommended as adapted for the perusal of youth, while readers of more advanced age may find in their pages much that is novel and entertaining.'—Journal of Education.

PRINTED UNIFORMLY WITH THE WAVERLEY NOVELS,
THE
FIRST COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION
OF THE
WORKS OF LORD BYRON,
WITH HIS LETTERS AND JOURNALS; AND HIS LIFE.

By THOMAS MOORE, Esq.

Now publishing in Monthly Volumes, (of which the First Eleven have already appeared,) each containing two highly-finished Engravings,

By WILLIAM AND EDWARD FINDEN.

From Drawings by TURNER, STANFIELD, and other Eminent Artists.

Price 5s. each Volume.

With the Seventh Volume commence the Poetical Works. They have been carefully edited, arranged in chronological order, illustrated with copious Notes, explanatory of persons and events alluded to in them, and have been augmented by many new Poems, printed now for the first time, accompanied by numerous Extracts from Letters and Journals of Lord Byron, not included in the Life. In fact, no pains have been spared to render this the Standard Edition of Lord Byron's Poetry; and that which must always be referred to on account of its accuracy and completeness.

"The Poetical Works of Byron, thus arranged and illustrated from his own Diaries and Letters (to many of which, as yet in MS., the Editor has had access)—and from the information of his surviving friends, who have in general answered every inquiry with prompt kindness, will now present the clearest picture of the history of the man, as they must ever form the noblest monument of his genius."

"We must congratulate the Publisher on the ready zeal with which the family and friendly associates of Lord Byron have come forward on this occasion. The private letters and diaries of the noble poet, were not all in Mr. Moore's hands, when he drew up his memorable 'Notices;' and it is obvious that many such materials have, for the first time, been brought forth for the service of the volume now before us, and, we presume, of the others that are to follow it. We must also congratulate him on the industry and good taste which have been applied to the utilization of the precious materials thus placed at his disposal; but of this our readers will draw a fair augury for themselves.

"The light now thrown on the early history of Lord Byron, both as a man and as a poet, is extraordinary. The communications of his friends, hitherto silent, have enabled the Editor to fill up blanks and explain allusions, which lend a wholly new interest to those 'occasional pieces' in which the great poet exercised his growing powers; but they have done more than this: they have, from the stores of their private albums, or escrutoires, supplied a whole body of early poetry, superior to anything that had hitherto appeared under the dates to which their composition is referred."—Literary Gazette.

"The present volume abounds with new matter, and that of a most interesting kind, both in verse and prose. The poems are not only arranged according to the date of their composition, but on almost every page we have a running commentary, illustrating the text, explaining the circumstances under which the various poems were composed, and giving us agreeable glimpses of the noble poet and his friends and companions. These notes are, in our estimation, very valuable; they are anecdotal, critical, historical, or biographical, as the occasion demands, and seem to be supplied by one who is well acquainted with polished life and popular literature, and who has the good sense to be brief as well as instructive.

"We have no less than ten poems, not one of which has ever been published before, to select something worthy of the poet from; and there is the less difficulty in this, since they are all, or nearly all, marked by much of the manly vigour of his brightest days.

"The public is largely indebted to the publisher for this addition of a favourite author; not only is it remarkable for external elegance and compact beauty of arrangement, but it contains the only full and accurate account of the man, and the only complete collection of his poems and letters which has or can be published. It is also lavishly embellished."—Athenæum, June 23.

"The poems of Lord Byron will thus form a species of autobiography; for the verse of Byron was the outpouring of his spirit, an interpretation of the passion of the moment, or else the reflections induced by the passing of events before him.

"Great care has been taken in the getting up of the work; a sedulous editor has thrown every light on the various contents of the volume that time and death have permitted to be made public; and such, indeed, is the plan of the publisher, and the power within his hands, that it may be said of the present edition with justice, that no one will possess any other who can procure this."—Spectator, June 23, 1832.

"It may be justly said of this publication that not an opportunity has been lost in it. For beauty of embellishment and aptness of annotation, it is unrivalled. The arrangement of the poet's works (upon which we enter in the seventh volume, containing 'Hours of Idleness,' 'English Bards and Scotch Reviewers,' and many short pieces,) according to the dates of performance, is also excellent, as it marks the germs and the development of the author's genius."—Examiner.

"Nothing is wanted to render the whole as complete, in relation to his Lordship's character and the gradual development of his mind, as any means in existence can make it. Many of the pieces, which are now given to the public for the first time, as well as the majority of Lord Byron's poems, having a direct reference to his Lordship's feelings and the events of his life, their collection in this form, accompanied with such a running commentary of facts and criticism, may be said to contain his poetical autobiography; and in that point of view, apart from the intrinsic interest of the productions themselves, this edition is recommended to general attention by new claims, that no future edition can ever be expected to surpass."—Atlas, July 1, 1831.

"From the specimen afforded by the new volume, it seems to us that, great as the popularity of the preceding volumes has been, it was slight compared with that which awaits the remainder."—Alfred.

POPULAR WORKS

PUBLISHED BY

BALDWIN AND CRADOCK,
PATERNOSTER-ROW.

A HISTORY of ENGLAND, from the First Invasion of the Romans. By JOHN LINGARD, D.D. 3d Edition, in 14 vols. 8vo. price 12s. each vol. in boards.

The same work, in 8 vols. 4to. price 17. 15s. each volume.

"The opinion of the public touching the merits of Dr. Lingard as an historian, has been long since made up. Few men have risen to greater eminence in this elevated walk of literature, and we may with the utmost confidence affirm, that no man ever possessed, in a higher degree, many of the essential requisites of an historian. He is learned, industrious, and persevering, skilful in sifting evidence, weighing probabilities, and bringing out the prominent points of character; well acquainted with the principles of constitutional law, and the spirit of our elder as well as more recent institutions; a firm but not enthusiastic friend to liberty; sometimes strikingly original, often vigorous and powerful—both sensible and judicious in his observations; and above all, invincibly pertinacious in exploring every source, however remote, from which any thing may be drawn calculated to throw light upon any of the Loel Obscurores of our story."—Caledonian Mercury, June 1829.

"Dr. Lingard has made good use of his materials, and may fairly challenge comparison with the well-known account of the plague of Athens by Thucydides."—Edinburgh Review, March, 1831.

The HISTORY of the CHURCH of ENGLAND. By the Rev. J. B. S. CARWITHE. 2 vols. 8vo. 17. 6s. boards.

A HISTORY of the COMMON LAW of ENGLAND, from the Earliest Period to the Present Time. By GEORGE CRABB, Esq. A.M. of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 8vo. 15s. boards.

So valuable is this work considered, both as a companion to Blackstone (and, as such, a desirable volume for all libraries), and a professional book, that the work has been printed in America, as a text book for the legal profession.

ENGLISH SYNONYMES EXPLAINED in ALPHABETICAL ORDER, with copious Illustrations and Examples, drawn from the best Writers, in Prose and Verse. By the Same. In a thick vol. 8vo. Fifth Edition, revised, corrected, and an Index of Words added, 11. 1s. boards.

A GENERAL PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY; showing, at one view, the Orthography, Accentuation, Explanation, and Pronunciation of all the purest and most approved terms in the English Language, according to the present practice of the most eminent Lexicographers and Philologists. By WILLIAM ENFIELD, M.A. In 18mo. Tenth Edition, carefully revised, corrected, and improved, 4s. neatly bound.

"This Dictionary may be justly recommended to all persons desirous of acquiring a knowledge of the principles necessary to form a correct and approved pronunciation."—Gentleman's Magazine.

The HISTORY of BRITISH INDIA. By JAMES MILL, Esq. In 6 vols. 8vo. Third Edition, corrected, 37. 12s. boards.

"The labour which has been employed in collecting and examining materials, the skilful distribution of the facts into proper compartments, the high tone of moral feeling, and the enlarged philosophy which everywhere pervade the narrative, entitle the 'History of British India' to be regarded as a valuable addition to our national literature. The extensive circulation of Mr. Mill's History will be a benefit both to England and to India."—British Review.

MAPS and TABLES of CHRONOLOGY and GENEALOGY, illustrative of the History of Europe. Selected and Translated from Monsieur Kock's "Tableau des Revolutions de l'Europe," for the use of Harrow School. In 4to. price 8s. 6d. half-bound and lettered.

The present work was undertaken with a view to illustrate a course of Elementary Lectures on Modern History lately introduced at Harrow School; the repetition of the Map of Europe, with the names and divisions suitable to Seven different periods of History, the Genealogies of the Royal Houses, and the Chronological Table from the overthrow of the Western Empire, will render this work, it is hoped, a useful companion to the Historical Works of Gibbon and Russell, of Mr. Hallam, and M. Sismondi.

The ANTIQUITIES of GREECE: being an Account of the Manners and Customs of the Greeks, designed to illustrate the Greek Classics, by explaining Words and Phrases according to the Rites and Customs to which they refer. To which are prefixed, a brief History of the Grecian States, and Biographical Sketches of the principal Greek writers. By JOHN ROBINSON, D.D. Rector of Clifton, Westmoreland. With a Map and Designs from the Antique. Second Edition, considerably enlarged. 1 large vol. 8vo. 17s. boards.

The cuts which accompany this edition will tend greatly to illustrate the several subjects treated of in this work. In short, no labour or expence has been spared to render this publication useful to the student, and deserving of public patronage.

ESSAYS on the INSTITUTIONS, GOVERNMENT, and MANNERS, of the STATES of ANCIENT GREECE. By HENRY DAVID HILL, D.D. Second Edition, 18mo. 7s. boards.

"To young persons who are just entering upon the higher classics, and to studious men who are desirous of repairing, by their own industry, the accidental defects of an imperfect education, a more useful assistant cannot, we think, well be furnished."—Quarterly Review.

STORIES from the HISTORY of ITALY. By ANNE MANNING. Fine Frontispiece and Vignette, 12mo. 7s. 6d. half-bound.

SKETCHES of the DOMESTIC MANNERS and INSTITUTIONS of the ROMANS. Second Edition, enlarged, 12mo. 7s. boards.

"Carefully and judiciously compiled from a variety of the best sources, there are few books of the kind which we could recommend to be put into the hands of young persons with greater satisfaction than this little volume."—Literary Gazette.

HISTORY of the ROMAN EMPERORS, in Seven Books, from Augustus to the last Constantine. By CHARLES A. ELTON, Esq. Ornamented with Portraits of the Roman Emperors and with Maps. 7s. boards.

A SHORT HISTORY of FRANCE, from the Earliest Times to the Present Period, for Young People. By Mrs. MOORE. Third Edition, in 12mo. ornamented with Six Engravings, price 7s. 6d. half-bound.

In offering a Third Edition of this little work to the public, some pains have been taken to augment it, without deviating from the original plan; and more dates are added with a view of making it useful as a book of reference. The history has also been brought down to the present reign. The list of the Three Great Lines of French Sovereigns, and the Tables of the Family of each King, with their alliances, standing at the head of each reign, have been corrected and made still more complete and useful for the better understanding of French History.

PRIESTLEY'S CHART of HISTORY; containing a View of the Principal Revolutions of Empires that have taken place in the World. Fifteenth Edition, corrected and brought down to the Close of the Eighteenth Century; with a Description, 10s. 6d.; or on canvas and rollers, 16s.

PRIESTLEY'S CHART of BIOGRAPHY. A New Edition, brought down to the Close of the Eighteenth Century; with a description, 10s. 6d.; or on canvas and rollers, 16s.

GUY'S GENERAL SCHOOL QUESTION BOOK; in which each Question, in a regular series, is followed by its appropriate answer, not only in Ancient and Modern History, in which the whole is arranged in chronological order, but also in Biography, Astronomy, Heathen Mythology, Classical Phraseology, and a great and interesting variety of miscellaneous subjects; the whole tending to enlarge the boundaries of Juvenile Knowledge, by increasing its stores; and thus, by blending such a course of general information with sound classical or liberal learning, to raise a better superstructure of School Education. By JOSEPH GUY, formerly of the Royal Military College, and author of a Chart of General History, Pocket Cyclopædia, &c. Third edition, handsomely printed in 12mo. 4s. 6d. neatly bound.

To supply youth with a compendium of General History has been the first object of this Manual; as such it exhibits not a confused and unprofitable assemblage of ill-arranged questions, but a well digested abstract of both Ancient and Modern History and Biography from the Creation to the present time, in a regular series, with the dates affixed, embracing the most prominent features of Ten Ancient and Eighteen Modern Kingdoms and States, with the principal revolutions of the most illustrious nations; and perhaps such a body of historical matter has seldom been compressed in so moderate a volume. The Miscellaneous portion includes the Human Structure explained—The Mental Powers—Productions for Food—Wines, Spirits, &c.—Gums, Spices, &c.—Mineralogy, Earths, Gems—Woods, Vegetables—Titles and Distinctions—Great Offices, Government, Law, &c.—Tithes, Corporations—Trade and Commerce—Poetical and Literary Terms—The Different Denominations of Christians, &c.

GUY'S CHART of GENERAL HISTORY, Ancient and Modern, on a large sheet of Columbian drawing paper. Fifth Edition, corrected, 7s. coloured; on canvas and rollers, 10s. 6d.; and varnished, 14s.

A Chart of this kind will greatly facilitate the student's progress, and give him clearer ideas of the rise, duration, and fall of each kingdom and empire, than the bare perusal of many volumes.

TABLES of COMPARATIVE CHRONOLOGY, exhibiting the Dates of the principal Events which took place from the Flood to the Fall of the Roman Empire, designed to give young persons correct information respecting the progress of human society. By A. PIQUOT, Esq. In twelve engraved Charts, and with a fine Vignette Title, imperial 4to. 12s. boards.

The MERCHANT, SHIP-OWNER, and SHIP-MASTER'S IMPORT and EXPORT GUIDE: comprising every species of authentic information relative to Shipping, Navigation, and Commerce, with Original Maps. By authority of his Majesty's Government. Fifteenth Edition, 1l. 10s. boards. By CHARLES POPE, M.R.S.L. &c. Controller of Accounts in the Port of Bristol.

To persons going abroad, this work is especially recommended. Besides its more immediate objects, it contains whatever is valuable in Books of Voyages and Travels, of Law, and of Art and Science.

A DESCRIPTION of the CONTENTS, OBJECTS, and USES of the VARIOUS WORKS printed by the Authority of the RECORD COMMISSION, for the Advancement of HISTORICAL and ANTIQUARIAN KNOWLEDGE. In 8vo, 5s. boards.

An ACCOUNT of the MOST IMPORTANT PUBLIC RECORDS of GREAT BRITAIN, and the Publications of the Record Commissioners: together with other Miscellaneous, Historical, and Antiquarian Information. Compiled from various Books and MSS. By C. P. COOPER, Esq. In two handsome vols. 8vo. 1l. 10s. in cloth boards.

* * A List of the Public Records already printed, with the reduced prices at which they are now offered to the public, may be had, gratis.

A PROPOSAL for the ERECTION of a GENERAL RECORD OFFICE, Judges' Hall, and Chambers, and other Buildings, on the Site of the Rolls' Estate, together with some particulars respecting the Suitors' Fund. By the Same. In 8vo. 6s. boards.

NOTITIA HISTORICA; containing Tables, Calendars, and Miscellaneous Information, for the Use of Historians, Antiquaries, and the Legal Profession. By Sir NICHOLAS HARRIS NICOLAS, F.S.A. In 8vo. 12s. boards.

In the miscellaneous part of the volume will be found an Account of the various Works published by order of the Commissioners for the better Preservation of the Public Records—an Explanation of Genealogical Abbreviations—an Account of the different Registries of Wills, with a List of the Peculiarities in each Diocese—a List of Latin Surnames and Names of Places, as they occur in Ancient Records—and a great variety of useful chronological Information.

A PRACTICAL and ELEMEN-TARY ABRIDGMENT of the CASES argued and determined in the Courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer, and at Nisi Prius, and of the Rules of Court from the Restoration in 1660, &c. &c. By CHARLES PETERSDORFF, Esq. of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. 15 vols. royal 8vo.

This publication contains, in addition to the Authentic Law Reports, the whole of the Practical and Useful Information to be found in the Year Books, Viners' Abridgment, Coymyn's Digest, Bacon's Abridgment, Cruise's Digest, and in the Equity, Admiralty, and Ecclesiastical Reports, and all the Authentic Elementary Treatises, arranged under such divisions as will conduce to the most prompt and ready reference, and under such titles as will most probably occur to the mind of the experienced or of the uninitiated member of the profession. Arduous attention has been devoted to introduce practical information on all subjects connected with the Law and Transfer of Real and Personal Property, Criminal Jurisprudence, and Sessions Law.

* Sets of this important Work are bound up in the following manner, viz.—In boards, at 17 11s. 6d. per vol.; in strong canvas, to resemble law binding, 17 12s.; and in law calf and lettered, 17 14s. 6d.

The PRESENT STATE of ENGLAND, in regard to Agriculture, Trade, and Finance, with a Comparison of the Prospects of England and France. By JOSEPH LOWE, Esq. Second Edition, with various additions and emendations, in 8to. 12s. boards.

OBSERVATIONS on some DIALECTS in the WEST of ENGLAND, particularly Somersetshire; with a Glossary of Words now in Use there; and Poems and other Pieces exemplifying the Dialect. By JAMES JENNINGS, author of the "Family Encyclopædia," &c. copy 8vo. 7s. boards.

The Rev. Mr. Todd, in the Preface to the last edition of Johnson's Dictionary, acknowledges his obligations to this volume, for many observations with which it has supplied him relative to the dialects of the western part of our island.

A DICTIONARY of the MILITARY SCIENCE; containing an Explanation of the Principal Terms used in Mathematics, Artillery, and Fortification; and comprising the Substance of the latest Regulations on COURTS' MARTIAL, PAY, PENSIONS, ALLOWANCES, &c.; a Comparative Table of Ancient and Modern Geography; Achievements of the British Army, with an Address to Gentlemen entering the Army: dedicated to Major General Lord Fitzroy Somerset. By E. S. N. CAMPBELL, Lieut. 92d Regiment. In a handsome vol. small 8vo. with numerous Cuts, 10s. canvas boards.

A HISTORY of ANCIENT and MODERN WINES. By ALEXANDER HENDERSON, M.D. F.A.S. In 4to. with Embellishments from the Antique, beautifully drawn and engraved by William Harvey, 2l. 2s. boards.

BELL'S (H. N. Esq. late of the Inner Temple) HUNTINGDON PEERAGE; comprising a detailed Account of the Evidence and Proceedings connected with the Restoration of the Earldom. 4to. Second Edition. With superb Portraits by the elder Warren. 2l. 2s. boards.

A GENERAL INDEX to the ANNUAL REGISTER, from its Commencement in 1758 to the Year 1819, inclusive; after which Period each successive Volume has a distinct Index.

The Annual Register comprises the History of Europe for more than half a century, including the whole of the Reign of George III. The Index, pointing to the several occurrences of this eventful period, will be found one of the most useful works that can be conceived. The Annual Volume is published regularly in the Spring of each successive year; and those which have been published since the commencement of the reign of George IV. have each an Index.

The WORKS of WILLIAM HOGARTH, from the Original Plates, restored by JAMES HEATH, Esq. R.A. with the addition of many subjects not before collected. To which are prefixed, a Biographical Essay on the Genius and Productions of Hogarth, and Explanations of the Subjects of the Plates, by JOHN NICHOLLS, Esq. F.S.A. In imperial folio.

A few copies of this valuable work, at moderate prices, may be had of the publishers, and they have two fine copies to be disposed of on India paper.

In addition to this valuable collection, into the property of Messrs. Boydell, fac-similes have been engraved of several curious plates, not now to be found, and perhaps no longer in existence; and further to enrich the work, the publishers have purchased many very interesting and valuable plates; thus adding twenty-eight subjects to what constituted the collection of Messrs. Boydell.

POEMS, selected to enforce the Practice of Virtue, and to comprise, in a small compass, the Beauties of English Poetry. By E. TOMKINS. A New Edition, fine frontispiece. 18mo. 3s.; or 3s. 6d. done up in silk and gilt edges, for presents.

The LIFE and SURPRISING ADVENTURES of ROBINSON CRUSOE, of York, Mariner, with a Biographical Account of Daniel Defoe, written expressly for this Edition. New Edition, the whole work complete in 1 vol. 12mo. beautifully printed by Whittingham, and ornamented with 49 very superior wood-cuts, from drawings by W. Harvey, 8s. handsomely bound.

This impression has been carefully printed from the most authentic and correct editions of this fascinating work,

"Of all the Crusoes we have seen, we like this the best. The engravings are charming in design, and admirably executed: they are just the sort of illustrations which such a volume deserves; and if any thing can increase the popularity of Robinson Crusoe, they are well calculated to do so."—Literary Gazette, Aug. 1831.

SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON; or, Adventures of a Father and Mother and Four Sons, on a Desert Island. Being a Practical Illustration of the First Principles of Mechanics, Natural Philosophy, Natural History, and all those Branches of Science which most immediately apply to the Business of Life. A PLAN of the CITY of DUBLIN; also done up in the same way, and at the same price.

SKETCHES of HISTORY, POLITICS, and MANNERS in DUBLIN and the NORTH of IRELAND in 1810. By JOHN GAMBLE, Esq. A New Edition with Additions, handsomely printed in post 8vo. 10s. boards.

The value of this work cannot be destroyed by time: the interesting sketches contained in it first drew the attention of the public to the wretched state of Ireland; and the book having been some time out of print, the author at last yielded to the wishes of his friends and the demands of the public by revising this new and greatly improved edition.

LETTERS on the SCENERY of WALES; including a Series of Subjects for the Pencil, with their Stations determined on a general Principle, and Instructions to Pedestrian Tourists. By the Rev. R. H. NEWELL, B.D. Author of Remarks on Goldsmith. Royal 8vo. with Plates, 1*l.*s. boards.

"The work is embellished with several etchings and aqua-tinta engravings of Welsh scenery from the pencil of the reverend author; and of these we are justified in saying, that they appear to have been selected with judgment and executed with no mean skill. The views are 20 in number, and embrace some of the most romantic objects in both divisions of the principality, but more particularly in South Wales. These Letters on the Scenery of Wales may safely be recommended as a companion at once useful and entertaining in rambles amidst the wilds and mountains of Cambria; and to this we may add, that the novelty of the plan ought to be received as an additional passport to public favour."—Cambro-Briton.

TRAVELS in CHILE and LA PLATA, including Accounts respecting the Geography, Geology, Statistics, Government, Finances, Agriculture, Commerce, Manners and Customs, and the Mining Operations in Chile, collected during a residence of several years in those Countries. Illustrated by numerous Original Maps, Views, &c. By JOHN MIERA. 2 large vols. 8vo. 2*l.* boards.

With a Map. By an ENGLISH FARMER, settled in Upper Canada. 12mo. 3s. 6*d.* boards.

The NATURAL HISTORY of SELBORNE; to which are now added, the Naturalist's Calendar, Miscellaneous Observations, Poems, and the Antiquities of Selborne. By the late Rev. GILBERT WHITE, A.M. Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. A New Edition, illustrated with fine Cuts, and valuable Notes by eminent Naturalists. 1 vol. 8vo. elegantly printed by Whittingham. Nearly ready.

MORNING COMMUNINGS with GOD; or Devotional Meditations for every Day of the Year. Translated from the original German of Christian Christopher Sturm. By WILLIAM JOHNSTONE, A.M. In 2 vols. small 8vo. 16s. boards.

"On opening this work we were agreeably surprised at finding genius and taste in accompaniment with warmth of soul. In perusing Klopstock and Gesner we breathe the atmosphere of the blessed, and feel that holiness is the essence of a perfect felicity. It is the soul of these works that renders them so delightful, and in a similar spirit are written these "Communings with God."—these effusions of unembodied nature. They are very frequently sublime; always dignified; not the huzzinga of Christ as if he were a demagogue or a conqueror: but the grand and silent adoration of the uplifted eyes of a martyr."—Gentleman's Magazine.

CONTEMPLATIONS on the SUFFERINGS of JESUS CHRIST; in a Series of Devotional Exercises, with an explanatory Paraphrase of the Gospel Narrative. By the Same. Printed uniform with the preceding, with a Memoir and a Portrait of Sturm. 9s. boards.

LETTERS to a FRIEND on the Evidences, Doctrines, and Duties of the Christian Religion. By OLINTHUS GREGORY, LL.D. In 2 vols. small 8vo. Fifth Edition, with numerous additions and improvements, 14s. boards.

NATURAL HISTORY of RELIGION; or, Youth armed against Infidelity and Religious Errors. By the Rev. R. TAYLOR, Curate of Hart, in the County of Durham. In 12mo. 4s. cloth boards.

This very important and original work is divided into eight chapters under the following heads:—The Deity.—The Creation.—The Human Soul.—Man a fallen Creature.—The Heathen World.—The Plan of Redemption.—The Personal History of Jesus Christ.—Redemption.—Its arguments will be most useful to all Christian readers, and they will greatly assist the young divine in explaining difficult passages of Scripture. The Book indeed abounds with original views of the sacred volume.

EVIDENCES of CHRISTIANITY, &c.; Twenty Discourses preached before the University of Cambridge, in 1820, at the Lecture founded by the Rev. John Hulse. By the Rev. C. BENSON, M.A. Rector of St. Giles's in the Fields, London, and Master of the Temple. Fourth Edition, 8vo. 12s. boards.

SCRIPTURE DIFFICULTIES: Twenty Discourses preached before the University of Cambridge, for the Hulsean Lecture, in the year 1822. By the Same. Third Edition, 8vo. 12s. boards.

SERMONS, EXPLANATORY and PRACTICAL, on the THIRTY-NINE ARTICLES of the CHURCH of ENGLAND; in a Series of Discourses. By the Rev. T. WAITE, D.C.L. Chaplain to H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester. In a thick 8vo. volume, 16s. boards.

SERMONS, selected and abridged chiefly from the less-known Authors, together with Translations from Bossuet, Massillon, Montmorel, and other celebrated French Preachers. Adapted generally to the Epistle, Gospel, or First Lessons; or to the several Seasons of the Year. By the Rev. SAMUEL CLAPHAM, M.A. Fifth Edition, greatly enlarged. In two large and closely printed volumes, 8vo. 24s. boards.

Some few of the beautiful Sermons of Massillon, Bossuet, Montmorel, &c. are given; and those from English Divines are chiefly selected from St. John, Dr. Lawson, Bishop Richmond, Skelton, Riddick, Tucker, Dr. Brooke, Elsmore, Bishop Hickman, Reay, Peters, Dr. Scott, Lloyd, Dr. Powell, &c., the whole comprehending 139 Discourses, adapted to the other holidays as well as Sundays.

These abridgments are also extremely useful to the clergy as skeletons, or heads to form a more lengthened discourse from.

A TREATISE on the EVIDENCE of the SCRIPTURE MIRACLES. By JOHN PENROSE, M.A. formerly of C. C. College, Oxford. 8vo. 10s. 6d. boards.

INQUIRY, chiefly on PRINCIPLES of RELIGION, into the NATURE and DISCIPLINE of HUMAN MOTIVES. By the Same. 8vo. 10s. 6d. boards.

The HISTORY of the RISE and EARLY PROGRESS of CHRISTIANITY; comprising an Inquiry into its true Character and Design. By the Rev. SAMUEL HINDS, M.A. of Queen's College, and Vice-Principal of St. Alban's-Hall, Oxford. In 2 vols. 8vo. 14. 1s. boards.

OBSERVATIONS, CRITICAL, EXPLANATORY, and PRACTICAL, on the CANONICAL SCRIPTURES. By MARY CORNWALLIS. Second Edition, corrected and enlarged. In 4 vols. 8vo. 24. 2s. boards.

This Work is intended to supply a continued Commentary upon the Old and New Testaments, and to assist in the perusal of the Sacred Volume to which it will be found a judicious and pleasing companion. It explains to the unlearned reader the Oriental Customs, of which, from the continual allusions to them, some knowledge is necessary to comprehend the meaning and purport of the Text: and will therefore be found peculiarly useful to families, and to those who have not the leisure or the opportunities of investigating such particulars by their own labour.

A PREPARATION for the LORD'S SUPPER. With a Companion to the ALTAR. Intended chiefly for the Use of Ladies. By the Same. Second Edition, in a neat pocket volume, 2s. bound; or, in a superior manner, 2s. 6d.; in black calf, 3s.; in morocco, 6s.

Second Edition, corrected. 9s. half-bound, or with the Maps coloured, 12s.

A NEW MAP of PALESTINE and the adjacent Countries, constructed from original authorities, showing their Ancient and Modern Geography, with the Routes of various Travellers. On a very large sheet, 24 inc. by 38, drawn and engraved by Palmer. 18s. coloured, or on a roller and varnished, 14. 5s.

A SKETCH of the DENOMINATIONS of the CHRISTIAN WORLD. By JOHN EVANS, LL.D. Fifteenth Edition, with the Author's last improvements, and a fine frontispiece of eight portraits. 12mo. 5s. boards.

If popularity be any criterion of excellence, the number of editions this work has passed through sufficiently attests its merits, for before his death the author had the satisfaction of knowing that one hundred thousand copies had issued from the press. In the present edition every article has been carefully revised, and valuable communications from many of the leading ministers of the different sects have been made use of. The subject is one of paramount interest, and the view here exhibited of the various sects of Christians is no less admirable for its impartiality than for the comprehensive information it supplies.

The GOLDEN CENTENARY ; or, One Hundred Testimonies in behalf of Candour, Peace, and Unanimity. By Divines of the Church of England, of the Kirk of Scotland, and among Protestant Dissenters, with their Biographies; being a Sequel to the Sketch. By the Same. EVERY MAN HIS OWN CATTLE DOCTOR ; containing the Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment of all the Diseases incident to Oxen, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, and Rabbits. By FRANCIS CLATER, Author of "Every Man his own Farrier." Seventh Edition, revised and almost re-written, by an eminent Practitioner of Horse and Cattle Medicine. In a handsome volume, 12mo. 6s. in cloth boards.

This edition, though reduced to a more convenient form, and to two-thirds of the price of preceding editions, contains much more matter. The whole of the receipts have been carefully examined and improved, and the directions enlarged. It has also an alphabetical List of Drugs; a copious Index; and some very useful remarks on the Management of Swine, Poultry, and Rabbits, not in former editions.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN FARRIER ; containing the Causes, Symptoms, and most approved Methods of Cure, of every Disease to which the Horse is liable. With an Appendix, or Veterinary Pharmacopœia. HORTUS CANTABRIGIENSIS; or an Accented Catalogue of Indigenous and Exotic Plants, cultivated in the Cambridge Botanic Garden. By JAMES DONN. A new and greatly improved edition by Sinclair, with numerous cuts. 12s. boards.

The additions to the present edition, which will be found very considerable, consist chiefly of such plants as are most distinguished, or promise to be distinguished, for ornament in the garden, or for utility in agriculture, and other of the arts. There is also a supplement, exhibiting, for the convenience of reference to the body of the work, the names, in alphabetical order, of the more ornamental, hardy, creeping, or climbing plants, and those for the green-house, mentioning the colours of the flowers, and the different periods of flowering. It contains also select lists of fruits, and the names of seeds of the more valuable husbandry plants.

TALES from SHAKSPEARE, designed for the Use of Young People. By CHARLES LAMB. Fifth Edition. 1 vol. 12mo. ornamented with 22 superb Wood Engravings by Jackson, from Harvey's designs. 7s. 6d. water-lined canvas and lettered.

These tales are meant to be submitted to the young reader as an introduction to the study of Shakspeare, for which purpose his words are used whenever it seemed possible to bring them in; and in whatever has been added to give them the regular form of a connected story, diligent care has been taken to select such words as might least interrupt the effect of the beautiful English tongue in which he wrote; therefore words introduced into our language since his time have been as far as possible avoided.

ELLEN CAMERON; a Tale for Youth. By EMILY ELIZABETH RANKIN. With a superb Frontispiece, painted by Harvey. 12mo. 5s.

AUSTIN HALL; or After Dinner Conversations between a Father and his Children, on Subjects of Amusement and Instruction. With two very brilliant Wood Engravings, by Thomson, from Designs by Harvey. 12mo. 5s. water-lined canvas and lettered.

AN INTRODUCTION to GEOGRAPHY and ASTRONOMY, by the Use of Globes and Maps, to which are added, the Construction of Maps, and a Table of Latitudes and Longitudes. By E. and I. BRUCE. Eighth Edition, enlarged and improved. 12mo. 7s. 6d. bound.

"For teaching the use of the globes, we recommend Bruce's Introduction to Geography and Astronomy."—Encyclopædia Britannica, Article Geography.

A KEY to the above Work, containing Answers to all the Examples in the Problems, 2s. 6d.

BRUCE'S HISTORICAL and BIOGRAPHICAL ATLAS, for Schools and Students in History. Small folio, Charts finely engraved, 16s. half-bound.

"The constructor of this new set of tables, which, by the additional facilities it presents, is calculated to supersede all its predecessors, is Mr. Bruce of Newcastle, already favourably known as the author of an Introduction to Geography and Astronomy. He has improved upon Priestly, by commencing with the Creation, and splitting the whole Chronological Period from that point to the Birth of Christ into Five Divisions, instead of crowding the whole into one confounding and overwhelming mass."—New Monthly Magazine.

BRUCE'S SUMMARY of ANCIENT HISTORY and BIOGRAPHY; with Questions for Examination, being a Companion to the above. In 8vo. 8s. 6d. canvas boards.

OSTELL'S NEW GENERAL ATLAS, with the Plates enlarged. Thirty Maps, royal 4to. coloured outlines, 18s. half-bound, or full coloured, 21s.

* * To this edition has been added, a CONSULTING INDEX, containing references to every place laid down in the maps, with the latitude and longitude.

RUSSELL'S GENERAL ATLAS of MODERN GEOGRAPHY, in Twenty-five Maps, composed from the latest and best Authorities. By J. C. RUSSELL, Geographer. In royal 8vo. the plates re-engraved, and all recent Discoveries added, 12s. half-bound, with coloured Outlines; the same uncoloured, 10s. half-bound.

* * To this edition has been added, an INDEX of the names of all the Countries, States, Districts, Towns, Tribes, Bays, Capes, Gulphs, Islands, Lakes, Mountains, Rivers, &c. to be found on each Map, with the Latitude and Longitude, and a Direction to the Map on which each particular Name is to be found.

GUY'S SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY, on a new, easy, and highly improved Plan; comprising not only a complete general Description but much Topographical Information, in a well-digested Order, exhibiting Three distinct Parts, and yet forming one connected whole, expressly adapted to every class of learners, both in Ladies' and Gentlemen's Schools. By JOSEPH GUY, late Professor of Geography, &c. at the Royal Military College, Great Marlow. Twelfth Edition, corrected, and illustrated with Seven Maps, 3s. 6d. bound in red.

A GEOGRAPHICAL KEY to the Problems and Questions in Guy's Geography. 1s. 6d. sewed.

GUY'S SCHOOL EPITOME of BRITISH GEOGRAPHY. 1s. sewed.

ELEMENTS of ASTRONOMY, with Eighteen excellent Engravings, familiarly illustrating all the prominent and interesting parts that are within the comprehension of Young Persons; to which is added a complete set of Questions for Examination. Designed for Senior Scholars of both sexes, for Private Students, and for the Use of Families generally. By JOSEPH GUY. Fourth Edition, much improved, and handsomely printed, 5s. bound in blue.

In this work the author's principal object has been to furnish a Class-book for Schools relative to this indispensable part of polite education. And, in order to accommodate it as much as possible to the views of different Tutors, some, preferring a mere outline of the science, others more detailed and minute information, both large and small type have been employed, the former exhibiting a complete outline, the latter (in intermediate paragraphs which may be passed over at pleasure), those minutiae which are not absolutely indispensable. Thus the work may be perused by the younger scholar without perplexity, and by the more advanced student without deficiency.

ELEMENTS of BOOK-KEEPING, comprising a System of Merchants' Accounts, founded on real Business, and adapted to Modern Practice. With an Appendix on Exchange, Banking, and other Commercial Subjects. By P. KELLY, LL.D. Eighth Edition, 8vo. 7s. bound.

A TREATISE on NAVIGATION and NAUTICAL ASTRONOMY; adapted to Practice and to the Purposes of Elementary Instruction; with an Extensive Series of Examples for Exercise, and all the Tables requisite in Nautical Computations. By EDWARD RIDDLE, F.R.A.S. Master of the Mathematical School, Royal Hospital, Greenwich. In 8vo. the Second Edition, with numerous additions and improvements, and adapted to the Nautical Almanac, both in its present state, and the greatly improved form in which it will appear in 1834, 12s. bound.

The YOUNG NAVIGATORS GUIDE to the SIDEREAL and PLANETARY PARTS of NAUTICAL ASTRONOMY; being the Theory and Practice of finding the Latitude, the Longitude, and the Variation of the Compass by the Fixed Stars and Planets; to which is prefixed the Description and Use of the New Celestial Planisphere. By THOMAS KERIGAN, R.N. With a newly constructed Planisphere of the Starry Heavens, on a very large Scale. Second Edition, royal 8vo. 14s. boards.

* * The Planisphere, on a large sheet of drawing paper, may be had separate, 5s.

COTES'S SURVEYOR'S GUIDE; or, Practical Land-Surveyor. A New Edition, with Plans for dividing given portions of Land. Fourth Edition, enlarged and improved. 12mo. 4s. half-bound.

A GUIDE to the FRENCH LANGUAGE, especially devised for Persons who wish to study the Elements of that Language without the Assistance of a Teacher. By J. J. P. LE BRETHON. In 8vo. 12s. Fifth edition, thoroughly revised and corrected.

A KEY to the EXERCISES in the above work: by means of which any person of a mature understanding may acquire the elements of the French Language practically, as surely as if a professed teacher was sitting by his side: and with a very superficial knowledge of it, may teach it to others. Directions are given in the Key to Parents not accustomed to teach languages, who wish to instruct their children with the assistance of this book, how they must proceed. 8vo. 8s. in canvas and lettered.

A DICTIONARY of the FRENCH and ENGLISH LANGUAGES, in conformity with the French Academy: in Two Parts, French and English, and English and French; in which are introduced many thousand useful words, not to be found in any other French and English Dictionary. With a copious Introduction on the Pronunciation of the French Language, and on the varieties in the Declinable Parts of Speech. By M. DE LEVIZAC. Seventh Edition, thoroughly revised, greatly improved, and the two parts most carefully collated; with the Indication of the Irregularities of the French Pronunciation, by C. GROS. A thick vol. 12mo. 10s. 6d. bound.

In the compilation and subsequent improvement of this work, it has been the aim of both the author and editor to adapt it for the purpose of tuition, by the exclusion or modification of all words which are unfit to be presented to the eye of youthful readers.

A NEW POCKET DICTIONARY of the ITALIAN and ENGLISH LANGUAGES. In Two Parts. I. Italian and English. II. English and Italian. By C. GRAGLIA. To which is prefixed, a Compendious Italian Grammar, 18mo. Fifteenth Edition, greatly improved, 7s. bound.

Without increasing the price or the bulk of this edition, many hundred useful words have been added, the open and close pronunciation of the E and O have been distinctly marked, as well as the sound of the Z and ZZ, whether like TS or DS. It is hoped that these improvements will tend greatly to the convenience of the student.

The UNIVERSAL LATIN LEXICON of FACCIOLATUS and FORCELLINUS. A new edition, in which the Paduan Appendix has been incorporated; the Italian Significations rendered into English; the work of Tursellinus, on the Particles of Latin Speech; Gerrard's Siglarium Romanum, and Gesner's Etymological Index, are added; and the whole enriched with a Copious Appendix of upwards of TWENTY THOUSAND WORDS. By JAMES BAILEY, A.M. In 2 very large vols. royal 4to. 6l. 16s. 6d. in canvas boards.

A DICTIONARY of LATIN PHRASES. By W. ROBERTSON, A.M. of Cambridge. Royal 12mo. 15s. bound.

A COLLECTION of ENGLISH EXERCISES; translated from the Writings of Cicero, for School Boys to re-translate into Latin. By WILLIAM ELLIS, M.A. 13th edition, 3s. 6d. bound.

In this new edition the English has been thoroughly revised, so as to obtain as strict a conformity with the original Latin, in regard to number, person, mood, tense, voice, &c. as the difference of the two idioms would allow; besides which, Remarks on the Peculiarities of the Latin Verb, are now for the first time prefixed to the work.

A KEY to the Second and Third Part of Ellis's Exercises, with References to Passages in Cicero. Second edition. 3s. bound.

EXCERPTA EX CAII PLINII SECUNDI HISTORIA NATURALI, IN USUM SCHOLARUM. Notas adject GULIELMUS TURNER, in nova Institutione Novocastrensi Prælector. In 12mo. 4s. 6d. neatly bound.

AN INTRODUCTION to the PRINCIPAL GREEK TRAGIC and COMIC METRES in SCANSION, STRUCTURE, and ICTUS. By JAMES TATE, M.A. Second edition, 8vo. with an Appendix on Syllabic Quantity in Homer and Aristophanes. 5s. canvas boards.

MAJOR, M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and Head Master of King's College School, London. In a large vol. 8vo. 16s. boards.

A HEBREW GRAMMAR in the ENGLISH LANGUAGE. By JOSEPH SAMUEL C. F. FREY. To which are added, a Glossary of the First Six Psalms, a Compendium of Chaldeæ Grammar, and other Important Additions. By GEORGE DOWNES, A.M. late of Trinity College, Dublin. A New and Enlarged Edition, 8vo. 7s. boards.

A PRACTICAL GRAMMAR of the SPANISH LANGUAGE, with Copious Exercises. The whole rendered so easy as to be intelligible without the Aid of an Instructor. By S. WHITEHEAD. 12mo. 7s. 6d. boards.

A PRACTICAL GERMAN GRAMMAR; or, a New and Easy Method of acquiring a thorough Knowledge of the German Language. For the Use of Schools and Private Students. By JOHN ROWBOTHAM. 12mo. 6s. 6d. boards.

Mr. Rowbotham has produced the clearest German and English Grammar that we have seen. The study of German has hitherto been obstructed in England by the circumstance that the Grammars of that language have been the forbidding productions of Germans, and hence they have been German and English instead of being German and German. By means of Mr. Rowbotham's luminous Grammar, in which he exhibits a corresponding familiarity with both languages, the study of German is likely to be considerably promoted.—Monthly Magazine, June, 1824.

Just Published,

PRESENT STATE of REPRESENTATION in ENGLAND and WALES; being an Alphabetical Arrangement of all the Counties, Cities, and Boroughs, sending Members to Parliament; and comprising—1. The number of members sent by each county, city, and borough, and the time when each was first represented. 2. The boundaries of each county, division of county, city, and borough, as determined by the late Act, with the polling places fixed by the same. 3. The returning officers for each city and borough. 4. The ancient right of election in each city and borough from the latest decisions, with the probable number of old electors in each; and also the exact total, and the number of such as are resident, where ascertainable. 5. The number of new electors in each city and borough, under the 10^l. qualifying clause. With an Appendix, containing a Summary of the Representation, with a correct Reprint of the Reform and Boundary Acts, the Schedules, &c. and an Index. By M. H. RANKIN, Solicitor, Newcastle-on-Tyne. In a neat volume, 12mo. 5s. boards.

The information as to the number of old and new Electors in the different Cities and Boroughs has been carefully taken from the mass of voluminous Returns made to Parliament during the agitation of the Reform question. The importance of giving the number of Resident Freemen, where ascertainable, need hardly be pointed out, and it has been done wherever it was practicable.

IMPORTANT PUBLICATIONS,

THE FARMERS' SERIES.

IN the announcement of this division of the "LIBRARY OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE" the Society promised a Work on the History and Treatment of those Animals which aid the power of man ; and another on the General Principles of Agriculture.* Of these a very comprehensive volume on THE HORSE has been some time completed, the unprecedented demand for which has sufficiently evinced the public opinion in its favour. To acquire from living sources all the information necessary to complete their design, with regard to other parts of this Series, has occupied more time than was at first contemplated ; but the Society has now the satisfaction to announce, that the publication of the following Treatises will immediately commence ; viz.

1. THE PRINCIPAL DOMESTICATED ANIMALS.

In a volume of about the same size as "The Horse," it is intended to present an Account of the OX. Its early history ; the rise of the prevailing Breeds in the different districts ; their distinguishing Character, Improvement, or Deterioration, with the different Systems of Management in the various counties, will occupy the early part of the volume, and form a new and interesting feature in the work. This will be illustrated by Figures of the principal Breeds, drawn by HARVEY, from living specimens in the possession of the most eminent agriculturists. After this will follow a Consideration of the Structure of Cattle as connected with their usefulness for the various purposes for which they are bred, their Diseases, general Treatment, and Management. In fact, the plan to be pursued will be precisely that which was adopted with regard to "The Horse," and the writer will be the same. Many Cuts will be given, illustrative of the General Structure and particular points of the Ox.

A second volume, of equal size, will contain a History of SHEEP, SWINE, DOGS, ASSES, MULES, DEER, RABBITS, POULTRY, &c., their Diseases and general Management, on the same plan, and by the same Author.

* See the First Numbers of the "Farmer's Series," published Oct. 1, 1829.

2. BRITISH HUSBANDRY.

This Treatise, which will occupy two volumes, will comprise everything connected with the Management of the Soil ; the Improvement and Increase of its Productions ; the Leasehold Tenure of Land ; Farm Buildings, and Machinery ; together with the various modes of working and fattening Cattle, according to the most approved systems adopted in different counties—reserving only the Breeding, Diseases, and Treatment of the Animals employed and raised thereon, to the separate work already mentioned ; and it is intended to present a comprehensive, yet condensed view of the actual Agriculture of the United Kingdom, in a compendious form, divested of all merely speculative reasoning, and calculated altogether for the use of Practical Farmers.

The several parts will be submitted to competent judges of known experience previous to publication ; and Cuts will be given whenever such illustrations can be of use.

These two Works will proceed contemporaneously, it being intended to publish a Number of each every month ; viz. one on the 1st, the other on the 15th. The first Number of BRITISH CATTLE will be published on the 1st of October, and the first Number of BRITISH HUSBANDRY on the 15th.

The other Treatises published in this Series are—

1. THE HORSE, in 15 Numbers, at 6d., or price 8s. 6d. boards.
2. A Treatise on PLANTING both Timber and Ornamental TREES, in five Numbers, at 6d., or 3s. boards.
3. Reports of the CULTIVATION of SELECT FARMS, being Nos. 7, 12, 18, 21, and 25, at 6d. each.
4. The MOUNTAIN SHEPHERD'S MANUAL, one Number.
5. ADMINISTRATION OF THE POOR LAWS, one Number.

II.

The LIBRARY of USEFUL KNOWLEDGE.

OF this series of publications 136 Numbers, at sixpence each, are already printed. They appear at intervals of a fortnight, and are illustrated by numerous Cuts wherever the matter requires them. Although the various subjects are published without much apparent attention to systematic order, yet it is the endeavour of the Society to complete volumes, with Indexes, as speedily as is consistent with a lucid arrangement of the contents of each.

The Subjects of the 136 Numbers already published, are:—

On the Objects, Advantages, and Pleasures of Science—(Preliminary Treatise).

Hydrostatics, No. 1.
Hydraulics, No. 2.
Pneumatics, No. 3.
Heat, Nos. 4, 5.
Mechanics, Nos. 6, 7, 8, 11.
Animal Mechanics, Nos. 9, 44.
Account of Bacon's Novum Organum, Nos. 10, 18.
Optics, Nos. 12, 19.

History of Spain and Portugal, Nos. 124, 125, 127, 132, 134.
Introduction to the Differential and Integral Calculus, No. 135.

Of these the following are completed in volumes:—

VOL. I. NATURAL PHILOSOPHY; consisting of	{ The Preliminary Treatise, Hydraulics, Hydrostatics, Heat, Mechanics, Optics, Polarization of Light, Glossary, and Index.	{ Fifteen Numbers. Price 8s. in cloth boards.
VOL. II. NATURAL PHILOSOPHY; consisting of	{ Popular Introduction to Natural Philo- sophy, Newton's Optics, Optical In- struments, Thermometer and Pyro- meter, Electricity, Galvanism, Mag- netism, Electro-Magnetism, Glossary, and Index.	{ Nineteen Numbers. Price 10s. 6d. in cloth boards.

The HISTORY of GREECE, nine Numbers, price 5s. bds.

GEOMETRY, Plane, Solid, and Spherical, nine Numbers, 5s. bds.

A volume of BIOGRAPHIES; THE CHURCH, in one volume; ROME, in one vol.; GEOGRAPHY, Physical, Mathematical, and Political, in one vol.; ASTRONOMY, with the History of Astronomy, in one vol.; SPAIN, PORTUGAL, and SWISSERLAND, in one vol., are all in course of completion.

The other subjects marked thus (*) in the list of Numbers are complete in themselves, and may be bound together; but are not formed into volumes until other analogous Treatises are prepared to accompany them.

III.

MAPS.

In order to accompany the various Historical and Geographical works published, and to be published, by the Society; and also for the purpose of forming a Modern and an Ancient ATLAS, moderate in size, economical in expence, and yet sufficiently comprehensive for the Library, the Society have proceeded far in the publication of a Series of GEOGRAPHICAL MAPS, of a size varying from 14 inches by 10 to 17 inches by 14, two of which Maps are sold in a wrapper for 1s.; or, if coloured, for 1s. 6d. The Numbers already published are 26; and in these the Maps of Greece, Turkey, Persia, Egypt, Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, Poland, the Netherlands, and England, are completed.

They are compiled from the very best Authorities, both official and private. The Scale varies according to the acknowledged importance of the respective Countries and Districts. The ANCIENT MAPS—a very useful and interesting feature of which is, that they are precisely on the same scale as the corresponding MODERN—are compiled with the greatest care, and under the most rigorous scrutiny. The whole are engraved, in the best manner, on Steel; and their Cheapness is unexampled in any country.

The Society have also published, of the same size as the Geographical Maps, price 3s. plain; 6s. with the Constellations coloured; and 6s. on India paper,

1. SIX MAPS OF THE STARS,

laid down on the Gnomonic Projection, including all the Stars to the Sixth Magnitude, or such as can be seen with the naked eye. These Maps, placed on a ten-inch cube, will supply the place of a Celestial Globe, and will be found exceedingly useful in Schools.

2. SIX MAPS OF THE WORLD,

On the same Projection, price 3s. Plain, and 4s. 6d. Coloured.

A few Copies of these Maps of the Terrestrial Globe are printed without the Names and Places, for the Exercise of Students in filling up the same. Price 3s.

A Portfolio has been constructed on a peculiar Plan, for the express purpose of containing and preserving the Maps until the entire Atlas shall be complete for binding. Price 7s.

In consequence of the very general approbation which has been bestowed on the Six Maps of the Stars, on the Gnomonic Projection, it has been determined to produce another Set on the same plan, but of the extent of 24 inches by 24. This work will contain all the Stars in Piazzi's Collection, and all the Nebulæ in Bode's. The Double Stars will be distinguished, as in the smaller edition, by two dots following the reference. These Maps will have the Lines of Longitude and Latitude, as well as those of Right Ascension and Declination; thus affording the means of determining, at once, the effect of Precession on any Star.

NEW AND IMPROVED EDITION OF THE PLAYS AND POEMS OF

SHAKSPEARE,

ILLUSTRATED WITH ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY ENGRAVINGS.

On the First of November, 1832, will be published, Price 5s. bound in cloth, uniformly with the new Editions of Byron and Scott,

VOL. I. OF THE

PLAYS AND POEMS OF SHAKSPEARE,

WITH A LIFE, GLOSSARIAL NOTES,

AND ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY ILLUSTRATIONS,

DESIGNED FROM THE PLATES IN BOYDELL'S EDITION.

EDITED BY A. J. VALPY, M.A., LATE FELLOW OF PEMB. COLL., OXFORD.

NUMEROUS and varied as are the forms in which the Works of SHAKSPEARE have appeared, it will be readily acknowledged that an improved edition, printed in the same form as the most popular productions of the present day, is still a desideratum.

The text of MALONE, as published in 1821, in twenty-one volumes 8vo, will be adopted; GLOSSARIAL NOTES on all obsolete words will be given; and a brief HISTORICAL DIGEST prefixed to each Play.

In addition to the many advantages offered in the present edition, it will be embellished with ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY ILLUSTRATIONS, executed on steel in the first style of out-line engraving, designed from the Plates in BOYDELL'S SHAKSPEARE, which was originally published at £95, and large paper at £190.

The attention of the youthful reader will be directed to the MOST STRIKING AND BRILLIANT PASSAGES by an INDEX, which will be printed at the end of the work, and which will form a complete reference to the BEAUTIES OF SHAKSPEARE.

The number and excellence of the illustrations, and the style of the letter-press, will render the present edition superior to any yet published; while the convenience and portability of the form adopted, and the moderate terms on which it may be purchased, will merit the approbation of every admirer of the Bard of Avon.

The Work will be handsomely printed, hot-pressed, and bound in cloth, price 5s. per volume.

The Illustrations will be printed on fine tinted paper.

Volume I. will be published on the 1st of November, 1832, and will contain a Life of the Author, Dr. Johnson's Preface, the TEMPEST, TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA, and the following

ILLUSTRATIONS.

1. A beautiful line-engraving of the Author, by Freeman.
2. Shakspeare nursed by Tragedy and Comedy, from a Painting by Romney
3. Shakspeare between Poetry and Painting.—Banks.
4. Infant Shakspeare attended by Nature and the Passions.—Romney.
5. The Monument of Shakspeare in Stratford Church.—Boydell.

THE TEMPEST.

6. Prospero and Miranda before the cell of Prospero.—Romney.
7. Prospero, Miranda, and Ariel.—Hamilton.
8. Prospero, Miranda, Caliban, and Ariel.—Fuseli.
9. Trinculo, Stephano, and Caliban.—Smirke.
10. Ferdinand and Miranda.—Hamilton.
11. Prospero, Ferdinand, Miranda, Mask, &c.—Wright.
12. Ferdinand and Miranda playing at chess.—Wheatley.

TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

13. Valentine, Proteus, Silvia, and Julia.—Stothard.
14. The same scene.—Angelica Kauffman.

The succeeding volumes will be published on the first of every Month, and delivered regularly with the Magazines.

The volumes will contain on the average from ten to twelve plates, according to the number of Plays, and the work will be completed in fifteen monthly volumes.

. The PLATES may be had separately at 4s. per Number, or in 8vo, to illustrate other editions of Shakspeare, at 5s. 6d.

Printed and published by A. J. VALPY, Red Lion Court, Fleet Street; and sold by all Booksellers.

Third Edition, with Parallel References and other Improvements;
3 vols. 8vo. £2. 5s. bds.

GREEK TESTAMENT,

WITH ENGLISH NOTES;

Containing Critical, Philological, and Explanatory Notes in English, from the most eminent Critics and Interpreters: with Parallel Passages from the Classics, and with references to Vigerus for Idioms, and Bos for Ellipses. To which is prefixed a short Treatise on the Doctrines of the Greek Article, according to Bishop Middleton, Mr. Granville Sharp, &c. briefly and compendiously explained, as applicable to the Criticism of the New Testament. The VARIOUS READINGS are recorded under the text. Greek and English Indexes are added at the end. By E. VALPY, B.D.

Two Plates are added, one illustrative of the Travels of the Apostles, and the other a Map of Judea and a Plan of the City and Temple of Jerusalem.

This Work is intended for the use of Students in Divinity, as well as the Library.

'This Greek Testament is the most valuable of any that has yet been published with critical and philological apparatus, especially for students who wish to purchase only ONE Edition.'—Horne's Introduction to the Bible.

'This Greek Testament with English Notes is a valuable accession to the aids of the undergraduates, the divinity student, and even the theologian. It is preceded by a very able summary of the important doctrine of the Greek Article,—a field on which Socinianism, with all its affected display of erudition, has been so signally foiled, on which the true meaning of Holy Writ has acquired so much lustre, and the weapons of biblical difficulty have been wrested from the hands of infidel objectors, and turned against those who wielded them. We cordially recommend it to our readers; and those who wish to purchase only one comprehensive copy of the Greek Testament, and that not very expensive, will find in this edition the very object of their search.'—Christian Remembrancer.

'We have examined several of the Notes, and can speak with confidence of the editor's taste and judgment, knowledge and research. Pertinent matter has been collected with great care; and throughout the work the object of the editor has been to set before his readers useful information from every available source, not to display his own ingenuity by fanciful and recondite interpretations, or to make a parade of his learning by frequent and elaborate and unnecessary quotations. The young divine will find this work not only a safe guide in his studies, but the best which he can obtain within the compass of the same price and size.'—Classical Journal.

'The Greek Testament, with the annotations which the Editor's extensive knowledge and indefatigable industry have supplied in the illustration of the text, is a work which should form a part of the collection of every theological student and reader, and is one for which Mr. Valpy deserves to be ranked among the benefactors of his age.'—Spectator.

Second Edition, in one vol. 8vo. £1. 1s.

GREEK SEPTUAGINT,

WITH THE APOCRYPHA;

Edited by A. J. VALPY, from the Oxford Edition of Bos and Holmes.

This Edition is handsomely printed in one volume, 8vo. hot-pressed. FOR USE IN CHURCHES AND CHAPELS, as well as the Library.

'This elegantly executed volume is very correctly printed, and (which cannot but recommend it to students in preference to the incorrect Cambridge and Amsterdam reprints of the Vatican text) its price is so reasonable as to place it within the reach of almost every one.'—Horne's Introduction to the Bible.

This edition has been printed for the use of students attending COLLEGE CHAPELS, and for GREEK CLASSES in SCHOOLS, as it has been long considered one of the most useful and ready expedients for keeping up the knowledge of Greek, more particularly after the Student has quitted his scholastic duties.

. The Septuagint and Testament may be had in four uniform volumes.

Published Monthly, with a Biographical Sketch, a Portrait of each Author, Notes, Maps, &c. Price 4s. 6d. Small 8vo. in cloth,

THE FAMILY CLASSICAL LIBRARY; OR, ENGLISH TRANSLATIONS

OF THE

MOST VALUABLE GREEK AND LATIN CLASSICS.

EDITED, PRINTED, AND PUBLISHED, BY A. J. VALPY, M.A.

‘If you desire your son, though no great scholar, to read and reflect, it is your duty to place into his hands the best Translations of the best Classical Authors.’—
DR. PARR.

As the learned languages do not form part of the education of Females, the only access which they have to the valuable stores of antiquity is through the medium of correct translation; and the present Selection is intended to include those Authors only, whose works may be read by the youth of both sexes.

Thirty-three Numbers are already published, containing the following Authors; which may be purchased separately:

No. I. DEMOSTHENES. LELAND.

II. Completion of Do.; and SALLUST, by ROSE.

III. & IV. XENOPHON'S ANABASIS and CYROPEEDIA, by SPELMAN and COOPER.

V. to VII. HERODOTUS. BELOE.

VIII. & IX. VIRGIL, by WRANGHAM, SOTHEY, and DRYDEN.

X. PINDAR; a new Translation, by WHEELWRIGHT. With ANACREON; a new Translation, by BOURNE.

XI. to XV. TACITUS. MURPHY.

XVI. THEOPHRASTUS; with 60 Characteristic Engravings.

XVII. & XVIII. HORACE and PHÆDRUS.

XIX. JUVENAL, by Dr. BADHAM; & PERSIUS, by Sir W. DRUMMOND.

XX. to XXII. THUCYDIDES. SMITH.

XXIII. to XXIX. PLUTARCH'S LIVES; with Engravings of the Lives recorded.

XXX. HESIOD, by C. ELTON, Esq. also the CASSANDRA of LYCOPHRON, by Lord ROYSTON; with BION, MOSCHUS, MUSÆUS, and SAPPHO.

XXXI. and XXXII. CÆSAR'S COMMENTARIES.

XXXIII. SOPHOCLES. FRANKLIN.

XXXIV. to XXXVI. EURIPIDES. POTTER.

Each Vol. is delivered monthly with the Magazines.

‘From a careful examination of the volumes now before the public, we do not hesitate to declare our conviction that a more important or a more interesting accession than this Library to our national literature has not taken place in modern times. No serious or well-arranged plan has been proposed, before this time, for placing the treasures of the classic writers in the hands of readers who were unacquainted with the original language in which they wrote. How easily such a plan could be accomplished—how admirably it could be executed—with what a well-founded assurance it might be undertaken, of producing good of every kind—solid instruction with the most ennobling delight—the volumes before us are at once the example and the proof. We might praise the elegance and accuracy of the work; but a feature of greater importance than is connected with external merits demands our warmest approbation,—we mean the exclusion of every thing offensive to virgin innocence. Thus, for the first time in the course of ages, all the intellectual splendors of Greece and Rome are opened to the modest contemplation of the gentler sex; and a lady can acknowledge an acquaintance with the treasures of ancient poetry without the smallest compromise of her delicacy.—Monthly Review.

‘We know of no periodical more richly deserving of patronage than the Family Classical Library, and we should esteem it a disgrace to any establishment for the education of either sex, in the library of which, this beautiful edition of the most approved translations of the ancients was not to be found.’—The Bee.

‘The efforts of this publisher in the cause of ancient literature are meeting with extensive encouragement, as well for his first project of introducing so long a list of Greek and Latin authors to the notice of the unlearned part of the community in an uniform series, as for the manner in which the promises of using every exertion to render his English translations of the Classics universally acceptable, have been since redeemed.’—New Monthly Magazine.

THEOPHRASTUS, with 50 Engravings.

‘A better stage-coach companion, or one for a weary fireside on a wet day, we could not recommend to those who delight in studying the vast varieties of human character.’—Athenæum.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES.

Menage says, if all the books in the world were in the fire, there is not one which he would so eagerly snatch from the flames as Plutarch. That author never tires him; he reads him often, and always finds new beauties.

‘Who, that reads at all, has not read Plutarch? and who, that has read him, does not return to him again and again with renewed delight? Plutarch is the idol of the school-boy, the pocket-companion of the lonely shepherd on the hill-side, and the friend and monitor of the warrior and statesman; and it is difficult to say which of these very dissimilar classes of readers profits most largely by his perusal.’—Western Luminary.

CÆSAR'S COMMENTARIES.

‘Here begins one of the most interesting of all Roman Classics, whose narrative has made many a warrior, whose facts throw so important a light on the history of every European nation, and whose style is a model for writers in all languages.’—Literary Gazette.

HORACE.

In No. XVIII. Translations of different parts of HORACE are introduced from the pens of the following Poets:

Addison—Atterbury, Bp.—Badham, C.—Beattie, F.—Beaumont, Sir J.—Bentley, Dr.—Bernal, R.—Byron, Lord—Carter, Elizabeth—Chatterton—Congreve, W.—Cowley—Cowper—Creech—Croly—Dryden—Evelyn—Hastings, Warren—Herbert, Hon. W.—Hobhouse, Sir J. Cam—Hunt, Leigh—Johnson, Dr.—Jonson, Ben—Joy, H. Hall—Lyttleton, Lord—Merivale, J.—Milton—Montgomery, Robert—Otway—Pope—Porson—Barry Cornwall—Roscommon, Earl of—Rowe, N.—Sidney, Sir P.—Swift, Dean—Wakefield, Gilbert—Warton, J.—Warton, T.—Wrangham, &c. &c.

ABRIDGED INTO ENGLISH.

FOR COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS.

By the Rev. J. SEAGER, Author of 'Critical Observations on Classical Authors,' and several Greek Criticisms in the Classical Journal.

VIGER.—ON THE GREEK IDIOMS.

Translated into English, and abridged. 8vo. 9s. 6d. bds.

'The publication before us is well fitted to carry students still farther into the recondite parts of that majestic language, and to display to them much of that interesting mechanism which escapes the uninstructed eye. We therefore gladly lend our assistance in so rational an attempt as that which is here undertaken; and observe with pleasure that, in conformity with the improved spirit of the age, Mr. Valpy's List of New School Books contains several others on the same plan.'—Lond. Mag.

'This volume is compiled with much industry and judgment; and altogether a more valuable service could not well have been rendered to the inquiring student of the classics.'—Oxford Literary Gazette.

'But when they have made real advances in Greek prose, read over with them the whole of Vigerus. Mr. Berry, what I now recommend is really one of the most useful parts of education. You should make them read Vigerus in this way twice every year for five or six or seven years.'—Dr. PARR.

HOOGEVEEN.—ON THE GREEK PARTICLES.

On the same Plan. 8vo: 7s. 6d. bds.

'Hoogeveen on Particles has always been considered a valuable aid in the study of Greek; and Mr. Seager has compressed and translated it in a manner which we could not desire to be better.'—Spectator.

BOS.—ON THE GREEK ELLIPSES.

On the same Plan. 8vo. 9s. 6d. bds.

'Mr. Seager has contrived to retain the essence of all that is beneficial to the student, while he has placed it more easily within his reach by the order into which it is reduced.'—Intelligence.

'We have no hesitation in recommending this book to the teachers of Greek, as the best Dictionary of Elliptical Expressions to which they can resort.'—Edinburgh Literary Journal.

'Bos, Hoogeveen, and Viger, are works of valuable criticism.'—Bickersteth's Christian Student.

HERMANN.—ON THE GREEK METRES.

On the same Plan. 8vo. 8s. 6d. bds.

'My hero is Hermann: he is not only a scholar, but a philosopher of the highest order; and he smiles probably, as I do, at the petty criticisms of puny scholars, who in fact do not understand what is written by this great critic.'—Dr. PARR.

MAITTAIRE.—ON THE GREEK DIALECTS.

On the same Plan. 8vo. 9s. 6d. bds.

'It is impossible to speak too highly of the fidelity of the translation or the skill of the abridgment. It is enriched by some modest Notes, and more original matter than careless readers will perhaps credit.'—Atlas.

'This volume completes Mr. Seager's epitomising labors. With Viger, Hoogeveen, Bos, and Hermann, the Greek Student has a set of scarcely dispensable subsidia, at all events in a more accessible form than before. Mr. Seager has labored zealously, and must be allowed to have deserved well of Greek literature.'—New Monthly Mag.

'This is an important and serviceable School and College Book.'—Gentleman's Magazine.

In consequence of recent applications, it has been determined to commence a New Monthly Subscription of the

OCTAVO EDITION OF THE DELPHIN CLASSICS;
 WITH THE VARIORUM NOTES.

EDITED AND PRINTED BY A. J. VALPY, M.A.

The DELPHIN, BIPONT, and VARIORUM CLASSICS are rendered comparatively needless by this comprehensive edition, in which is incorporated, for the first time, the substance of the three; and the value of the Series is particularly enhanced by the Various Readings contained in all the principal editions of each Author.

The Price is £1. 1s. each Part; Large Paper, double. Very few copies are printed beyond the first Subscription, which amounted to 983 large and small. The whole forms 141 Parts.

The best Text is used, and not that of the Delphin:—The best Indices are adopted, and carefully collated with the Text. The reference is made to the Book and Chapter, so that the same Index will apply to all other Editions. The Bipont Literaria Notitia, continued to the present time, is added to each Author.

Each Part averages 672 pages. The Work cannot be had in separate Authors, but as a whole Series.

. Few copies are left; and as such a voluminous Work can never perhaps be reprinted, early applications should be made for the remaining Sets. If more convenient, Mr. V. would issue two Nos. monthly, till the Set is completed.

Any Persons having incomplete copies are requested to make immediate application for the Nos. wanting, as the price will be raised from time to time.

STEPHENS' GREEK THESAURUS.

The copies of some deceased Subscribers may be had at £1. 5s. each Part Small, and £2. 12s. 6d. Large Paper. Any persons having incomplete copies are requested to make application for the Numbers wanting, as the price has already been raised on such Parts in suspense, and will be further raised from time to time. Mr. Valpy has less than twelve copies in his possession, which may be had complete; or in Parts to be delivered monthly, should it best suit the purchaser. The Work is comprised in 39 Parts, the original Subscription to which was 1086, large and small.

To be published in Monthly Parts, royal 8vo, 5s. 6d. each, sewn,

AN ABRIDGMENT
OF THE COMMENTARIES
ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

BY THE REV. T. S. HUGHES, B.D.

OF EMMANUEL COLLEGE; CHAPLAIN TO THE BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH, AND LATE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE AT CAMBRIDGE.

It has been suggested to MR. VALPY by several Clergymen, that an important service would be rendered to the Religious Public, and more particularly to the Clergy and Students in Divinity, if an ABRIDGMENT, or rather a CONDENSATION, OF THE PRINCIPAL ENGLISH COMMENTARIES ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS were published in an economical and commodious form, suitable to the means as well as the wants of the present age. For deeply as the Christian world is indebted to those learned men, whose critical knowlege and laborious researches have enabled them to furnish invaluable Commentaries on the Holy Scriptures, it is much to be regretted that the fruits of their labors remain scattered through a multiplicity of volumes, rarely to be found even in the Libraries of the most wealthy classes; whilst in almost all instances they cannot be procured without also incurring the expense of costly additions of the Text.

To obviate such difficulties, and facilitate the investigations of those who desire a more perfect knowlege of Scripture, is the object of the present undertaking—the advantages of which will probably appear in a more striking point of view, if we subjoin a list of the Authors whose works it is proposed to condense.

PLAN.

1. The Work will contain the Notes of the above English Commentators, who have commented on the whole of the Old or New Testament, or both; and these so condensed as to give the substance of every Note briefly, but without obscurity.
2. The Notes of each Commentator will be in alphabetical order, chapter by chapter; so that reference may be directly made to the opinions of any favorite Author.
3. When a Commentary is accompanied by a Paraphrase or by particular Dissertations, such will be referred to at the end of each chapter.
4. At the end of the Work will be given a List of the most celebrated ancient and modern published Sermons, adapted to the same Texts, both in the Old and New Testaments.
5. The Work will commence with the New Testament, and will be printed in Royal Octavo, double columns, to be published in Monthly Parts, averaging 180 pages, price 5s. 6d. each; and it is presumed the whole will be completed in about 40 Parts. The New Testament will however be complete in itself, to suit any Subscribers who may wish to discontinue the work before the whole is finished.

Part I. will be published on the 1st of January, 1833.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE GREEK AND LATIN CLASSICS,

WITH ENGLISH NOTES, QUESTIONS, &c.

AT the desire of many Schoolmasters, Mr. VALPY is publishing a SERIES of such GREEK AUTHORS as are read in the upper Classes of Schools and in Colleges. The best Texts are adopted, and the CRITICAL and EXPLANATORY NOTES are presented in a more accessible form than those of Latin Commentators, by avoiding that profuseness of annotation which frequently anticipates the ingenuity, supersedes the industry, and consequently retards the improvement of the pupil. EXAMINATION QUESTIONS, adapted to the points discussed in the Notes, and INDEXES are also added.

‘Things are now ordered better; there are English-Greek Grammars, English-Greek Lexicons, and now English Notes and explanations. Among literary individuals, Mr. Valpy led the way in this goodly task. His Series of Classics for School and College are meritorious; and in our opinion, and as far as we have seen, are better managed than any similar undertaking now on foot.’—Spectator.

‘Young students, in whose hands these editions of School and College Classics shall be placed, before they have been troubled with any others, can hardly be made to understand the deep obligations which they owe to Mr. Valpy, who has thus so materially lightened and abridged the difficulties that have so long beset this department of liberal education. Besides that in general the best texts are adopted, they are printed in a clear and handsome type, and are accompanied by English Notes, in which sometimes the various readings are mentioned, and, occasionally, difficult passages are either translated, or so fully explained as to render them easily intelligible. Indeed, no one who has not learned Greek without the facilities which Mr. Valpy has now supplied, can conceive the great advantages which they will afford for the acquisition of that language to the rising generations.’—Monthly Review.

THE FOLLOWING ARE ALREADY PUBLISHED:

Greek.

EURIPIDES.—HECUBA.

By the Rev. J. R. MAJOR, Trin. Coll., Camb., and Head Master of King's College School, London. Second Edition. 5s.

‘This is, beyond all comparison, the best student's edition of a Greek Play, which has ever been given to the public.’—Literary Chronicle.

MEDEA, PHŒNISSÆ, and ORESTES.

By the Same. 5s. each.

‘This (Orestes) is one of the admirable series of the School and College Greek Classics, and well worthy of its place. The Questions are judicious; and he who correctly answers them, must have accurately read his author.’—Spectator.

The four Plays may be had together in one Vol. Price 20s.

SOPHOCLES.—CEDIPUS TYRANNUS.

By the Rev. J. BRASSE, D.D. late Fellow of Trin. Coll., Camb. 5s.

‘The very useful illustrations given of all the difficult passages are well adapted to remove many of the obstacles which usually stand in the way of a young Greek Scholar.’—Monthly Review.

ŒDIPUS COLONEUS, ANTIGONE, and TRACHINIÆ.

By the Same. 5s. each.

'This (Œdipus Coloneus) is one of a series of improved School Books. We need not say that this Work is edited in a most instructive and satisfactory form, for Dr. Brasse is evidently a masterly Grecian.'—Gent. Mag.

The four Plays of SOPHOCLES may be had together in one Vol. Price 20s.

THUCYDIDES.

By the Rev. S. T. BLOOMFIELD, D.D. F.S.A. of Sidney Coll., Camb., and Vicar of Bisbrooke, Rutland. 3 Vols. 11. 7s. bds.

'The best praise that we can bestow on the Notes, is, that they form a valuable commentary, by which a careful student may acquire a clear and lasting acquaintance with the style and meaning of Thucydides. We can safely say that the Notes have highly gratified us, and that we have read with pleasure the Examination Questions, which are acute and useful; and the Greek and English Indices are digested with great care. At School and College the work will be welcome.'—Atlas.

'This edition is intended for the use of Schools, but will be found available to students of all ages. The Notes are useful and explanatory, and not encumbered with that pedantic ostentation of learning, in which it has been so long the fashion of our ablest commentators to indulge.'—Sun.

XENOPHON.—ANABASIS.

By F. C. BELFOUR, M.A. Oxon. F.R.A.S., LL.D. 8s. 6d. bds.

'This edition has been published for Schools and Colleges; and we have no hesitation in saying that it is, for such a purpose, superior to any other in existence. Much useful information is perspicuously conveyed in the Notes.'—Spectator.

XENOPHON.—CYROPÆDIA.

By E. H. BARKER, Esq. 9s. 6d. bds.

'We have the Questions and Indices according to the plan of the excellent Series of School and College Classics, for which the student owes a deep obligation to the publisher.'—Atlas.

DEMOSTHENES.

Oratio Philippica I.; Olynthiaca I. II. et III.; de Pace; Æschines contra Demosthenem; Demosthenes de Corona.

By the Same. 8s. 6d. bds.

'This is a very useful book for the classical student. The finest Orations of the great Athenian orator are selected and illustrated by copious English Notes. The young aspirant after classical celebrity will find his progress greatly assisted by the work before us. The Examination Questions are a valuable addition. This is certainly a very excellent school-book.'—Athenæum.

'Its chief recommendation is a copious Index, a judicious table of Examination Questions, and, above all, numerous Notes, in which the student is not perplexed with critical pedantry, but informed by explanatory matter.'—Court Journal.

HERODOTUS.

Containing the CONTINUOUS HISTORY ALONE of the Persian Wars.

By the Rev. C. W. STOCKER, D.D. Vice Principal of St. Alban's Hall, Oxford, and late Principal of Elizabeth College, Guernsey. 2 Vols. Price 18s.

'We do not recollect the whole range of the Classics being brought to bear more effectively on the illustration of an author and of each other, than they are made to do under the expansive mind of Dr. Stocker.'—Literary Gazette.

'This is not merely the best, but also the only, edition of Herodotus adapted for schools. The licentious anecdotes have been removed without injuring the continuity of the narrative, and students may read the original account, and escape the impurities by which they were previously liable to be disgusted or depraved. The Notes are selected with care and labor, and concentrated with great ability. The Questions are calculated to awaken the attention of the negligent.'—Athenæum.

ÆSCHYLUS.—PROMETHEUS.

With Notes, critical and explanatory, original and selected; and Examination Questions. 5s. By G. BURGESS, M.A. Trin. Coll., Camb.

PLATO.—FOUR DIALOGUES:

CRITO, GREATER HIPPIAS, SECOND ALCIBIADES, and SISYPHUS:

With English Notes, original and selected. BEKKER's text is adopted, and the whole of the valuable Notes of Heindorf and others translated. Price 9s. 6d.

'It is owing to the erudition and research of the Editor, that these Dialogues may now be pronounced no longer a sealed book, which none but great scholars could ever hope even imperfectly to understand.'—New Monthly Mag.

Latin.LIVY.—BOOKS I. TO V.

With English Notes. By D. B. HICKIE, LL. D. Head Master of Hawkshead Grammar School. 8s. 6d.

'Accurate text; clear, concise, and useful notes. These are the characteristics of this new volume of the School and College Greek Classics. The medallion heads in this work are better than any plates in the series.'—Atlas.

CICERO.—DE OFFICIIS;

With Critical and Explanatory Notes. The Text of the Heusingers is followed. Third Ed. 6s. bds.

'To students the present edition will prove particularly acceptable; considerable information and much useful elucidation will be found in the addiscititious matter; and the student will be thus benefited without any augmentation of labor.'—Crit. Rev.

CICERO.—DE AMICITIA ET DE SENECTUTE,

From the Text of ERNESTI; with all his Notes, and citations from his INDEX LATIN. CICERON., and much original matter, critical and explanatory. By E. H. BARKER, Trin. Coll., Camb. Fourth Edition. 4s. 6d. bds.

'It is indeed a publication which contains multum in parvo; and the classical student will find in it no small store of useful philological erudition.'—Crit. Rev.

CICERO.—TWELVE SELECT ORATIONS.

From the Text of JO. CASP. ORELLIUS. With English Notes. By the Editor of VIRGIL and CICERO's Offices with English Notes. 7s. 6d.

'Sincerely rejoiced are we to see the classical publications of Mr. Valpy's press; and this among others, for it is an excellent tyronian book.'—Gent. Mag.

TACITUS.—GERMANY AND AGRICOLA,

From BROTIER's and PASSOW's Text; with Notes and Emendations, and Critical Remarks. By E. H. BARKER, Trin. Coll., Camb. Fourth Edition. 5s. 6d.

'This is a valuable addition to the number of our School Books. The Editor has given ample proof of his various reading in his Notes.'—Crit. Rev.

CÆSAR'S COMMENTARIES. - DE BELLO GALLICO.

With Engravings. By the Same. Price 6s. 6d.

'This is a very useful edition of Cæsar on the Gallic War. Mr. Barker has collected much valuable information, and condensed a mass of knowledge, which cannot fail to be of great advantage to the classical student.'—Athenæum.

ABRIDGMENTS.

In one vol. Small 8vo. 4s. 6d. bound in cloth, with a Portrait of the Author,
PALEY'S MORAL AND POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY,
 ABRIDGED BY A MASTER OF ARTS OF CAMBRIDGE.

In one vol. Small 8vo. 3s. 6d. bound in cloth,
PALEY'S EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY,

BY THE SAME.

'All the arguments of the great philosopher are faithfully preserved, and nothing omitted for which Paley's work is worth perusing. To a considerable extent the language of the original is adhered to, and in some instances the progress of the argument materially assisted.'—Monthly Review.

'We only regret that we were born a generation too soon. This work, with its portrait and very excellent biographical sketch, will be welcome to many a freshman, either in or out of the Universities.'—Athenæum.

'A learned critic, in the life-time of Paley, expressed as his opinion of the excellent work above named, that it would suffer no injury, but be much improved, by a judicious abridgment: we look on this volume as a convincing proof of its truth.'—Bath Journal.

In one vol. Small 8vo. 5s. 6d. bound in cloth, with a Portrait of the Author,
LOCKE ON THE HUMAN UNDERSTANDING,

ABRIDGED BY A CLERGYMAN.

'This condensation of Locke (a very delicate and difficult task) is executed with great skill.'—Maidstone Gazette.

ADDRESS FROM A CLERGYMAN TO HIS PARISHIONERS.

Sixth Ed. 4s. 6d. bds.

With a MORNING and EVENING PRAYER. By R. VALPY, D.D., F.A.S.

CONTENTS:—Of God—The Son of God—The Holy Ghost—The Trinity—Read the Scriptures—The Incarnation of Jesus Christ—The Doctrines of Jesus Christ—The Resurrection—Redemption—Justification—Faith—Works—Works without Faith—Faith without Works—Union of Faith and Works—Merit and Reward—Humility—The Influence of the Holy Spirit—Repentance—Regeneration, Renewal, Conversion—Delay of Conversion—Our Endeavors—Predestination, Free Will—Of Prayer—Public Worship—Family Prayer—The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper—Forgiveness of Injuries—Veneration to the Name of God—Relative Duties—Exhortation to Piety—Prospect in Life—Use of Time—Death.

ANTHOLOGIA SACRA;

Or, SELECT THEOLOGICAL EXTRACTS;

On subjects Doctrinal, Practical, and Experimental;

Selected and arranged by the Rev. B. GILPIN, M.A. Rector of St. Andrew's, Hertford; and W. H. VALPY, Esq. Royal 8vo. 24s. bds.

'This is almost the only book of religious extracts, with which we are acquainted, that deserves a decided and unqualified recommendation. The work does not claim to be denominated 'A System of Theology,' though in our opinion it deserves that distinction better than many of loftier pretensions. We feel no hesitation in saying, that to the divinity student, the minister of a congregation, or the father of a family, it cannot fail to be both acceptable and useful.'—Pulpit, No. 476.

'This volume the head of every family ought to have for his household: it contains choice and useful passages from the works of the most illustrious Divines, on the faith and practice of Christians; it tells us how such men as Sherlock and Taylor, and Stillingfleet, and Cudworth, and Tillotson, and Leighton, and other burning and shining lights, felt, thought, and acted.'—Athenæum.

Second Edition, (reduced in price.) 18s. bds.

GREEK GRADUS, OR, GREEK, LATIN, and ENGLISH PROSODIAL LEXICON.

By the Rev. J. BRASSE, D.D. late Fellow of Trin. Coll., Camb.

It has been the object to present, in a comprehensive form, a Manual, containing the interpretation, in Latin and English, of such words as occur in the principal Greek Poets;—the quantity of each syllable actually or virtually marked;—an authority quoted for the existence and quantity of each word in those writers;—and those terms set down as synonymous which appear to bear a similitude in sense to the principal word. The Works of the Greek Poets have been diligently examined, and such epithets and phrases annexed to each principal word as are of legitimate usage, and seem best calculated to embellish Greek composition.

‘Dr. Brasse has certainly conferred a lasting benefit on all classical students, and deserves the highest praise for taste, learning, and indefatigable industry.’—Weekly Review.

‘The indefatigable application required in the compilation of the Greek Gradus is manifest; and we heartily recommend the work as supplying a desideratum in our School Books, and likely to be advantageously used to a very wide extent.’—Lit. Chron.

SCHREVELIUS’ GREEK AND ENGLISH LEXICON,

With many new words added. Second Edition, improved and enlarged. To which is added a copious ENGLISH and GREEK LEXICON, intended to assist the learner in Greek composition. In one Vol. 8vo. Pr. 16s. bds. or 17s. bound.

By the Rev. J. R. MAJOR, Head Master of King’s College School, London.

The present Edition of SCHREVELIUS’ Lexicon, which has for so long a period facilitated the labors, and promoted the knowledge, of Greek Students, comes recommended to the notice of the juvenile reader by having the explanations in our own tongue. The plan of introducing into School Books plain English for bald Latin, in the interpretations of Greek words, has within these few years been sanctioned by many most respectable teachers of youth, and we trust that this plan, useful alike to the instructor and the pupil, will be universally adopted.

ROBINSON’S ANTIQUITIES OF GREECE;

Being an Account of the Manners and Customs of the Greeks, designed to illustrate the GREEK CLASSICS, by explaining Words and Phrases according to the Rites and Customs to which they refer. To which are prefixed, a brief History of the Grecian States, and Biographical Sketches of the principal Greek Writers. Archbishop PORTER, LAKEMACHER, and Bos, contain nothing which is not in this Edition, which has also much useful matter not to be found in those works. The Second Edition, considerably enlarged and improved, and illustrated with Plates. 17s. bds.

The classical authorities, which, in the former edition, were incorporated with the text, are placed at the foot of each page. This, it is expected, will be found an improvement, inasmuch as it will render the book more uniform, as well as more easy to the student, by obviating the difficulties which a frequent recurrence to the authorities must necessarily occasion, and by preventing his attention from being drawn to them rather than directed to the subject-matter itself. At the same time, he can notice the authorities with at least as much facility as if they had been placed at the end of the passages to which they refer; and, if requisite, they will still enable him to consult the authors themselves, to whom the references are given.

HOMER'S ILIAD;

With ENGLISH NOTES to the First Eight Books.

By E. VALPY, B.D. Fourth Ed. 8vo. 10s. 6d.

'This is perhaps the most useful Edition of the Mæonian bard that has yet appeared. The author has judiciously enlivened the critical matter of his work by quotations from Pope's translation, and adorned it with a few parallel passages from Virgil and Milton.'—New Monthly Mag.

The same Edition, without Notes, 8vo. 6s. 6d.

GREEK GRAMMAR;

With Notes for those who have made some progress in the language.

By R. VALPY, D.D. F.A.S. Twelfth Edition. 6s. 6d. bds. 8vo.

In one vol. 8vo, Pr. 9s. 6d.

SECOND GREEK DELECTUS;

Or, NEW ANALECTA MINORA. With English Notes and a Lexicon.

By the Rev. F. VALPY, Trin. Coll., Camb., and Master of Reading School.

In one vol. 8vo, 15s. 6d. bd.

THIRD GREEK DELECTUS;

Or, NEW ANALECTA MAJORA: with English Notes. Prose and Verse; in one large Vol. containing the substance of Dalzel's three Vols. Intended to be used after the 'Second Greek Delectus.' By the Same.

Latin.

A new Edition, with considerable additions, alterations, and corrections,
Price 15s. royal duod. bound,

DICTIONARY OF LATIN PHRASES;

Comprehending a methodical digest of phrases from the best authors, which have been collected in all phraseological works hitherto published; for the more speedy progress of students in Latin Composition. By W. ROBERTSON, A.M. of Cambridge. For the use of the Middle and Upper Classes of Schools.

* * The present Edition has this advantage over its predecessors, that it is enriched with many hundred phrases which have hitherto been unrecorded; and these have been drawn from the purest fountains, by actual perusal; from Cicero, Tacitus, Terence, Plautus, &c.

'The valuable assistance which it will afford to the student and school-boy in Latin Composition can scarcely fail to obtain for it a distinguished place in the list of School Books.'—Class. Journ.

'If the work in its 'first estate' was a favorite treatise at our schools, it can have nothing to fear in its renovated form, where its barbarisms have been expunged, and some thousand phrases, drawn from the purest sources, have been added. We shall merely observe that it is an excellent key to Latin Composition.'—Literary Chronicle.

*Fourth Edition, Price 7s. 6d. bound,GRADUS AD PARNASSUM.

The Verses and Phrases are omitted; and the English of the words is given, with their formation. Many new words are added, and other Improvements.

The present Edition is printed at the suggestion of several Schoolmasters, who have long objected to the old Gradus, as being greatly injurious to the progress of rising genius. It is only necessary to refer to the sentiments of Dr. Vicesimus KNOX on the old Gradus to establish the utility of the present plan.

DELPHIN VIRGIL, HEYNE'S TEXT,
With all the DELPHIN NOTES: no Interpretatio. Second Edition, 8vo. 8s. 6d.

DELPHIN CÆSAR, OBERLIN'S TEXT;

VIRGIL; WITHOUT NOTES.
By A. J. VALPY, M.A. 18mo. 3s. 6d.

VALPY'S EDITION OF VIRGIL, WITH ENGLISH NOTES,
Original, and selected from the Delphin and other editions. No Interpretatio.
Sixth Edition. 7s. 6d. 18mo.

'The body of Notes forming the Appendix constitutes an excellent commentary upon Virgil, and must prove of peculiar benefit to the pupil in clearing up difficulties of the sense or the metre. But these explanatory Notes are of still farther utility, as tending to lead juvenile minds into a train of inquiry that will expand their ideas and facilitate their progress in classical literature. The Notes of Voss in particular contribute highly to enrich the present impression.'—New Monthly Magazine.

HORACE, WITHOUT NOTES.

The objectionable Odes and Passages have been expunged.
By A. J. VALPY, M.A. Fifth Edition. 18mo. 3s. 6d.

VALPY'S EDITION OF HORACE, WITH ENGLISH NOTES.

This contains large extracts in the original Arabic and Latin from the MSS. in the Escorial, with an account of their age, and a life of the author when known; and is not a mere catalogue, as might be supposed from the title, it being Casiri's intention, to use his own words, "Omnes Arabum quoad fieri posset, Bibliothecæ, hæc una Complecta." Gibbon has made great use of it in his 51st chapter; and Harris, in his Philological Inquiries, has analysed the contents.

THE BIBLICAL ANNUAL, (Uniform with the Geographical Annual.)

Containing FINELY-EXECUTED and BEAUTIFULLY-COLOURED ENGRAVINGS from STEEL, by STARLING, of all the TRIBES and COUNTRIES mentioned in Sacred History; with Plans of the CITY of JERUSALEM and THE TEMPLE; and a GENERAL INDEX, upon an original and most comprehensive plan, exhibiting, at one view, all that is Geographically and Historically interesting in the Holy Scriptures. Price, elegantly bound in Morocco, 21s.

OPINIONS OF THIS WORK.

"This beautiful publication is executed in a style of Engraving beyond which, we suppose, art cannot go. It is the more acceptable, as charts of the countries mentioned in the Bible have hitherto been either very incorrect, or, if well executed, inaccessible to the public on account of their enormous prices."—Monthly Review.

"This work will be reckoned one of the most useful as well as elegant and cheap publications of modern times."—Tyne Mercury.

"The Geographical Annual is one of the most successful publications, and certainly this Biblical is in no way its inferior. The maps are executed with the greatest care, and the general index is of the highest value. We know not the work we could more conscientiously recommend as a valuable and beautiful present."—Athenæum.

"This beautiful little work is, indeed, a publication so well put together in every respect, that a more useful and agreeable companion to the reading of the Scriptures could not be devised."—Literary Gazette.

"We are pleased to add our most unequivocal commendation of this very useful publication."—Christian Remembrancer.

"It is a very excellent work, and a desideratum in families."—Spectator.

"The Index must be of great value and interest, as well to the historical as to the biblical student."—Carlisle Patriot.

"The maps are curious and interesting to any student; but to the biblical reader they are invaluable for the information they communicate."—Tyne Mercury.

II.

THE GEOGRAPHICAL ANNUAL, 1833,

Containing 100 BEAUTIFULLY-COLOURED STEEL ENGRAVINGS, by STARLING, of all the STATES, KINGDOMS, and EMPIRES throughout the World, including the NEW DISCOVERIES and CHANGES that have taken place to the present time, and an ORIGINAL MAP of GREAT BRITAIN, according to the Constitution of 1832. Price, elegantly bound in morocco, 21s.

"Of all the Annuals, this is unquestionably the most useful. It is one of the most delightful books that can be given or received at a season of the year when to make a present becomes a sort of duty."—New Monthly Magazine.

"This beautiful and most useful little volume is a perfect picture of elegance, containing a vast sum of Geographical information. A gift better calculated to be long preserved, and often referred to, could not be offered to favoured youth of either sex."—Literary Gazette.

"The utility of this valuable volume almost eclipses its beauty, in our estimation. It is an ornament for the boudoir or the drawing-room, while it is absolutely necessary for the study."—Atlas.

"It is the most perfect gem which has ever been published."—Bristol Journal.

III.

THE HISTORICAL ANNUAL PRESENTS.

These Works illustrate the Romantic Annals of England, France, Italy, and Spain, and comprise also a short History of each Country.

1. ENGLAND. By HENRY NEELE. From the Norman Conquest to the Restoration. 3 vols. 18s.
2. FRANCE. By LEITCH RITCHIE. From the time of Charlemagne to the Reign of Louis XIV. 18s.
3. ITALY. By CHARLES MACFARLANE. From the Lombard Epoch to the Seventeenth Century. 3 vols. 18s.
4. SPAIN. By M. TRUEBA. From the time of Roderic to the Seventeenth Century. 3 vols. 18s.

"The plan of this work is novel, and of a very interesting description. It is the realization of that which has been often said, and often felt,—that the annals with which the history of every country is thickly strewn, are in themselves far more romantic than the happiest inventions of the most ingenious novelists and poets. . . . They are valuable illustrations of manners, and striking commentaries on the history of the country."—Times.

The high order of talent which the proprietors have ensured for the pages of this work, has led to success far beyond their most sanguine expectations. They have now the satisfaction of stating, that the arrangements for enriching the embellished portion of the COURT MAGAZINE are completed, and that the engraving of WINDSOR CASTLE, produced on the 1st of Nov. forms No. 1 of the Landscape Gallery of the Seats of the Nobility and Royal Residences,

From original drawings by WILLIAM DANIELL, Esq. R.A. which will be continued monthly, together with the highly-finished engravings of the Portrait Gallery of the Female Nobility,

And the finely-coloured engravings from original drawings by MR. PARRIS, which are expressly designed for THE COURT MAGAZINE, to illustrate in the most beautiful and perfect manner

The Newest English and Foreign Costumes, which are communicated, with full descriptions, by MADAME MARADAN CARSON, the celebrated Modiste of Hanover Square. Reviews of Literature, Music, the Drama, and the Arts, are also given, with a Register of Events both at home and abroad.

PATENT.

S. MORDAN & Co's OBLIQUE STEEL PENS.

PATENT GRANTED SEPTEMBER 20, 1831.

The Patentees have now arrived at so much certainty in the Manufacture of their PATENT OBLIQUE PEN, that they can confidently recommend it to the Public as the best metallic pen now in use.

True Position of the Oblique Pen.

The scientific principle of the Patent Oblique Pen will be found to remove the objections usually made to the use of metal pens. These are, their liability to tear the paper, spurt the ink, and gather fibres from the surface of the paper, which blot the writing.

The Oblique Pen obviates these defects. For the oblique direction of the slit being that in which the writing usually slopes or leans, at about an angle of 35 degrees, both sides or nibs are brought into equal wear, and a freedom is given to its use which no other metal pen ever possessed. As the Oblique Pen is always presented in its proper direction to the paper, the writer is not confined to any particular position, but may use the pen freely, and without the restraint of attitude usually directed by the teachers of writing. The Oblique Pen removes another objection, namely, that metal pens do not carry enough ink. There is also an elasticity in the back of these pens similar to the quill pen, and not a mere separation of the two points, as in other steel pens.

The Oblique Pen may be held in a quill of a proper size, or an Elastic Steel Pen-holder; but, as firmness and durability in use are desirable, the Silver Pen-holder, made expressly for this Pen, is particularly recommended.

MANUFACTORY, 22, CASTLE STREET, FINSBURY.
LONDON.

The following opinions have been given by the Public Press upon the Patent Oblique Pen.

The LITERARY GAZETTE, May 5, 1832.

"Both nibs are brought equally down, the position of the writer is less constrained, and an elasticity, hitherto unknown, is given to the pen itself. We have tried these pens for several days at hard work, and have found them answer entirely to our satisfaction."

The SPECTATOR, July 31, 1832.

"The OBLIQUE PEN will contain as much ink as a quill pen, and it is as elastic; it glides smoothly over the surface of the paper and does not spurt out the ink as do some steel pens whose points are apt to catch in the paper. Its shape is not in the least degree objectionable in writing, and it retains its good qualities longer than any other steel pens. We have given it a fair trial, and we afford the best proof of our favourable opinion by now adopting it for constant use."

The ATHENÆUM, May 26, 1832.

"The PATENT OBLIQUE PEN is excellent, and writes with equal ease in any position; and it is, we incline to say, the best metal pen we ever wrote with."

The ATLAS, August 12, 1832.

"It is a graceful instrument, and glides in a picturesque manner over the paper.—This pen is our favourite for note writing."

The MECHANICS' MAGAZINE, June 2, 1832.

"This pen obviates all the defects to which former metallic pens were liable, and embodies a very novel, and, at the same time, an exceedingly valuable principle:—I allude to its oblique form. Having given these pens a fair trial, I feel much pleasure in expressing my entire satisfaction with their performance."

The ENTERTAINING PRESS, May 9, 1832.

"We have written with the PATENT OBLIQUE PENS upon fine paper and coarse—upon hard paper and soft—slowly and swiftly—in delicate, lady-like hand, and in our usual editorial scribble;—for shorthand notes and for transcribing in our best album: yes, and even to sketch a small landscape and figures; and the result of all our experiments is a firm conviction of their superiority to any we have ever yet used. They have other good qualities also; they carry a good portion of ink, and they are quite as elastic in the back as any quill pen we have ever used."

The ORIGINAL, March 17, 1832.

"We have inspected a new Steel Pen which, as an especial original, calls for some notice from us. The properties of evenness, pliancy and clearness are attained in a remarkable degree, partly, we suppose, through the exquisite temper of the material."

TENTH VOLUME.

THE BRITISH STORY, BRIEFLY TOLD, from early times to the present period. Embellished with Thirty-four Portraits representing the Sovereigns in their proper costumes, accompanied with a Poetical Chronology; and Six Engravings on Steel, illustrative of British History. Price 4s. neatly half bound in cloth and leather.

It being the Author's chief purpose, in this brief outline of BRITISH STORY, to give rather a history of the changes which the Nation has undergone, than a biography of its Sovereigns, the early part occupies the larger share of attention: the events of that period, in which are found the latent causes of all that has since occurred, being of superior interest to the juvenile reader. In the subsequent parts, as memorable changes did not take place under every sovereign, a few words are, in some instances, sufficient for a whole reign; yet whenever a remarkable revolution was effected in the national institutions, the narrative is proportionally dilated. In still later times, or rather, in the modern period, a crowd of events present themselves, from which only a selection could be made, to keep the work within the prescribed limits: the Author has taken the most important, and endeavoured so to explain them, as to bring his narrative to a level with the capacities of his young readers. In pursuing his task, he has met with the difficulties incident to such undertakings; but presumes he has so far surmounted them as to render his little volume an acceptable preparative to the study of more elaborate histories of the British Nation.

Shortly will be published,

THE FRENCH HISTORY, BRIEFLY TOLD. WHEN this Edition was first announced, nothing more was designed than an exact reprint of Mr. Moore's Notices, and Lord Byron's Works in prose and verse, as they had previously been given to the public; and the printer calculated that the whole might be comprised in fourteen volumes.

While, however, the Notices of Lord Byron's Life were for the second time passing through the press, it was suggested to the Publishers that the time was come when the Public had a right to look for such Notes and Illustrations to Lord Byron's text, as are usually appended to the pages of a deceased author of established and permanent popularity. This suggestion was acted upon; and its adoption has, apparently, given general satisfaction. These additions will extend the Work to seventeen volumes, the last of which will include a very copious and careful Index to the whole collection.

CRITICISMS OF THE PUBLIC PRESS.

Literary Gazette.

"We must congratulate the Publisher on the ready zeal with which the family and friendly associates of Lord Byron have come forward on this occasion. The private letters and diaries of the noble poet were not all in Mr. Moore's hands, when he drew up his memorable "Notices;" and it is obvious that many such materials have, for the first time, been brought forth for the service of the volume now before us, and, we presume, of the others that are to follow it. We must also congratulate him on the industry and good taste which have been applied to the utilization of the precious materials thus placed at his disposal. But of this our readers will draw a fair augury for themselves."

VOL. VII.—Athenæum.

"With this volume commences the poetry of Lord Byron, and with it much of the interest which we feel in the illustrious poet. The memoir, extending through the six preceding volumes, is ample, and contains many vivid delineations and fearless discussions concerning men and manners, and, as it comes chiefly from the memorandums and letters of the poet, we may regard it almost as the work of his own hand.

"We cannot well desire to know more about Lord Byron than what Moore has revealed, and if he said less about his friend's character, as a man and a poet, than we could have wished, we are likely to be fully gratified on that point now, for the present volume abounds with new matter, and that of a most interesting kind, both in verse and prose. The poems are not only arranged according to the date of their composition, but on almost every page we have a running commentary, illustrating the text, explaining the circumstances under which the various poems were composed, and giving us agreeable glimpses of the noble poet, and his friends and companions. These notes are, in our estimation, very valuable: they are anecdotal, critical, historical, or biographical, as the occasion demands, and seem to be supplied by one who is well acquainted with polished life and popular literature, and who has the good sense to be brief as well as instructive.

"We have no less than ten poems, not one of which has ever been published before, to select something worthy of the poet from : and there is the less difficulty in this, since they are all, or nearly all, marked by much of the manly vigour of his brightest days."

Spectator, June 23.

"The 7th volume of Lord Byron's works commences the poetical and principal part of his writings. The poems of Lord Byron will, under the present arrangement, form a species of autobiography, for the verse of Byron was the outpouring of his spirit, an interpretation of the passion of the moment, or else the reflections induced by the passing of events before him. Great care has been taken in the getting up of the work : a sedulous editor has thrown every light on the various contents of the volume that time and death have allowed to be made public, and such, indeed, is the plan of the publisher, and the power within his hands, that it may be said of the present edition, with justice, that no one will possess any other who can procure this."

Examiner, July 1.

"It may justly be said of this publication, that not an opportunity has been lost in it. For beauty of embellishment and aptness of annotation it is unrivalled. The arrangement of the poet's works according to the dates of performance is also excellent, as it marks the germs and development of the author's genius. The object of the elegant publication now before us is to present the history of Byron's mind in his works."

Court Journal.

"The literary contents of this volume deserve especial notice. We certainly could not have expected that Byron's early poems could, by any management, have been made so highly interesting ; and now that we have the materials before us, in the right shape, and with the right accompaniments, it cannot but seem strange that they should have been treated in a style so entirely unworthy of their intrinsic merits. The light now thrown on the whole course and tenor of Lord B.'s early writings and doings is delightful ; and we must add, they have been employed under the guidance of considerable skill and taste."

John Bull.

"We have looked with attention to this volume of the new collective series of Byron's opera omnia, and are surprised, we must say, to see how much novelty and interest has been thrown over materials, to most of which all the world had for years been familiar, by the arrangement they have received at the hands of the Editor. By printing Lord Byron's minor poems, of which this volume consists, in the order of their chronology, and adding notes explanatory of the personal allusions in which they abound, every page of them is really converted into a chapter of the Author's confessions. We must not omit to do justice to Mr. Murray's own share in the concern. The book is beautifully got up."

VOL. VIII.—"This volume of Mr. Murray's new edition of Byron contains the whole of Childe Harold, and not only that extraordinary poem, as we have hitherto been accustomed to read it, but besides that, a body of annotations and illustrations of the text, which gives a tenfold value to the original."

VOL. IX.—Morning Herald.

"Never yet has the posthumous fame of any author been consulted with a more sedulous attention to effect than that of Lord Byron. The publisher of his works ranks pre-eminent among the booksellers of Great Britain: his biographer is acknowledged to be one of the first poets of the age, and the grand conceptions of his genius are illustrated by the most splendid efforts of the etcher and the burine. The present volume presents, in every page, a rare sample of elaborate care, even to the minuteness of perfection."

Literary Gazette.

"By a careful comparison of the original MSS. and successive editions of these splendid Poems, the Editor has been enabled to collect a rich harvest of various readings, many of them curious, and not a few important; and the margin continues to present a running series of historical, biographical, and critical annotations."

"The notes are numerous and instructive, and some of the various readings of great value."

VOL. XI.—Athenæum.

"There are passages of great critical talent in the notes, written by men scarcely inferior in genius to Byron himself; nor should the engravings be forgotten, for they are of singular beauty. Much of the interest which belongs to a new work is given in this volume, by the judicious and elegant manner in which it is arranged and printed, and adorned with the labours of the artist and critic."

Literary Gazette.

"If we would fairly appreciate the book, of which the eleventh volume is on our desk, we must ask ourselves one question: What would we not give for even a stray proof sheet of such an edition of any of the great English classics of a century back? Compare it with the best edition that the most diligent research of the most able hand of a succeeding generation has been enabled to produce, and we shall at once be compelled to admit, that the two things are not of the same genus. Take, for example, Sir Walter Scott's Dryden, and consider for a moment what a world of trouble has been expended, and with, comparatively speaking, how woful a blank for the result !"

Morning Chronicle.

"This admirable edition of Byron's Works proceeds according to the Herculean precept, qualis ab incepto, and nothing more commendatory can be said to introduce it into every library. To say nothing of the beautiful uniformity of the edition, with its delightful illustrations superadded, numerous additions are scattered over the whole, with a running commentary, replete with instruction, amusement, and interest."

Blackwood's Magazine.

"This is certainly the most interesting work that has come out of late. We never read the half of Byron's little poems till now, and we must say, they have much surprised us. Some of them we can scarcely believe to have been written, as we see them, at the date affixed to them. If so, 'tis a wonderful case; for they are worthy of his best period. The notes, too, especially to the English Bards and Scotch Reviewers, are terse and piquant. The sight of Byron thus handled, makes us wish to see Crabbe, and others of the great cycle of our age, dealt with in the same fashion."

THE COURT MAGAZINE.

EDITED BY THE HON. MRS. NORTON.

In concluding the first volume of the 'COURT MAGAZINE,' the proprietors take leave to express a hope that they have satisfactorily redeemed the pledge they gave on commencing this publication. The encouragement which they have received by an immense increase of sale; the spirit of competition which their successful efforts have aroused, and the favourable testimonies of the Public Press, are evidences, strong and palpable, of the general improvement of the 'COURT MAGAZINE.' They have no little pride in referring to its Literature, when it can be truly said, that many among the brightest talents of this country have contributed to enrich the pages of the present volume. The embellished portion of the work they believe to be now brought to a higher degree of perfection than ever; and in addition to the PORTRAIT GALLERY of the FEMALE NOBILITY and the COLOURED ENGRAVINGS of the month, they have completed their arrangements with Mr. Daniell, the Royal Academician, and many eminent engravers, for supplying a splendid series of LANDSCAPE VIEWS of the SEATS of the NOBILITY and ROYAL RESIDENCES, to be continued every alternate month. As a work of Literature and Art, the proprietors can with confidence rank the Court Magazine as one of the most attractive and cheap publications of modern times, and they take this opportunity of reminding the public of the approaching New Year as a favourable time for becoming Subscribers.

SEMATOLOGY.

This day is published, 8vo. price 8s. in boards.

AN OUTLINE OF SEMATOLOGY:

OR

AN ESSAY TOWARDS ESTABLISHING A NEW THEORY OF GRAMMAR, LOGIC, AND RHETORIC.

In this Work the Author proposes to explain Grammar, Logic, and Rhetoric, by the SCIENCE OF SIGNS; to expose the vicious peculiarity of the Aristotelian Syllogism, which has lately found a new champion in Dr. Whately; and to supply, on the subject of Language, in its relation to the thinking process, what has been left imperfect by Locke, Dugald Stewart, Horne Tooke, &c.

The following are among the Notices of the Work which have already appeared:—

‘We have thus placed before the intelligent reader, in the very words of the Author, his aim, and the means by which he proposes its attainment. If this outline induce others, as it did us, jealousy, and with extreme caution, to examine the premises from which such conclusions are drawn, the result, we think, must be conviction—conviction of the absolute necessity of a speedy alteration of the forms (certainly not the essentials) of education, as far as regards the use and understanding of words. It is a great satisfaction to us to find such clear views, sound thinking, and extensive learning, applied to these important subjects. We feel convinced that there is a portion of the public mind sufficiently healthful to enjoy this purification from the malaria of the schools. Logic has become disgusting to common sense; and rhetoric an object of suspicion to common apprehension, from the jargon which debased, and the misapplication which degraded them. We assert, that the present treatise will be the means of restoring to the rational mind, in a state fitted for profitable use, the two great instruments of its power—the means of attaining, and the methods of dispensing knowledge. We have no question that this volume lays the foundation of an improved system of philosophy, as far as it applies to language, its origin, its structure, its operation, and its influence—as far as it regards the signs of knowledge, in their effect on our own minds, and on the minds of those we would persuade or convince. We are particularly struck with the “lucidus ordo” of the work as to plan, and the extreme gentleness which smooths the vigour of its execution. In denying the necessity of the Aristotelian syllogism, he allows that it exists in nature; but that its artificial form, its peculiarity, is its vice. He shows that other modes of reasoning are equally efficacious, and thereby does away with the exclusive attention to terms which caused the abuses of logic, and restores to the essence of the syllogism its place in nature, by removing it from the trammels of system. In like manner he deals with the errors of Locke, reverently deleting them from the mass of true reasoning and important deductions which remain behind. He speaks feelingly of Watts’s mistaken view of logic, allowing and recommending all that is valuable in his works. The Scotch metaphysicians, in their order, and Dr. Whately, of an opposite school, are treated with the same merciful consciousness of giant strength and manly forbearance. His object is evidently truth. As we are wholly ignorant of the author, except in his book, we claim of our readers a like confidence in the purity of our motive, when we state our absolute conviction that this anonymous Essay on Sematology marks a new era in an important branch of human knowledge. This is our deliberate judgment, and as the Author will have to contend against much prejudice acutely defended, to oppose weapons cankered, but not blunted with the rust of antiquity, and to encounter alike the academic cranes who roost in the topmost branches of learning, and the pigmies who measure themselves with the mushrooms which grow to the root of the tree, we conceive it our duty, as it is our gratification, to call the earnest attention of the capable few to the claims here put forth. Of their ultimate decision we cannot entertain a question.”—Atlas, March 13, 1831.

‘Considered as a mere display of philosophical reasoning, we think this book every way worthy of the attention of the learned world; but we are sure that even general readers will be induced to turn to its pages, when we state, that the establishment of the principles which it contains, must bring about a very decided practical improvement in our existing systems of education.’—Monthly Review, April, 1831.

‘Sematology stands opposed to what the French call Ideology, which it is accordingly intended to supersede. The Essay is very ingeniously and learnedly written.’—New Monthly Mag., April, 1831.

‘We have perused the whole volume with much attention and pleasure. Whoever the Author may be, he is a man of learning and a deep thinker; and there is an occasional vein of pleasantry in his disquisitions, which to those who consider the subject of them a dry one, will afford great relief and amusement.’—Literary Gazette, July 16, 1831.

‘The work before us, entitled Sematology from τα σηματα, is written by no mean anatomist of the three subjects discussed; it is a work of which the merits can be appreciated only by severe study.’—Gent. Mag., Supp. Part I. 1831.

‘His contribution to philosophy consists, fundamentally, of one idea; which having clearly conceived and firmly grasped, he has followed out into numerous ramifications, and traced its bearings upon the general problems of Grammar, Logic, and Rhetoric in a manner evincing no ordinary capacity for metaphysical investigation. . . . The third chapter on Rhetoric is, in our opinion, the best of all; it is full of valuable truth and high moral feeling. We regret that the length to which this notice has extended (five columns) renders it impossible for us to attempt even the most meagre abstract of this portion of the work.

‘In addition to the other merits displayed in this volume, the Author is evidently no contemptible scholar. On the whole, there are few works among those recently published, that do so much credit to the writer.’—Examiner, April 1, 1832.

6. A BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY OF EMINENT PERSONS OF ALL AGES. By JOHN GORTON.

'It is small praise to say this dictionary surpasses all the prior compilations of the kind; but we have consulted a multitude of articles, and have been surprised at the accuracy, versatility, and intelligence which they exhibit. We must not omit to remark an important recommendation in a bulky book of reference—its cheapness. Though far more copious, and carried down to a much later period, we believe the work does not exceed the price of the imperfect repertoires of biographies.'—Atlas.

In two large volumes, 8vo. 30s.

7. THE HISTORY OF ITALY; from the Fall of the Western Empire to the commencement of the Wars of the French Revolution. By GEORGE PERCEVAL, Esq.

'For the elegance of its style, the generous tone of its sentiments, and, above all, for its faithful reference to original authorities, this work is certainly a valuable acquisition to our historical literature.'—Monthly Review.

In a pocket volume, the Fifth Edition, 5s. in cloth.

8. THE SECRETARY'S ASSISTANT.

'One of those useful little books which, having found how serviceable it is for almost daily reference, you wonder that you could ever do without. This assistant gives you superscriptions, lists of ambassadors and consuls, forms of petitions and memorials, and other pieces of instruction for intercourse with society.'—Literary Gazette.

In two vols. 18mo. 7s., on fine paper 10s., and in small 8vo. 12s. in cloth, lettered.

9. THE BOOK OF BUTTERFLIES, MOTHS, and SPHINXES. By Captain THOMAS BROWN, F.R.S., F.L.S., &c.

'This is a delightful work, with no fewer than 96 engravings, coloured after nature; and, both by the style of its scientific descriptions and its general arrangement, well calculated to convey ideas at once correct and popular of the habits and economy of the beautiful tribes of which it treats.'—Literary Gazette.

'The engravings alone would be astonishingly cheap at the price of the volumes.'—Sunday Times.

These Volumes form the 75th and 76th of 'Constable's Miscellany.'

The Fourteenth Edition, in 12mo. 8s.

10. ILLUSTRATIONS OF MASONRY. By the late WILLIAM PRESTON, Esq., Past-Master of the Lodge of Antiquity. With important additions, alterations, and improvements, by the Rev. G. OLIVER.

BOOKS PUBLISHED BY WHITTAKER, & Co.—(Continued).

By the same Editor.

THE STAR IN THE EAST. 12mo. 5s. 6d.THE ANTIQUITIES OF FREEMASONRY. 8vo. 12s.

The Second Edition, with an Index of every Word, 3s.

11. THE WRITER'S AND STUDENT'S ASSISTANT; or, a Compendious Dictionary of English Synonyms; rendering the more common words and phrases in the English language into the more elegant or scholastic; and presenting at one view select for objectionable words; a choice of the most appropriate, from an assorted variety; and the opportunity of consulting occasional concise notes, interspersed throughout the whole, pointing out, in a familiar way, the distinction between such of the words as are frequently, in error, used synonymously.

In three vols. 12mo. 21s. cloth.

12. A DICTIONARY OF QUOTATIONS FROM THE BRITISH POETS.

Vol. I. containing Quotations from Shakspeare, 6s. 6d.

Vol. II. containing Quotations in Blank Verse, 7s.

Vol. III. containing Quotations in Rhyme, 7s. 6d.

'These volumes are what they profess to be, and are honestly and tastefully executed. We have in them the essence of Shakspeare and the British poets.'—Monthly Review.

In five volumes, post 8vo. 46s. half-morocco.

13. OUR VILLAGE; Sketches of Rural Character and Scenery. By Miss MITFORD.

The Fifth Edition, 6s.

THE POLITICAL SKETCHES OF H. B.

Nos. 1 to 234,

ARRANGED AS PUBLISHED, UP TO 12TH DECEMBER, 1832.

Price 2s. each Plate.

T. M'LEAN again begs leave to remind the admirers of H. B.'s Political Sketches, that spurious copies and imitations of style and signature, much inferior to the celebrated Originals, are in circulation. None of H. B.'s productions can be warranted genuine unless they possess the sole Publisher's Name and Address, 26, Haymarket, at the bottom of each plate.

T. M'LEAN takes the present opportunity of returning his most grateful thanks to the Nobility, Gentry, and Subscribers in general, for the very liberal patronage they have bestowed upon the above popular Publications.

Published solely by THOMAS M'LEAN, 26, Haymarket, London; where copies of the Work are kept half-bound.

CARICATURE ANNUAL FOR THE NEW YEAR.

THREE HUNDRED CARICATURE SUBJECTS,

Delineating all the Humorous and Political Events of the Year in a most Entertaining and Humorous Manner, by some of

THE FIRST CARICATURE ARTISTS,

And is the most amusing Volume for the Drawing Room or Library ever submitted to the Public.

'A more amusing book cannot be imagined for the dreary half-hour, or sometimes whole hours, waiting for dinner, nor indeed for any period of ennuyant leisure; for here at least we can laugh at Reform and Cholera—disregard the evils, and enjoy the follies, which elsewhere scare and fatigue us.'—Literary Gazette.

London: published by THOMAS M'LEAN, 26, Haymarket; and Messrs. SIMPKIN and MARSHALL, Stationers' Court;

Where may be had Vols. I. and II. of the same Work, price 2l. 2s. each, plain, or 4l. 4s. each, coloured.

The following Testimonials have been recently given to Mr. COLES, to prove the estimation in which

COLES'S PATENT TRUSSES

Are held by the Public; but the best friend that ever Mr. COLES has yet met with, is WM. COBBETT, whose case, as published in his Register, now appears under the head 'Useful Knowledge,' in BOYLE's Court Guide for 1833. All Families of Fashion know where to put their hand on BOYLE's Court Guide.

TO MR. COLES.

Sir,—I have been wearing Trusses of different kinds for the last thirty years, but never found one of them to keep up the Rupture effectually, until thirteen months since I purchased one of your Patent; and although my Rupture came down in a most frightful manner then, it has never come down since, nor have I scarcely the appearance of ever having had such a complaint. At my age, 77 years, I do not intend to leave off wearing a Truss, and I know too well the importance of your ingenious contrivance to keep the world in ignorance of it.

JAMES SHARE, Commander, R.N.

19, Bury-Street, Bloomsbury.
28th May, 1832.

Colonel Francklin informs those who have Ruptures, that he has been wearing Trusses thirty years, and he never met but with one individual who was master of the complaint. He has likewise an elder brother, a Colonel in the Honourable East India Company's service, who has worn a similar kind of Truss for many years, who can say the same. Mr. COLES, of Charing-Cross, is the individual alluded to.

Blackheath, July 16, 1832.

Sir,—Having the misfortune to Rupture myself several years ago, I purchased one of Salmon's self-adjusting Trusses, which, although it afforded me considerable relief, did not entirely keep the Rupture in its place, particularly when I had to stand for any length of time. I felt a disagreeable gnawing pain, attended with a bearing down of the hernia, so that I was frequently unable to wear the Truss. In mentioning to a friend what I suffered, he strongly advised me to try one of your patent, which I did, and found, to my great comfort, that it kept up the Rupture effectually, without producing any of those painful sensations which I had endured while wearing the ball and socket truss; and I can now stand or walk for hours together without the least pain or inconvenience—in fact, as well as though I never had been ruptured. I send you this statement to make what use of it you please.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM MATTHEWS,
Quarter-Master, Royal Artillery.

Woolwich, Sept. 12, 1832.

A gentleman at Lloyd's Coffee House has also sent Mr. Coles a similar testimonial of his case which had been of thirty years standing.

TO MR. COLES.

Sir,—While serving the office of first lieutenant of a line-of-battle ship off Toulon, in 1809, I had the misfortune, through extreme fatigue, to bring on a Rupture. Since that period I have tried every description of Truss which came to my knowledge, but I never succeeded in supporting the hernia effectually until 1831, when I purchased two of your patent trusses; and it is but justice to own that no descent has occurred since I have worn them, and I freely give you liberty to publish this testimonial in favour of your excellent invention.

I am, Sir, yours obediently,

J. P. BAKER, Commander, R.N.
28, Duke-Street, Manchester Square.
Oct. 17, 1832.

Sir,—Seven years ago I applied to you to stop a Rupture, which I have laboured under upwards of fifty years, which was as large as a man's head, which you accomplished with apparent ease, when no person that I had previously consulted was able to stop it a single day. I am now eighty-six, and am entirely free from any external appearance of the complaint. My object in writing this testimonial, is, not merely to express my gratitude for the service you have rendered me, but to guard my fellow-sufferers against the use of imperfect trusses.

I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

GEORGE CARPENTER,
21st Oct., 1832. 24, Regent Street.

A surgeon of the R.N., about sixty years of age, who had been wearing trusses of several different kinds, employed one of Coles's manufacture, and ere he had half worn it out, threw it aside and left his trusses in London, while he made a tour on the Continent. Being at sea and exposed to severe weather, a sea sickness brought on the complaint, and he was compelled a second time to wear his truss, and after wearing it about about twelve months, has again been perfectly cured and does not wear a truss.

Sir Astley Cooper knows a case which had been getting worse for thirty years, and which had escaped a hundred times in a day, and does not escape now from Coles's Truss.

IMPROVED METHOD of HEATING DWELLING-HOUSES, CONSERVATORIES, FORCING-HOUSES, and Other Buildings, by Hot Water.

JOSEPH BRAMAH and Sons having given considerable attention to the most Efficient and Simple Method of Warming Buildings, by means of Hot Water, have applied their arrangements with the most complete success to the Halls and Staircases of Dwelling-houses, Conservatories, &c. The Comfort and Convenience of this mode of Heating exceeds that of any other Method. It obviates the unpleasant and baneful effects attendant on the Hot Air Stoves in ordinary use, and at the same time offers no obstacle to the most perfect ventilation.

J. B. and Sons have constantly on hand a large assortment of Ornamental Stoves, of every description and variety, and of the best designs and workmanship. Warehouse, 124, West End of Piccadilly. Manufactory, Pimlico.

THE STATE OF THE SOUL AFTER DEATH;

CONFORMABLE TO DIVINE REVELATION, AS INTERPRETED BY THE ABLEST COMMENTATORS, AND CONSISTENT WITH THE DISCOVERIES OF SCIENCE.

BY A PROTESTANT LAYMAN.

'Man now should learn what God permits to know
Of future scenes which other worlds shall show;
For though this dwelling of his soul must fall,
He feels that life on earth can NOT be all.'—The Life of the Soul.

CONTENTS.

PRELIMINARY OBSERVATIONS.

CHAP. I.—The Creator of the World.—
The formation of our first Parents; their primeval state, and inquiries into the truth of several commonly received opinions relative thereto.

CHAP. II.—DEATH, and the necessity there exists for understanding and reflecting on its consequences to the Soul, or Mind of Man; with the unfounded and conflicting ideas which many persons entertain of our future states of being.

CHAP. III.—The natures of Soul and Body, and of Animal Life; with popular illustrations of their mode of action.

CHAP. IV.—The alleged sleep or unconsciousness of the Soul between Death and the Resurrection investigated.

CHAP. V.—Proofs from the Scriptures that the departed Souls of men have not as yet entered into Heaven or Hell, if by these terms are understood the places of our eternal reward or punishment.

CHAP. VI.—The Middle State of the Soul demonstrated.

CHAP. VII.—The belief in a Middle State shown to give no countenance to the Roman Catholic notion of PURGA-TORY, and that such a place can have no existence consistently with Divine Revelation.

CHAP. VIII.—A critical inquiry into the proper meaning of certain Hebrew and Greek words used in the Old and New Testaments, which clearly denote and establish a Middle State.

CHAP. IX.—On the appearance of the Spirit of Samuel at Endor; and that of Moses at the Transfiguration.

CHAP. X.—The parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus considered.

CHAP. XI.—The nature of the Happiness and Misery to be expected in the intermediate State.

CHAP. XII.—An inquiry into the probable employments and sources of pleasure in our future states of being; but principally in reference to the anticipated joys of that Heaven into which the redeemed of God shall ascend after the Resurrection and Judgment.

CHAP. XIII.—Of the situation or locality of HADES; also of the Highest Heavens, as that region where the glory of God is most visibly manifested.

CHAP. XIV.—An investigation, founded on Revelation, how far the destruction, on the morning of the Resurrection, shall involve the visible works of Creation.

The Christian Doctrine of Immortality.

IRELAND.

In 2 vols. 7s. cloth,

THE HISTORY of the CIVIL WARS of IRELAND. By W. C. TAYLOR, M.A. These volumes relate the calamitous history of the wars with which Ireland has been so long and so frequently devastated, and point out the effect they have produced on the present condition of that country. With what success the author has treated his subject may be seen by the following extracts from periodicals of every shade of political opinion:—

‘From the excellent style, and very careful and impartial manner in which these volumes are executed, they form one of the best works of that long series of publications to which “Constable’s Miscellany” has now extended. A good history of the civil wars of Ireland was a desideratum in our literature.’—Monthly Review.

‘We can recommend this as the best compendium of Anglo-Irish history that has appeared. It is dispassionate, but not dull; concise, but not obscure.’—New Monthly Magazine.

‘We would not desire to inquire into the case of Ireland under better auspices than are supplied in the pages before us.’—Dublin Morning Register.

IT.

MEMOIRS of WILLIAM SAMPSON.

Written by HIMSELF. These are the Memoirs of an Irish Exile, driven from his country for a suspected participation in the Irish Insurrection of 1798, and contain a very curious and interesting narrative of his sufferings in England, Ireland, and Portugal. Comparatively recent as are the events, there are many to whom, at first sight, the unmerited persecutions of the writer may appear improbable; but a little examination of the documents by which the statements are supported, will soon convince him that the author has rather understated his case. An introduction is prefixed, detailing the causes of the Irish Insurrection, by the Author of ‘The History of the Civil Wars of Ireland.’ 18mo. 3s. 6d. and 12mo. 6s. cloth, lettered.

The LONDON JOURNALS are received thirty-two hours after publication.

It must be acknowledged that the true and genuine food for the mind is News: this is evident from the avidity with which it is taken, and incontestable from the multitude in this great metropolis whose mental diet solely consists of this intellectual fruit, had here from every climate. Without moving from the precincts of this Institution, 'you may roam the wild world like a child at a feast,' from the immense number of Journals with which it is supplied on all subjects, from the News of the day to researches the most elaborate in every department of Science, Literature, and the Arts. (See CIRCULATING LIBRARY.)

The PERIODICAL PRESS is a powerful medium for conveying quickly that information which the enlightened spirit of the age demands, and the tables of these Rooms groan under the weight of mighty matter with which they are so abundantly supplied. More than 400 Journals, in the European and Oriental languages, are received, of which 140 are in ENGLISH,—from which may be formed an idea of the liberality with which this Establishment is conducted; it stands alone in its character and extent,—its plan is the most complete. It is especially adapted to assist the progress of discovery, and no expense is spared to render the execution worthy of the design. The Collection of Maps and Books of Reference, in various languages, is valuable, and 40,000 Volumes from the CIRCULATING LIBRARY may be read without any charge whatsoever.

In the News Rooms there is a table appropriated to the Ladies, as is usual at the Fashionable Watering Places in England.

THE CIRCULATING LIBRARY

Comprises 40,000 Volumes of the most interesting and newest works in ENGLISH, FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, and SPANISH, to which is regularly added every New Work of merit and general interest.

Circulating Libraries are an acknowledged delightful resource. No amusements are more easily attainable and attended with more solid satisfaction and fewer inconveniences than the Library; there is not a subject which can excite human curiosity on which satisfactory information may not be acquired at this LIBRARY and News Rooms; the multitude of Books in all branches of Literature are ready to gratify the mental appetite with every elegant variety of intellectual sustenance,—a sumptuous entertainment is prepared, nor will the guest find fault with its variety; all is laid before him with the design to give pleasure, and it is easy to select that capable of affording most.

The assortment of SUMMER and WINTER READING is in great variety.

Nor are the interests of the Ladies forgotten, as this LIBRARY possesses the hitherto unattempted novelty of concentrating all that is interesting to them either as a recreation or a pursuit, and forms a complete repertorium of those accomplishments which grace the sex, and constitute the perfection of the female character; in achieving which, recourse has been had to the most distinguished Authors suited to their taste, calculated both to entertain and instruct.

This LIBRARY and News Room rouses to a perception of the important influence which Literature possesses, and is remarkable for its great and evident utility; it is decidedly the best constructed rail-road for the rapid and easy communication of extensive and accurate knowledge, in this improved age of mental as well as material machinery, and is admirably qualified to prosecute with advantage any inquiry having claims on our attention.

Here the Churchman hears of promotion—the Soldier and Sailor of 'moving accidents by flood and field'—the Banker and Capitalist have the latest intelligence on the public funds—the Merchant his prices-current and shipping lists—the Lawyer and Physician 'reports of cases'—and the Man of Fashion, Statesman, the Philosopher, the Professional Man, the Sportsman as well as the general Amateur, will find a succinct and perspicuous view of all that is desirable for the purpose of reference not elsewhere attainable. The gossip and quidnunc have also wherewithal to gratify that appetite which 'grows by what it feeds on,' and our Transatlantic brethren, during their stay in the Old World, are abundantly provided with 'news from home.'

The interest of readers is constantly kept up in harmony with the march of intellect and progress of Literature, Politics, and Commerce, in this and all other countries. In fact, every Literary propensity may be here gratified.

It is worthy of note, that notwithstanding the unique and paramount advantages enjoyed, the Terms are not half the London Prices: it does not amount to three sous (three-halfpence) a day. The conditions may be had on application. Subscriptions taken for any period.

JUVENILE SUNDAY LIBRARY, VOL. I.

Lately published in 18mo. 4s. neatly half-bound,

LIVES OF THE APOSTLES and Early MARTYRS OF THE CHURCH. By the Author of Trial of Skill, &c. &c.

The object of this remarkably well written work, which forms the first of a series intended to be published for the use of youth, is to provide for children what is at once pious and entertaining; which, while instructing the child, shall amuse and draw out its mind, and keep it on the ascending scale at that period of young life so difficult of management, which lies between childhood and the opening to maturity; to provide then what is agreeable and useful for Sunday reading is the object of our excellent authoress. Women certainly manage these matters much better than men; and without hesitation, while we anxiously recommend the work to all those who are concerned in the management of youth, we will venture to say, that the volume may stand a fair comparison with those of Mrs. Sherwood, Charlotte Elizabeth, or any other of those excellent women, whose labours have been so effectual in training up youth "in the way they should go," and in bringing young children to Christ.—From the Christian Examiner for May 1832.

See Lit. Gazette, also Athenaeum.

FRASER'S MAGAZINE.

Price 2s. 6d.

The Publisher of this Work begs to submit to the reading Public the following notice of his December Number, especially inviting the attention of those who may be desirous of subscribing for a Monthly Magazine for the year 1833.

'This Number of Fraser—we say it deliberately, and after a careful examination of its contents—is the very best which this spirited publisher has yet produced. We have no hesitation in saying, that, as a Magazine, Fraser's is superior to any now published. Blackwood wields a political weapon of mighty power, and of most extensive and salutary influence. He maintains the good cause of the constitution against its enemies of every kind with unwearied zeal, unflinching boldness, and transcendent ability: but it is by these efforts, and by the splendid papers of Professor Wilson on subjects of imagination and criticism, that Blackwood's Magazine maintains its lofty eminence in the periodical literature of the day. Considered as a Magazine, it is deficient both in lightness and variety. Fraser, though less exclusively political than Blackwood, does not yield to him in the vigour with which he treats political questions, nor in the zeal and ability with which he advocates sound principles.'—Halifax Guardian.

Subscribers' Names for FRASER'S MAGAZINE are received by all Booksellers, Stationers, and Newsmen, in Town and Country; which may be had regularly of them, or the Publisher, at 215, Regent Street, London.

This day is published, price 2s. 6d.

LANDSCAPE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE BIBLE, BY TURNER AND CALLCOTT.

Early in 1833 will be published, to be continued regularly in Monthly Parts, price 2s. 6d.⁷ each,

LANDSCAPE ILLUSTRATIONS

THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS,

Consisting of Views of the most remarkable Places mentioned in the Bible, taken from Authentic and Original Sketches made on the spot. The PLATES will be engraved in the first style of excellence by

WILLIAM AND EDWARD FINDEN,

FROM FINISHED DRAWINGS BY

J. M. W. TURNER, R.A. AND A. W. CALLCOTT, R.A.

The utmost regard will be paid to the accuracy of the Views, and they will be accompanied by a Description drawn up by a most careful hand.

It is certainly somewhat remarkable that, while other works of small moment have employed the pencils of the first artists, and have received every sort of embellishment, so little should have been done in attempting to illustrate the most important of all books—THE BIBLE. Surely there is much truth in the observation of a recent writer,* that ‘if Troy and Thebes, if Athens and Rome, are visited with classic enthusiasm, much more worthy of awakening the strongest emotions in the mind of a Christian must be the country whose history as far transcends in interest that of every other, as its literature (if we may apply that term to the divine volume) excels in sublimity all the ethics, and philosophy, and poetry, and eloquence of the heathen world.’ Independently of the interesting associations connected with ————— ‘Those holy fields,

Over whose acres walked those blessed feet,
Which fourteen hundred years ago were nailed
For our advantage on the bitter cross’—SHAKESPEARE—the Land of Palestine, as is well known, abounds in scenes of the most picturesque beauty. Syria comprehends the snowy heights of Lebanon

• In that interesting and valuable work, The Modern Traveller.

Lebanon and the majestic ruins of Tadmor and Baalbec. The gigantic Temples of Egypt, the desolate plains of Babylon, and Nineveh, the ruined cities of Idumea, Moab, and Ammon, and the rocky solitudes of Mount Sinai,—will all find a place in this publication.

It is anticipated that such a work, in addition to the recommendation which it will possess as a beautiful production of art, may prove in a high degree useful, as it is intended to give views not only of the places where remarkable events actually took place, but also of those particularly mentioned in the prophecies, which in their present ruined and desolate condition so completely exemplify to the most minute particular everything which was foretold concerning them in the height of their prosperity—that no better or more accurate description can now be given of them, than a simple quotation from a chapter and verse of the Bible written from two to three thousand years ago. The most remarkable instances of this are afforded by Egypt, Edom, Babylon, and Tyre. So that in these cases the fulfilment of prophecy may actually be set before the eye, and the understanding assisted and confirmed by the sight.

The following is a list of some of the views, principally furnished from the sketches of CHARLES BARRY, Esq., which will appear in the early part of the work; a more detailed list of subjects will follow shortly.

Mount Ararat,
The supposed Tower of Babel,
Egypt and the Nile,
The Red Sea,
Mount Sinai and Horeb,
The Well of Marah,
Mount Hor (the tomb of Aaron),
The River Jordan,
Jericho,
Gaza and Ascalon,
Palmyra and Baalbec,

An edition will be printed in 4to., with superior impressions of the plates to suit D'OYLY's and MANT's, HENRY's, SCOTT's, BROWN's, and other 4to. editions of the Bible.

A very limited number of proof impressions will be taken off on India paper.

A more detailed Prospectus, containing a specimen plate, will be issued in the course of a few weeks.

MR. MURRAY'S LIST OF BOOKS

ON

GENERAL AND CLASSICAL LITERATURE, HISTORY, BIOGRAPHY, SCIENCE, VOYAGES AND TRAVELS, EDUCATION, &c. &c.

1.

CHRISTIAN CLASSICS; being a Collection of approved and Popular Treatises on the Truths and Doctrines of Christianity: chiefly from the Writings of Grotius,

Locke,
Addison,
Warburton,
Douglas,

Porteus,
Paley,
Watson,
and Michaelis.

With Notes and Illustrations. In three volumes; with Portraits.

By the Rev. T. F. DIBDIN, D.D.
Printed uniformly with the Sunday Library.

The success of the Sunday Library, to which this work may be considered as a Companion, has induced the Editor again to come forward, in a shape not less acceptable, he trusts, to the kindly feelings and good taste of a Christian Community. If there be one object more than another, which he has at heart, in the preparation of the materials of THESE 'Classics' it is, that they may be instrumental to the direction and consolidation of those Principles, upon which the present and future happiness of human beings may be said to depend:—as a safeguard against the poison of infidelity on the one hand, and the misery of fanaticism on the other. But if there be one Class of Individuals more than another, likely to be materially benefitted by such a Publication, it is THE YOUNG—on commencing their career in life—whether at our Universities, or on being placed out in the world.

If there be such attraction in the word 'Classics,' as applied to the cultivation of taste from a knowledge of Heathen Writers, let some of the ablest treatises in our language have their due influence upon the understandings of Young Men, when they are adorned by the purity of a classical style, and directed to the noblest of earthly objects.

INFORMATION and DIRECTIONS for TRAVELLERS on the CONTINENT of EUROPE, more particularly in ITALY and in the ISLAND of SICILY.

By MARIANA STARKE.

SEVENTH EDITION,

Carefully corrected, and enlarged.

In one compact Pocket Volume, price 15s.

The Author of the above work, which has long enjoyed the reputation of being the best Guide Book for Italy, being fully persuaded of the impossibility of writing an accurate account of a country without having examined it herself; and likewise feeling, from respect to the public, an earnest wish not to be considered an erroneous Guide, has lately visited almost every part of Italy, especially those parts which in modern times have been neglected by travellers. She has collected the newest information from all quarters, and has rewritten the greater portion of the book. The additions and improvements to this edition will be found to have materially increased the value of the work to all classes of travellers. A very important chapter is devoted to the description of the Remains of Ancient Italy, lately brought to light and investigated by the Antiquarian Society of Rome. The Author, anxious to facilitate the progress of travellers who may feel a desire to visit the ancient Remains in Etruria, has endeavoured to discover the best roads leading to them, and, by minutely examining them, has been enabled to give an account of them which is to be found in no other work of the sort.

It being her object to comprise within the narrow limits of one portable volume all the information requisite for travellers in the most frequented parts of Europe, she has combined her account of the "Remains of Ancient Italy" with a new and considerably enlarged edition of her "Travels in Europe." The following pages, therefore, contain a faithful description of the Antiquities, ancient Customs, and Manners of Italy, Magna Græcia, and Sicily; together with an account of all the principal Towns and Post-roads in the most frequented parts of the European Continent; correct Catalogues* of the most valuable specimens of Architecture, Painting, and Sculpture, in France, Italy, Magna Græcia, Sicily, and Germany; with the opinions of Nardin, Venuti, Winckelmann, and Visconti, on some of the most celebrated Works of Art. The following pages likewise contain an account (deduced from very long experience) of the Climates of Southern Europe; the expenses attendant upon various modes of travelling; the distances from post to post on every Great Road, according to the post-books last published; the average price of ready-furnished Lodgings, Provisions, &c.; together with a short comparative view of family expenses in various Cities of Europe: so that persons led by motives of economy to reside on the Continent may not experience the disappointment of finding their plans frustrated by imposition.

* The Editions of this work sold in Italy and elsewhere on the Continent are for the most part old, and therefore, incomplete and comparatively useless.

THE JOURNAL of the ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY of LONDON. Vol. II. With Eleven new Maps, Charts, &c. 8vo. 7s. 6d.

* No complete printed description of the sculpture, frescos, and oil-paintings, either in the Vatican or in the private galleries at Rome, being at the present moment attainable, the Author of the ensuing Work has endeavoured to supply this deficiency by catalogues made with the utmost care: but it should be recollected that in every gallery, whether public or private, the situation of statues and pictures is liable to be changed.

HISTORY of the WAR of SUCCESSION in SPAIN.

By LORD MAHON.

8vo. 12s.

This work contains much new information derived from the MS. Papers and Correspondence of General Stanhope, at one period Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in Spain, and afterwards (as Earl Stanhope) First Lord of the Treasury in England. In the same collection are many Letters and Papers of Lord Peterborough, which throw great light on his military life.

'It is impossible to close either the Life of Belasarius or this volume, without having formed very high anticipations of the Author's future career as an historical writer.'—Quarterly Review.

BOSWELL'S LIFE OF JOHNSON,
a New EDITION, incorporating HAWKINS,
Mrs. Piozzi, TOUR to the HEBRIDES, &c.

By the Right Honourable
JOHN WILSON CROKER.

Illustrated with numerous original
Notes by Sir WALTER SCOTT, Sir JAMES MACKINTOSH, LORD STOWELL, and the EDITOR. With several original Portraits.
5 vols. 8vo. 3l.

"We do not know the literary work which has acquired a greater or more universal popularity than Boswell's Life of Johnson. It has been a constant favourite with all intelligent readers; and though slight improvements have been made in the new editions at various times, it was quite necessary to revise it again, because many facts and explanations, which were not set down because they were universally known, and were entrusted to the keeping of tradition, were in a fair way to be entirely lost. A few years will have swept away all the associates of Johnson; but as the trouble of collecting these things is not at all estimated by readers at large, no one was willing to submit to the labour till Mr. Croker came forward and undertook the trust. We can cheerfully bear witness to the able and faithful manner in which he has discharged the duty. We acknowledge the excellence of the work, and recommend it to all who wish for an intimate acquaintance with Johnson, and every one who has the least respect for intellectual greatness is included in this description. The work is much improved by inserting extracts from the other biographers. Mr. Croker has evidently laboured with unwearied industry to gather materials. We cannot believe that any subsequent improvement will ever be made upon this edition; and we have no doubt that it will excite the curiosity and reward the attention of the reading world. We have the pleasure of announcing an American reprint, and hope that we shall be able to repeat the saying of a distinguished writer of the last age, 'Every one that can buy a book has bought Boswell.'"—North American Review for Jan. 1832.

The ANTIQUITIES, ARTS, and LITERATURE of ITALY.

By JOSEPH FORSYTH, Esq.

Fourth Edition, complete in one pocket volume.

"Forsyth was an acute observer, a man of sound taste in the arts; and we know of no better guide to consult than his discriminating strictures upon Italian buildings and monuments of every kind. His style is nervous and manly."—Journal of Education, No. VIII.

31.

The DIARY of an INVALID in pursuit of HEALTH; being the Journal of a Tour in Portugal, Italy, Switzerland, and France.

By the late HENRY MATHEWS, M.A.
Fellow of King's College, Cambridge.

Fourth Edition, complete in one pocket volume.

"In the number of those more unpretending works which do not profess to give an elaborate description of Italy, or any particular part of it, but merely to record the impressions of a stranger as he journeyed through the country, and thus to supply an entertaining companion to his followers in the same path, we have long singled out 'Mathews' Diary of an invalid.' It is the work of a scholar and a gentleman, written in an amicable temper of tolerance, and good-will towards mankind."—Journal of Education, No. VIII.

34.

VIEW of the MOTIONS of the HEAVENLY BODIES.

With a popular INTRODUCTION.

By MRS. SOMERVILLE. 8vo. 30s.

'Taken altogether, the production does honour to the age in which we live—but as the exclusive performance of a female, it must be regarded as a prodigy of intelligence and mental industry. It is a subject worthy of national congratulation, that a lady of extraordinary talents, and of sufficient ambition to trespass beyond the restraints imposed upon her sex, should enlist in the ranks of the missionaries of useful knowledge.'—Monthly Review, Jan. 1832.

'In the pursuit of her object, and in the natural and commendable wish to embody her acquired knowledge in a useful and instructive form for others, the Author seems entirely to have lost sight of herself; and, although in perfect consciousness of the possession of powers fully adequate to meet every exigency of her arduous undertaking, it yet never seems to have suggested itself to her mind, that the acquisition of such knowledge, or the possession of such powers, by a person of her sex, is in itself anything extraordinary or remarkable.'

'We have, in deed, no hesitation in saying, that we consider the Preliminary Dissertation by far the best condensed view of the Newtonian philosophy which has yet appeared. We do not, of course, mean to include the "Système du Monde" of Laplace himself, which embraces a far wider range, both of illustration and detail, and of which Mrs. Somerville's preface may in some sort be regarded as an abstract, but an abstract so vivid and judicious as to have all the merit of originality, and such as could have been produced only by one accustomed to large and general views, as well as perfectly familiar with the particulars of the subject.'—Quarterly Review.

ESSAYS, &c., read at the ROYAL COLLEGE of PHYSICIANS.

By Sir HENRY HALFORD, Bart.

With an Original Portrait of Charles I.

Post 8vo., 6s. 6d.

Contents.—On the Climacteric Diseases—On the necessity of Caution in estimating the symptoms in the last Stages of some Diseases—On the Tic Dolorieux—Popular and Classical Illustrations of Insanity—On the Influence of some diseases of the Body on the Mind—On the Knausos of Areteus—On the Treatment of Gout—The opening of the Coffin of Charles the First, in 1813.

'A volume alike creditable to the president as a physician and as a scholar.'—Quarterly Review.

The PROVINCE of JURISPRUDENCE DEFINED. In Six Essays.
Being the Substance of Ten Lectures delivered at the University of London.

By JOHN AUSTIN, Esq.,
Barrister-at-Law. 8vo. 12s.

'I have stated in the beginning of my preface, that the six Lectures or Essays composing the following Treatise are made out of ten Lectures which I delivered at the University of London. These (I may venture to add) were heard with some approbation, by an instructed and judicious audience. Imboldened by that approbation, I submit them, in their present form, to the judgment of a larger public.'—Preface.

37.

The BOTANICAL MISCELLANY;
Containing Figures and Descriptions of new, rare, or little-known Plants, from various parts of the World, particularly of such as are useful in Commerce, in the Arts, in Medicine, or in Domestic Economy.

By W. I. HOOKER, LL.D., F.R.S., and L.S., &c. &c., and Regius Professor of Botany in the University of Glasgow.

Nos. I. to VIII., with 112 Engravings,
10s. 6d. each.

This Work will be completed in Nine Numbers, forming Three Volumes, 8vo.

'We draw our readers' attention to this most valuable work which is now publishing, in quarterly parts; and although its merits have fully established its character amongst the cultivators of Botany, we esteem it a duty to the cause of this elegant science to recall it to their notice. The botanical plates are excellent.'—Asiatic Journal.

SELECTIONS from the CONTENTS:

VOL. I.

History of the Mahogany-Tree—Schultes' Botanical Visit to England—Information respecting the German Botanical Society—Localities of Rare Plants in the Breadalbane Mountains of Scotland—Some Account of the Substance commonly called Rice Paper—Sketch of a Journey to the Rocky Mountains and Columbia River, by Thomas Drummond, Naturalist to the Arctic Expedition under Captain Franklin—History of the Sugar-Cane—The Botany of Susan River, with Remarks on the Settlement there—Journal of Two Months' Residence on the Banks of the Rivers Brisbane and Logan, New Holland, by Charles Frazer—Description of Malayan Plants, by William Jack—New Plants from Madagascar—Botany of the Philippine Islands—The Caroline Islands, Kamtschatka, and Behring's Straits, visited by the Russian Expedition under Kotzebue—Plants of the order Umbelliferae discovered in South America, by Dr. Gillies.

III.

A SHORT HISTORY of SPAIN.
On the Plan of Mrs. MARKHAM'S HIS-TORIES OF ENGLAND and FRANCE.

By MARIA CALLCOTT.

With Wood Engravings. 2 vols. 12mo.

These works are constructed on a plan which is novel and, we think, well chosen. They are divided into chapters, and at the end of each chapter is subjoined a conversation suggested by the matter of the preceding text.
By this arrangement a consecutive narrative is kept up, while, at the same time, everything interesting connected with each reign is made the subject of discussion and examination: thus, much valuable and curious information is imparted without disturbing the continuity or perplexing the progressive steps of the history. The style is plain and easy—the conversations are usually sustained with spirit, and are sufficiently familiar without degenerating into puerility; at least, this blemish is only of rare occurrence, and in books designed for children we hold this to be no trifling merit. The works bear throughout evident marks that the Author is completely versed in every part of the history of the two countries. She has shown great judgment in the selection of events and of those particulars which are most likely to attract the attention of children. She offers to their notice exactly the species of knowledge which they can best understand, and does not confuse them with a recital of the complicated manoeuvres of political factions. Party intrigues are not discussed, and the crimes and vices of mankind are not exhibited so as to offend or disgust, while good feeling and pure morality are generally inculcated.

We are glad to find that these excellent little Histories are deservedly popular. They cannot be too strongly recommended as adapted for the perusal of youth, while readers of more advanced age may find in their pages much that is novel and entertaining.—Journal of Education.

Young Persons. Arranged for every Day in the Year.

A New Edition, 3 vols. small 8vo.
10s. 6d. half bound.

No head of a family, we presume, will think of dispensing with this work, at least no one that is anxious to invigorize the minds of his children by communicating to them an early taste for the more valuable and profitable pursuits of the human understanding.—Monthly Rev.

Of all the little works contrived of late years for the purpose of conveying information to young folks in an attractive manner, this, we think, will prove by far the most successful.—Monthly Magazine.

'An admirable production of its class.'—Court Journal.

'These volumes record perhaps the most important geographical discovery of the present age. In consequence of the attraction possessed by them, and the very accessible form under which, in preference to the costly and ponderous quarto, their enterprising publisher has presented them, there will perhaps be very few of our readers to whom the incidents of this remarkable voyage will not be familiar. The narrative never ceases to be very interesting.'—Edinburgh Review.

THE ABBOTSFORD SUBSCRIPTION.

THE Crisis which took place in commercial affairs generally, in 1825, and which particularly affected every person engaged in literary undertakings, involved Sir WALTER SCOTT in losses to an extent alike unexpected and unprepared for, but which ultimately proved not less than 120,000*l*. Ruinous as this demand must have been, it is yet obvious, that after surrendering to its payment the whole of his property, he might have secured to himself and his family the fruit of his subsequent exertions, and realised from his later works not less than 70,000*l*. The whole of this sum, with whatever more a lengthened life might have enabled him to obtain, he, with manly and conscientious feeling, appropriated to the benefit of his creditors. In thus devoting his talents to the acquittal of obligations not originally, though legally his own, he laboured with a degree of assiduity, and an intenseness of anxiety, which shortened his existence by overstrained intellectual exertion. He lived not indeed to complete the task; but what he had secured, when added to the property and copyrights previously destined for the support of his family, enabled them, by incurring deep personal responsibility, to satisfy nearly the whole amount of these debts, for which their father had been rendered liable. This has been done, and the sacrifice is complete, but Abbotsford can no longer be the home of his children. Such were the stainless and irreproachable principles of that mind, whose intellectual power was only equalled by its moral worth; and from this plain statement, those who have long and justly appreciated the writings of SCOTT, may learn to love and venerate his virtues. It is thought that no memorial can be so appropriate to his name, as the permanent maintenance of the house which his residence has rendered classical, and the preservation of a library and collection of national antiquities, which his admirable taste selected, and which his genius made available to works that are in every hand, and have carried the glory of English literature through every civilized region of the earth. Is it then too much to expect, from a nation so justly proud of his fame, that in requital for so many hours of pleasure derived from his writings, they will be eager to subscribe to a tribute of gratitude, alike honourable to the giver and the receiver; to show, that in a country like this, literature has also her triumphs, and genius its Blenheims, bestowed by a great and cultivated people on the children of him whose life was shortened by his integrity, and whose name is immortalised by his works?

IMPORTANT WORKS
PUBLISHED FOR HENRY COLBURN, BY R. BENTLEY, NEW BURLINGTON STREET.

I.

HISTORY OF THE BRITISH NOBILITY AND GENTRY.

Now ready, the Fourth Edition, corrected to 1833, in 2 vols., comprising the recently-created Peers and Baronets, and illustrated with upwards of 1500 Engravings; among which is a fine Head of His Majesty, after Sir Thomas Lawrence's celebrated Drawing. Price 2*l.* 10*s.* neatly bound :—

BURKE'S GENERAL AND HERALDIC DICTIONARY

OF THE

PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE,

For 1833.

This New Edition of Mr. Burke's popular Work, in addition to comprising, exclusively, the whole Hereditary Rank of England, Ireland, and Scotland (exceeding fifteen hundred Families), has been so extended as to embrace almost every individual in the remotest degree allied to those eminent houses; so that its collateral information is now considerably more copious than that of any similar work hitherto published. The Lines of Descent have likewise been greatly enlarged, and numerous historical and biographical anecdotes, together with several curious and rare papers, have been supplied. The Peerages under discussion in the House of Lords (a new feature in such a work) are minutely detailed, and the claims upon which the respective petitioners to Parliament pray the restoration of suspended honours are fully explained. The Armorial Ensigns have been re-engraved, on the new and improved plan of incorporation with the letter-press, so that the existing state of each family, with its lineage and arms, will be found together.

II.

HISTORY OF THE GENTRY OF ENGLAND.

A COMPANION TO THE PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE.

Elegantly printed in royal 8vo., with the Armorial Ensigns of each Family beautifully engraved by Thompson, the First Part, price 7*s.* 6*d.* of

BURKE'S HISTORY OF THE COMMONERS

OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND,

Qualified by Landed Property to become Members of Parliament.

The novelty and utility of this undertaking combine to invest it with no common claims to public attention. The highly-influential and extensive class to whom it refers have hitherto possessed no work of reference exhibiting an entire and authentic account of their respective families, although it is obvious how large a share of interest attaches to such an object, both for the parties themselves, and for all connected with them, by the ties either of alliance, friendship, neighbourhood, patronage, or political constituency.

Those Gentlemen who may have additional communications to make to the Editor are requested to address their letters, free of postage, to Mr. Colburn, 13, Great Marlborough Street.

III.

Elegantly printed in double columns, 28*s.* bound,

BURKE'S EXTINCT, DORMANT, AND SUSPENDED PEERAGES;

A necessary Companion to all other Peerages.

This work comprises the whole of the Peerages which have been suspended or extinguished since the Conquest, particularizing the Members of each Family, in each Generation, and bringing the Lineage, in all possible cases, through either Collaterals or Females, down to existing Houses; it connects, in many instances, the new with the old Nobility; and it will, in all cases, show the cause which has influenced the revival of an extinct dignity in a new creation. It should be particularly noticed, that this new Work appertains nearly as much to extant as to extinct Persons of Distinction; for though Dignities pass away, it rarely occurs that whole Families do.

WORKS OF VISCOUNT CHATEAUBRIAND;
COMPRISING

1. The SPIRIT of CHRISTIANITY, 3 vols. 8vo. 21s.—Ditto, French, 18s.

"The greatest work of this writer is his 'Spirit of Christianity,' a work of consummate ability and splendid eloquence, in which he has enlisted in the cause of religion all the treasures of knowledge, and all the experience of ages."—Blackwood's Mag., Mar.

2. TRAVELS in ITALY and AMERICA, 2 vols. 8vo. 18s.

"We recognize in these Travels the elegant and romantic Author of Atala, his fervid imagination and vivid descriptions."

3. CELUTA, or the NATCHEZ; an Indian Tale, 3 vols. small 8vo. 24s.—French, 18s.

"There are scenes and portraits in this romance which the pencil of genius has exquisitely touched, and which will insure it fame and favour of no trivial description."—Literary Chron.

THE DUKE of WELLINGTON'S CORRESPONDENCE WITH SIR THOMAS MUNRO,

When commanding in India as Colonel Wellesley; also the Correspondence of Sir Thomas Munro with the Hon. Mr. Elphinstone, Sir John Malcolm, Sir Thomas Hislop, Sir Graham Moore, and other distinguished characters; forming the THIRD and CONCLUDING VOLUME of SIR THOMAS MUNRO'S MEMOIRS. 8vo. 16s.

"The Life and Correspondence of Sir Thomas Munro may be said to comprehend an accurate history of India, during the last forty-five years. His minutes and papers upon the opening of the trade, the system of internal government, and other questions relative to the general management of British India, will be read with the deepest interest."—Morning Journal.

THE BEAUTIES of the COURT of
KING CHARLES II.

A Series of Portraits illustrating the Memoirs of Pepys, Evelyn, Clarendon, and other contemporary Writers of that gay and interesting period; with MEMOIRS, CRITICAL and BIOGRAPHICAL, by the Authoress of "Memoirs of the Loves of the Poets," "Memoirs of Female Sovereigns," &c. MRS. RADCLIFFE.

The POSTHUMOUS WORKS of Mrs. ANNE RADCLIFFE, comprising Gaston de Blondville, a Romance; and St. Alban's Abbey, a Metrical Tale, with numerous Poetical Pieces. Now first published from the Originals, in the possession of Wm. Radcliffe, Esq. With a Memoir of the Authoress, and Extracts from her Journals. In 4 vols. post 8vo. 24s.

"Mrs. Radcliffe's Posthumous Works are likely to attract, in no common degree, the attention of the literary world. The delicacy of her sentiments, the force and beauty of her reflections, and the splendour of her imagination, are conspicuous in every page."—British Press.

THE LOVES OF THE POETS;

Or, MEMOIRS of WOMEN celebrated in the WRITINGS of POETS. By the Authoress of the "Beauties of the Court of Charles the Second," "Lives of Celebrated Queens," &c. &c. in 2 vols. post 8vo. 21s.

"Heureuse la Beauté que le Poëte adore!
Hereux le nom qu'il a chanté!"

"This very curious work, from the same elegant pen as the 'Beauties of the Court of Charles the Second,' and the 'Memoirs of Female Sovereigns,' is equally rich in illustrious names, as in bright and deep reminiscences—for example, Petrarch's Laura, Dante's Beatrice, Chaucer's Philippa Picard, the Earl of Surrey's fair Geraldine (the object of Horace Walpole's ingenious researches), Spenser's Rosalind and Elizabeth, Shakespeare's beautiful enslaver, known by her attributes, though not by her name, Sir Philip Sidney's Stella, Mary of Scots; Diana of Poitiers, Milton's Wives, Waller's Sacharissa, Swift's Stella and Vanessa, Pope's Martha Blount (the theme of the Bowles and Byron controversy), Voltaire's Madame du Châtelet, Burns's 'Highland Mary,' &c.—not to mention the names of ladies whom our living Poets, as Campbell, Wordsworth, Wilson, &c. have 'delighted to honour,' and to whom graceful and delicate allusion is made in this Work."—Sun.

"Very delightful volumes!"—Blackwood's Mag.
"The volumes are admirable; they confirm conceptions which are amongst the most brilliant and charming in the range of literary history."—Atlas.

11.

THE GARRICK PAPERS.

MEMOIRS of DAVID GARRICK,

Including his PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE with the most celebrated Persons of his time; now first published from the Originals. Printed uniformly with Evelyn and Pepys. In 2 vols., with a fine Portrait.

This highly interesting and important work comprises upwards of two thousand letters, from persons of the greatest eminence in the political, literary, and dramatic world.

"When we consider that he was the favourite of Dr. Johnson, the friend and companion of the celebrated Lord Camden, the associate of Quin and Foote, and Barry and Henderson, the protégé of Pope, the correspondent of Bishop Warburton, the fosterer of the early genius of Sheridan and Siddons—when we remember all this, we can readily comprehend the interest that, even at this comparatively distant period, must be attached to the biography of such a man."—Sun.

12.

DODDRIDGE'S CORRESPONDENCE and DIARY; including many Particulars in his life hitherto unknown, with Notices of many of his Contemporaries, and a Sketch of the Times in which he lived. Published from the original MSS. by his Grandson, J. DODDRIDGE HUMPHREYS, Esq. In 5 large vols. 8vo. with fine Portrait. Price 3*l.* 15*s.*

N.B. either of the Volumes may be had to complete sets.

"We know not when, if ever, we have perused volumes of the description of those now before us, with more intense curiosity, amusement, and instruction."—Literary Gazette.

"These volumes must rank with our first English classics, and must go down to posterity as specimens of the English language rarely surpassed."—Evangelical Magazine.

with THOMAS MEDWIN, Esq., in which are detailed his Opinions on Society, Manners, Literature, and Literary Men. New Edition, uniform with the Works of Lord Byron. In 1 vol., price only 6*s.* bound.

15.

THE PLAIN SPEAKER; Opinions on Books, Men, and Things. By the Author of "Table Talk." In 2 vols. 8vo. 16*s.*

"A work singularly attractive from the novelty of the subjects, and the powerful manner in which they are treated. The Author seems determined to justify the title he has chosen for his Work, especially in the anecdotes and remarks on individuals collaterally introduced, among whom appear very prominently, Lord Byron, Thomas Moore, Horne Tooke, the Author of Waverley, Sheridan, Burke, Southey, Godwin, Bentham, Canning, Cobbett, Blackwood, Marquis Wellesley, Wilberforce, Sir Hudson Lowe, Croker, the Duke of Wellington, Gifford, Leigh Hunt, Owen of New Lanark, Irving, Erskine, the Westminster Reviewers, Keam, Lord Eldon, Mr. Hobhouse, the Duke of Bedford, and many others."

16.

BABYLON the GREAT, or MEN and THINGS in the BRITISH CAPITAL. 2d Edit. with Additions. In 2 vols. post 8vo. 18*s.*

"These volumes treat of all subjects connected with London, from the 'forest of masts' in the River, to the elegance of the Corporation—from the Chapel of St. Stephen's, to the steam-press in Printing House Square—Men, Women, Books, and Newspapers—every thing in and about London that is worthy of notice in an intellectual point of view. He has studied the character of London and Londoners with acuteness."

HISTORICAL WORKS.

"This work is a solid proof of great endowments and abilities."—Literary Gazette.

An invaluable accession of authorities from the records of the proceedings of the Long Parliament, recently discovered in the State-Paper Office, and the collection of Commonwealth Tracts given by Geo. III. to the British Museum, have enabled Mr. Godwin to throw much new light upon the general history of the time.

MEMOIRS of the GREAT LORD BURGHLEY,

Secretary of State in the Reign of King Edward VI. and Lord High Treasurer of England in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; containing an Historical View of the Times in which he lived, and of many of the eminent and illustrious Persons with whom he was connected; with Extracts from his Private Correspondence and Journals, now first published from the Originals.

By the Rev. Dr. NARES,
Regius Professor of Modern History in the University of Oxford.

Complete in 3 vols. with Portraits, &c.

"This elaborate work is of the highest national interest; it embraces and discusses a multitude of great historical, biographical, religious and political questions, and throws much light upon an era of almost unparalleled national and universal importance."—Literary Gazette.

COMMENTARIES

On the LIFE and REIGN of CHARLES I., King of England. By J. D'ISRAELI. 5 vols. 8vo. 3l. 3s. Either of which may be had separately.

"The COMMENTARIES on the Life and Reign of CHARLES I. form by far the most important work upon that important age that modern times have produced. More curious diligence and sagacity have seldom been exercised upon any portion of History, and seldom with so much success."—Quarterly Review, July, 1833.

THE HISTORY of MODERN GREECE.
By JAMES EMERSON, Esq., of Trinity College, Dublin. In 2 large vols. 8vo. 16s.

"This important work will supply a deficiency often felt and regretted in English literature. The annals of the country, which at every stage abound with the strongest interest, are followed up to the present day, and include, of course, a history of the Greek Revolution."—Globe.

THE CROMWELLIAN DIARY:

THE DIARY of THOMAS BURTON, Esq., Member in the Parliaments of the Protectors Oliver and Richard Cromwell, from 1656 to 1659, now first published from the original Autograph Manuscript; with an Introduction and Notes, Historical and Biographical. In 4 large vols. 8vo. with Plates, 2l. 8s.

"This work serves to fill up that chasm so long existing in our Parliamentary History."—Literary Gazette.

"The great interest of the book is Cromwell himself."—Gentleman's Magazine.

"These volumes overflow with information respecting the principles and proceedings of the Legislature during a most important period of English history. Every library which pretends to contain an historical collection, must possess itself of Burton's Diary: it is as indispensable as Burnet or Clarendon."—Atlas.

MEMOIRS and CORRESPONDENCE of SAMUEL PEPYS, Esq., F.R.S., Secretary to the Admiralty in the Reigns of Charles II. and James II., and the intimate friend of the celebrated John Evelyn. Edited by Lord Braybrooke. New Edition, in 5 vols. 8vo. embellished with Portraits and other Engravings, by the first Artists. 2l. 5s.

"Notwithstanding the extensive popularity of the Memoirs of Grammont, and the still greater attraction of those of Evelyn, we have no hesitation in stating our opinion that these volumes will outstrip them both in public estimation."—Literary Gazette.

THE LIVES of the RIGHT HON.
FRANCIS NORTH, Baron Guilford, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal under King Charles II. and King James II.; of the HON. SIR DUDLEY NORTH, Commissioner of the Customs, and afterwards of the Treasury to King Charles II.; and of the HON. and REV. DR. JOHN NORTH, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, and Clerk of the Closet to King Charles II. By the HON. ROGER NORTH; with Notes and Illustrations, Historical and Biographical. and Seventeen Plates, to be found in no other edition, price only 25s. bound.

"We apprehend that no person who is desirous rightly to appreciate the character of Napoleon Bonaparte, or to study the history of the eventful period in which he flourished, will neglect the perusal of this work."—Times.

THE EMPRESS JOSEPHINE.

MEMOIRS and CORRESPONDENCE of the EMPRESS JOSEPHINE. Complete in 3 vols. post 8vo. 27s. Do. in French, 24s.

"An extremely amusing book, full of anecdotes and traits of character, of kings, princes, nobles, generals, &c."—Morning Journal.

"A curious and entertaining piece of domestic biography of a most extraordinary person, under circumstances almost unprecedented."—New Monthly Mag.

N.B. Either volume may be had separately,

BIOGRAPHICAL WORKS.

MEMOIRS of SIR JAMES CAMPBELL, of Ardkinglas (formerly Sir James Callander), written by Himself. In 2 vols. 8vo, with a Portrait. 24s.

Sir James Campbell is the father of Mrs. Thomas Sheridan. He served during the greater part of the seven years' war in Germany, visited most of the German courts, had familiar intercourse with Voltaire, was a member of the most celebrated London Clubs, the "Savoir vivre," the "Pandemonium," &c.; held the post of Secretary to the British Embassy at Paris on the eve of the Revolution, journeyed extensively in the East, and was again mixing in Parisian Society during the allied occupation of France.

2.
LIFE of Sir HUMPHRY DAVY, Bart.
Late President of the Royal Society, &c. &c.
By A. J. PARIS, M.D., F.R.S., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, &c. &c.
Second Edition, 2 vols., with a fine Portrait, 28s.

3.
Sir JONAH BARRINGTON'S PERSONAL SKETCHES OF HIS OWN TIMES,

being his individual Recollections of Distinguished Personages, Remarkable Events, and Irish High Life for the last Fifty Years.

The Third and concluding Volume. 8vo. 14s.
Also a New Edition, with Additions, of the first two volumes, price 24s.

LORD BYRON
And SOME of HIS CONTEMPORARIES.
By LEIGH HUNT.

Comprising the Author's Correspondence with Lord Byron, Mr. Shelley, &c. New Edition, in 2 vols. 8vo., with Portraits and Facsimiles, 18s.

"In this very curious series of literary and personal sketches, Mr. Hunt has sketched in a very bold manner, not only the public but the private characters and habits of many of the celebrated writers of the present day—Lord Byron, Mr. Thomas Moore,
Mr. Campbell, Mr. Shelley, Mr. Coleridge, Mr. Charles
Lamb, Mr. Theodore Hook, Mess. Horace and James Smith (the Authors of 'Rejected Addresses'), Mr.
Landor, &c. The Letters of Lord Byron and Mr.
Shelley will be found eminently interesting."—Morning Chronicle.

5.
SIR THOMAS LAWRENCE'S LIFE and CORRESPONDENCE.

In 2 vols. 8vo., with three Portraits of the late President at various periods of his life, beautifully engraved from Paintings by himself. Price 14. 12s.

6.
The LIFE and WRITINGS of HENRY FUSELI, Esq., M.A., R.A.,
Keeper and Professor of Painting to the Royal Academy in London.

The former written, and the latter edited by JOHN KNOWLES, F.R.S. 3 vols. 8vo. 21s.

"Perhaps the most valuable work, as regards the fine arts, ever published in England. Every one who possesses the Lectures of Sir Joshua Reynolds should possess also those of Fuseli, comprised in the above work, together with the painter's aphorisms on art, and his history of the Italian schools of painting and sculpture. These must be invaluable to the student, and to the innumerable lovers of whatever is great and beautiful in art, and cannot be too highly estimated as an infallible guide for the collector of works of the old masters."—Globe.

7.
SIR JOHN SINCLAIR.
The CORRESPONDENCE of the Right

worth, Sir James Mackintosh, Mr. Brougham, Sir F. Burdett, Rev. E. Irving, Lord Eldon,
Mr. Wilberforce, Mr. Malthus, Mr. Crabbe, the late Mr. Horne Tooke, &c. &c.

9.

NOLLEKENS and HIS TIMES.

Comprising MEMOIRS of CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS, from the time of ROUBILIAC, HOGARTH, and REYNOLDS, to that of FUSELI, FLAXMAN, and BLAKE. By JOHN THOMAS SMITH, Esq., of the British Museum. Second Edition, 2 vols. 8vo., with Portrait, 24s.

"A delightful book. It is a treasure of good things, of strokes of humour, traits of character, anecdotes of genius, manners of life; in short, it is a feast for the intellectual man, a lounge for the idler."—Spectator.

10.

The LIFE of TITIAN.

By JAMES NORTHCOTE, Esq., R.A.

With Anecdotes of the Distinguished Persons of his Time.

In 2 vols. 8vo., with a fine Portrait of Titian, now first engraved from an original, painted by himself at the age of 99. price 21s.

"Mr. Northcote's life of the great Venetian painter includes Memoirs of his contemporaries in literature and art, with a minute history of their works. Such a book as this has long been wanted, and could not have been consigned to more competent hands than those of our own talented countryman."—Courier.

11.

DR. PARR'S MEMOIRS and CORRESPONDENCE:

With Biographical Notices and Anecdotes of many of his Friends, Pupils, and Contemporaries. By the Rev. WILLIAM FIELD. 2 vols. 8vo., with Portraits, 28s.

12.

MUSICAL MEMOIRS;

Comprising an Account of the General State of Music in England, from the first Commemoration of Handel in 1784 to the year 1830, interspersed with numerous Anecdotes, Musical, Histrionic, &c. By W. J. PARKE, In 2 vols. Post 8vo. 18s.

"These volumes contain a fund of information relative to music, the stage, and their eminent votaries, which the lover of the drama will devour with avidity."—Scm.

LORD KING.LIFE and CORRESPONDENCE

of JOHN LOCKE. By LORD KING:

With extracts from his Journals and other unpublished Manuscripts, and comprising Letters of Lord Shaftesbury, Sir Isaac Newton, the Earls of Sunderland, Pembroke, Monmouth, Peterborough, &c. &c. Second Edition, with considerable Additions, in 2 vols. 8vo. 28s.

"A delightful addition to the literature of our country: a work which must ever remain a standard book in English libraries."—Literary Gazette.

14.

MAJOR GORDON'S MEMOIRS.PERSONAL MEMOIRS

of PRICE LOCKHART GORDON, Esq.

In 2 vols. 8vo. 28s.

Among a variety of illustrious persons, of whom mention is made in these Memoirs, will be found the Prince Regent—the late Lord Graves—Queen Caroline—the Duke of York—Lord Rodney—the Duke of Wellington—the Duke and Duchess of Gordon—Lord Byron—Lord Camelford—Lord Kaimes—the Earl of Findlater—Lord Spencer—Lord W. Bentinck, &c. &c.

"We have scarcely met with a page in these Memoirs of Mr. Gordon's Life and Times which has not repaid us, in some way or other, for the perusal."—Spectator.

The DIARY and CORRESPONDENCE of RALPH THORESBY,

Author of "The History of Leeds." Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH HUNTER, F.S.A. Including numerous Letters by the celebrated John Evelyn, Sir Hans Sloane, Sir Godfrey Copley, Archbishop Sharp, Bishop Burnet, Dr. Calamy, Rev. Matthew Henry, Strype, Hearne, &c. &c. In 4 vols. 8vo. 30s.

"A curious, a very curious publication, and one which affords a great deal of interesting information, and sets before us pictures of society and manners, drawn in the liveliest tone, and bearing the stamp of perfect truth upon every lineament. Here we get into the genuine company of our great-grandfathers; we gossip with them—hear their opinions—know their minds—observe their customs—note their fashions—laugh at their weaknesses—and wonder that so great a change could have been operated within the century that has passed between their fretting their hour upon the stage and our occupying the scene."—Literary Gazette.

MEMOIRS of GOETHE,

Author of "Werter," "Faust," &c.

WRITTEN BY HIMSELF.

In 2 vols. 8vo., with a fine Portrait.

"Goethe has justly been classed by the critics of Germany with the master-minds of modern Europe—with Shakespeare, with Dante, and with Cervantes, not as possessing powers of a similar kind, but as enjoying, like those great men, the reputation of being, beyond all comparison, the first of his age and country."

17.

MRS. SIDDONS.

MEMOIRS of the LIFE of MRS. SIDDONS. By JAMES BOADEN, Esq., Author of the "Life of John Kemble." In 2 vols. 8vo., with a fine Portrait, engraved by Turner, from a Picture by Sir Thomas Lawrence. Price 28s.

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

THE EARL OF MUNSTER'S MEMOIRS of the LATE WAR; together with the PERSONAL NARRATIVE of CAPT. COOKE, of the 43rd Regiment; containing New Particulars of the Battles of Salamanca, Vittoria, Pampeluna, Nivelle, Nive, and Toulouse, and of the Sieges of Ciudad Rodrigo, Badajoz, and St. Sebastian, &c. &c. 2 vols. post 8vo. 21s.

"These sketches are among the liveliest specimens of military description that we have happened to meet with anywhere. Lord Munster's picture of Soult's flight from Oporto may rank with the best pages of 'Cyril Thornton,' or 'The Subaltern.' His volume is full of interest."—Quarterly Rev.

THE MARQUESS OF LONDONDERRY'S NARRATIVE of the late WAR in GERMANY and FRANCE. The Second Edition, in one large volume, uniform with the "History of the Peninsular War."

"This highly important work is the only connected and well-authenticated account we have of the spirit-stirring scenes which preceded the fall of Napoleon. This work deserves a place in every historical library."—Globe.

THE DUKE D'ALBUFERA.

MEMOIRS of the WAR in SPAIN. By MARSHAL SUCHET, Duke D'Albufera. 2 vols. 8vo., Portrait, 24s. French, 18s.

"These volumes possess many attractions for the professional reader, and are written in a style calculated to convey a very lively impression of all the scenes and actions in which their celebrated author distinguished himself."—Monthly Review.

THE LIVES AND EXPLOITS of CELEBRATED MILITARY COMMANDERS. By G. P. R. JAMES, Esq., Author of the "Life of Charlemagne," "Richelieu," "De L'Orme," "Philip Augustus," &c. including those of Gonzalves de Cordova; the Duke of Alba; the Great Condé; General Monk, Duke of Albemarle; Marshal Turenne; the Duke of Marlborough; Prince Eugene of Savoy; the Earl of Peterborough; Marquess of Granby; General Wolfe; &c. &c. &c. In 3 vols. post 8vo.

TRAVELS.

TRAVELS IN GREECE AND ALBANIA.

By the Rev. T. S. HUGHES, B.D.

Two vols. 8vo., price 24s. bound, with numerous important additions, and thirty-three embellishments; presenting the most picturesque illustrations of the scenery, costumes, and habits of Greece and Albania, and including the Portraits of the present Sultan Mahmoud, and of the late notorious Ali Pasha, of Janina, of whose adventurous career the best account yet supplied is given in these volumes.

"The second edition in 8vo. of this valuable work on Greece, which has taken its stand as a universal companion to the Grecian historians and poets, is illustrative not only of the topography and antiquities of Albania, the Morea, and the Archipelago, but is equally comprehensive as regards the cradle of the Muses, Sicily. By the publication of the second edition, in two vols. 8vo., the extensive design of the Author is fulfilled: and no scene of any famous event, no mountain or valley, lake or river hallowed by the poets,—no renowned edifice, or magical piece of sculpture is left unexplored or unexamined by actual research on the spot."—Globe.

ADVENTURES on the COLUMBIA RIVER:

Comprising the Narrative of a Residence of Six Years on the western side of the Rocky Mountains, among various tribes of Indians hitherto unknown; together with a Journey across the American Continent. By ROSS COX, Esq. In 2 vols. 8vo., 24s.

"Dangers of the most trying kind," says the Morning Herald, "adventures of every description, fearful and agreeable, accompanied the steps of our traveller. Mr. Cox, however, did not see or feel for himself alone. He recorded the real romance in which he took a part, and he has now enabled even us, in-dwellers of cities, to participate in its extraordinary interest."

POLAND.

TRAVELS OF A NOBLEMAN,

In POLAND, TURKEY, WALLACHIA, TRANSYLVANIA, and HUNGARY, With a particular account of his Residence at VIENNA during the CONGRESS, and numerous Anecdotes of the distinguished Personages there assembled. In 2 vols. 8vo., 21s.

"Independently of the great interest attached to the subject of Poland, these volumes comprise the narrative of the noble author's residence in Vienna, at the stirring and brilliant period of the Congress, 'where,' to use his own words, 'a kingdom was aggrandized or dismembered at a ball, an indemnity granted at a dinner, a restitution proposed during a hunt, and a bon-mot sometimes cemented a treaty.' We have the fruits of his activity before us in a number of striking anecdotes of emperors, kings, princes, and a long train of diplomatic personages."—Globe.

TRAVELS IN ASSYRIA, MEDIA, &c.

By J. S. BUCKINGHAM, Esq., Author of TRAVELS IN PALESTINE and in MESOPOTAMIA. Comprising Researches in Ispahan, during a stay in that City: a visit to the Ruins of Persopolis, &c. Second Edition, in 2 vols. 8vo., with numerous Engravings. 31s. 6d.

This volume concludes the series of the author's Journeys in the East, which present the reader not only with the present condition of the interesting countries described, but with the results of personal investigations as to their antiquities, which enable the author to throw light upon ancient history, and also upon the inspired writings.

NARRATIVE of a JOURNEY through GREECE in 1830.

With Remarks upon the Actual State of the Naval and Military Power of the Ottoman Empire. By Capt. T. ABERCROMBY TRANT, 8vo., 10s. 6d.

GUIDE TO THE NORTH.

Dr. GRANVILLE'S GUIDE to ST. PETERSBURGH;

A JOURNAL of TRAVELS to and from that CAPITAL through FLANDERS, along the BANKS of the RHINE, through PRUSSIA, RUSSIA, POLAND, SAXONY, SILESIA, BAVARIA, and FRANCE.

New Edition, with additions. In 2 large vols. 8vo., with 70 Plates, 1*l.* 16*s.* bound.

"His picture of St. Petersburg contains the most copious and detailed description of this extraordinary city, which has hitherto been laid before the public."—Quarterly Review.

MRS. COL. ELWOOD'S NARRATIVE

Of a JOURNEY OVERLAND to INDIA; including a Residence there, and Voyage home. In 2 vols. 8vo., with Plates. 30*s.*

"Mrs. Colonel Elwood has won for herself much celebrity, not only by the fortitude and endurance which enabled her to accomplish her dangerous undertaking, but by the book wherein she describes her adventures and observations. Her published work may justly be styled the most curious production of the season."—Courier.

MEXICO. By G. H. WARD, Esq.,

Late British Chargé d'Affaires. Comprising the PERSONAL NARRATIVE of the Author's TRAVELS through the Country, with an Account of the MINING COMPANIES, and of the Political State of that Republic, to the Present Time. New Edition, with considerable Additions, in 2 large vols. 8vo., with numerous Plates from Drawings by Mrs. Ward, 1*l.* 16*s.* bound.

"The most systematic and complete work of which we are in possession respecting Mexico."

COURT OF AVA.

JOURNAL of a RESIDENCE at the COURT of AVA, the Capital of the BURMESE EMPIRE. By JOHN CRAWFURD, Esq., late Envoy, Author of the Journal of a Residence in Siam and Cochin China. In 1 vol., with a valuable Map and other Plates.

"We recommend it to the perusal of all who are connected by the ties of commerce with the East, or who are solicitous for information on this portion of our oriental relations."—Literary Gazette.

POETRY, &c.

THE UNDYING ONE, and other POEMS.

By the HON. MRS. NORTON. 8vo., 7*s.* 6*d.*

"If one or two poems of equal grace and originality with this were produced, we think that it would go far to recover the public from the apathy into which it has fallen with regard to poetry. In the conception of the plot, and in general treatment, the metrical Romance before us is an honour to the modern literature of the country, and is the more interesting as being the work of a woman."—New Monthly Magazine.

THE POETICAL WORKS

Of the Rev. GEORGE CROLY, F.R.S.L.

In 2 vols. post 8vo., with Illustrations. 21*s.*

"Full of lofty imaginings and poetic thought, we will venture to say that there is hardly a theme which Mr. Croly has not awoken with a masterly hand, and hardly a sympathy which he has not beautifully touched in the great and multifarious range of subjects embraced in these volumes. Thus enriched, we most cordially recommend them to that universal attention which they will repay tenfold by the pleasure they are so well calculated to yield."—Literary Gazette.

WOMAN, a Poem.

By E. S. BARRETT, Esq. New Edition, beautifully embellished with Engravings, from Designs by Westall. Small 8vo. 6*s.*

"Forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee;
Love her, and she shall keep thee;
Exalt her, and she shall promote thee."

NEW ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS:

Selected from the Original Oriental MS., and now first translated into English, by the Rev. GEORGE LAMB. Second Edition. 3 vols. small 8vo. plates. 18*s.* neatly bound.

"These Tales possess other charms to recommend them, besides the abundance of the marvellous and supernatural which they contain. Some of them will be found to contain much excellent moral instruction and philosophical reflection. The imaginative and descriptive parts will be found equally interesting and beautiful."

USEFUL AND ELEGANT PRESENTS.

TALES OF CLASSIC LORE:

A new Delineation of the most popular Fables, Legends, and Allegories, commemorated in the Works of Poets, Painters, and Sculptors; selected and written by a Lady, for the Amusement and Instruction of her own Daughters. In 3 vols. post 8vo. 24*s.* neatly bound.
